Fire Hits Gutted Factory

The old Hudson Industries gelatin factory went up in smoke again this week, although this time firefighters were able to control the blaze in less than an hour.

According to a fire department spokesman, all that burned in Tuesday evening's fire was the rubble left over from the Aug. 3 blaze that destroyed the building. The spokesman said the fire was most likely started by kids with matches because the area had been sealed off and no workers were on the site.

The spokesman said grease covering the debris left over from the earlier fire helped ignite Tuesday's blaze.

Nothing of value was damaged, according to the spokesman. The Winchester fire department was able to bring the blaze under control without assistance from firefighters in neighboring towns.

Voluntary Tax Payments Asked

By SUSAN SCHNECK

The Board of Selectmen Monday formally agreed to informally invite residents to make voluntary tax payments.

The Selectmen decided this plea for help was the best way out of a potential financial crisis for the town.

Tax bills are usually mailed out in October and paid by the end of November.

But Patten Appraisals Associates will not have even completed their property revaluation of Winchester until Oct. 1.

After the revaluation is finished, Winchester must then wait for state approval before the tax rate can be set.

This leaves Winchester with big money problems unless residents agree to voluntarily pay their taxes. Money to keep the town running would have to be borrowed at high interest rates until the tax bills were mailed.

But it looks like Winchester might be spared the crisis. Ten residents have already paid their taxes without even being asked and Selectmen hope their informal invitation will bring in sufficient funds to tide the town over.

If the voluntary tax plan is successful, it will save the town $100,000, according to Town Comptroller Alphonse J. Faggiano. Faggiano estimated this to be the amount Winchester would need to pay for interest on loans to operate the town pending late tax payments.

Town officials were wary of asking for voluntary tax payments until now because they have not "officially" received the blessing of the Department of Revenue, said Town Counsel Douglas Randall.

Concord has already asked for voluntary payments but the state Department of Revenue has not yet responded to town officials there.

"Whether or not the Department of Revenue will bless this thing with silence is something I'm concerned about," said Randall. "I don't think the assessors have received any direction from them regarding this."

But Selectman Chairman Edward O'Connell said he did not think residents were concerned about blessings from the state.

"Do the citizens of Winchester care whether it's blessed or do they care if they can deduct this on their income tax?" he asked.

Randall told the Selectmen that he personally did not think the department would make an issue of this. But, he added, "being a lawyer, it's my duty to look at the dismal side of everything."

O'Connell however stressed that he thinks in this case, "silence can be golden."

Last year's tax bills can be used as a guideline for this year's payments but residents should be wary about paying too much as there is no procedure to compensate residents for the interest on overpayments.

If people underpay, they will owe the difference on their tax bill. If they overpay, the difference will be credited to their next tax bill.

Town officials were confident that the voluntary payment plan will work successfully.

"The townspeople of Winchester will respond commendably as they always have," Randall concluded.

Two Men Charged In Cop Assault

Two Woburn residents charged with assaulting a Winchester police officer are free on $500 bail and will appear in Woburn's Fourth District Court Sept. 17.

The two, one aged 22 and the other 16, are charged with assaulting officer Lawrence P. Hill on Saturday night near the Immaculate Conception Church on Sheridan cir.

The 36-year-old Hill suffered a chipped front tooth, a cut left knee and a split lip, according to the police report he filed.

According to his report, Hill had been performing detail duty at the church Saturday night during a bingo game when he noticed a car driving erratically at the corner of Main st. and Sheridan cir. around 9.

Hill's report said he smelled alcohol on the driver's breath and asked him to step out of the car. The report said Hill then moved the car, with the driver's

Garbage To Be Town Meeting Subject Again

By SUSAN SCHNECK

What would a town meeting be like without an article about garbage collection?

Thanks to the Rules Committee, this town tradition will continue through this fall's Town Meeting. Also making a return appearance will be the issue of accessory housing. The problem of absentee Town Meeting members will also be aired this fall.

Chairman of the Rules Committee Harrison Chadwick presented a warrant article to the Board of Selectmen Monday night regarding garbage collection.

"I would support any move to restore garbage collection to this town," Chadwick said. "It should be something that is a public service."

"I pay to have my garbage collected and it's costing me more for the privilege of the collection than I would pay on my tax rate," he continued. "But I don't want to pay the gas to carry it to the

Local Impresario Packs Halls For Music Concerts

By DAVE LEECO

John Parker Murdock has a knack for selling out concert halls.

He started his career as an impresario by putting on a concert featuring the Cambridge Chamber Players in a 200-seat hall four years ago. When it sold out, he was hooked.

"It was a real," he recalled, sitting in his Seneca rd. home in a couch so soft it swallowed you. "Right away, the bug bit me. To go from sitting down and saying 'hey, let's put on a concert' to seeing the idea come alive, seeing the people come to the show and enjoy it."

"That's a direct experience. You can see the direct results of your work," he said. "That's why this whole thing is like a dream come true."

Come true indeed. Today, Murdock is in the midst of selling tickets to another show he's putting on. Israeli violinist Itzhak Perlman. In the 1600-seat Mechanics Hall in Worcester.

And, like his first effort, this show is for all practical purposes sold out. With two weeks to go before the solo recital, there are only 160 seats left. And everytime time the phone rings in his Seneca rd. home, which is every five minutes, the number drops.

In the four years since his first venture, Murdock has become the promoter, financial agent, ticket seller, hall-booker and founder of the International Artist Series.

A one-man operation, the series will present 20 concerts this year, in both Mechanics Hall and Boston's Symphony Hall.

Perlman is the top draw of this year's series, along with violinist Yehudi Menuhin. But the series will also feature concerts by the Orchestre de la Suisse Romande, the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, and Ireland's The Chieftains.

The series really began three years ago, with a Symphony Hall performance by the Moscow Chamber Orchestra, which Murdock describes as "the number one chamber orchestra in a country that doesn't have second-rate chamber orchestras."

The group's U.S. agent had tried to book the orchestra in Boston, through the Boston University Celebrity Series, which before Murdock came along, was the only series in the city.

The Celebrity Series turned down the chance to feature the Moscow group, so the agent called Murdock.

"At that time, to take that concert on, I was foolish," he said. "I'd never done such a large concert before, and I had to cover the orchestra's fee and the hall rental out of my own pocket."

"If no one came, I would have lost my shirt," he said.

Murdock had no subscription list, but he devised a scheme of selling concert tickets in blocks - to businesses, college groups and other organizations. He managed to, once again, sell out the 2600-seat Symphony Hall.

"In this business, that's like climbing Mt. Everest," he said smiling. "And here I am three years later with a 20 concert series, 35 concerts scheduled for 1982-83, and I'm the major concert promoter in Worcester."

Bringing classical music to Worcester made Murdock's series. Before him, promoters avoided the city like the plague.

Murdock explained that several years ago, Walter Pierce, the founder of the B.U. Celebrity Series, tried to go into Worcester.

"His wife, who has been very helpful to me, told me they had a terribly difficult time," Murdock said. "That must have scared anyone else off," he continued. "But when I came in, the Mechanics Hall had been renovated, in 1977, a factor that didn't exist before."

And Mechanics Hall, Murdock continued, was just what he needed.

"It's equal to the finest concert halls in the world," he boasted. "It's got beautiful seating, acoustically it's perfect, it has easy parking and it has access from all the major highways."

However, Murdock's first production in this magnificent hall was a virtual failure. Inadvertently, he booked Boston's prestigious Hayden and Handel Society to perform Bach's "St. Matthew's Passion" - on the same night a local group was performing the same piece in a church.

Murdock was painted as a carpet-bagger, a Boston promoter bringing in a Boston group to up-stage the locals. Few Reports from reliable sources indicate that this week's mystery photo had the entire town in an uproar. Anxious puzzle solvers reportedly were seen wandering from church to church looking upward for the stained glass window in question.

Mystery Photo

Meanwhile, far from the town churches, 10 people were rubbing their hands with glee because they had found the window — not on a church but on the side of the chimney on 94 Highland ave.

Rats. We thought we had you; all of you, this time.

Fate, we thought, was on our side — Richard Rogers was on vacation last week. He would have only two days to figure it out. Besides, this was the 13th mystery photo.

Tuesday morning came and went. Still no word from R.R.

We breathlessly waited for the 4 p.m. deadline Tuesday to see whether this master sleuth would find the chimney. Early in the afternoon, the seemingly inevitable happened. The dreaded envelope arrived in the mail.

To make us even more frustrated, he was right on the money (or as close as he can get as there are no prizes aside from notoriety). When that envelope arrived and we saw his neat, bold, handwriting, we had to put Star photographer Noreen Murphy in a straitjacket to keep her from attacking the postman.

However, while we could not delight in celebrating the demise of Richard Rogers, we were quite proud to see that we had stumped over half of our wildest puzzle solvers.

This one really separated the men from the boys, as they say.

We even got a compliment from that smug bunch who call themselves "the Police Eye Team." They sent us a photo of their own this week with a note saying, "This was a good one." Thanks guys.

With a small taste of what it might feel like to outsmart Richard Rogers, Noreen refused food and sleep until she arrived at this week's mystery photo.

Cable Progress Going Smoothly

Continental Cable Manager Steven Pollack told the Board of Selectmen Monday that "things are running very smoothly."

He also announced a change in the area in town to be hooked up first for cable service.

The overall "marketing plan" divides the town into 10 districts and works on a section by section basis, Pollack said. Approximately seven to ten days after a family subscribes, service will begin, he said.

Marketing for the first homes will begin Sept. 15 and the last homes in Winchester set for marketing, will be hooked up by mid-December.

Pollack had originally told the Selectmen that the first homes to receive cable would be in the southwest corner of town and spiral clockwise towards the center of town.

The first district has now been changed to the area northeast of Wildwood Cemetery and will sweep towards Medford, Arlington and Lexington.

Pollack said his decision was based on logic regarding the actual hook-ups, rather than on marketing and that the decision had to do with location of power supplies.

"In terms of distance and ease, I changed my mind," he said. "It will be more effective this way."

Pollack told the Selectmen that Continental Cable is 99 percent finished with the aerial cabling and have completed all the construction areas.

"We're beginning to get a signal at Parkview and things are starting to happen," he said. "It's starting to become a reality."

"I have been questioned as to why the company handling the cabling of Boston only charges a $2 fee while we have a big one," said Selectman Michael Saraco.

"They pay $2 but there is a catch," Pollack said. "You get a certain amount of channels for the $2 but to get expanded service, you need to pay an additional $7 or $8. We feel that up front we're charging virtually the same."

"It (the $2 offer) is a come-on," Selectman Chairman Edward O'Connell said. Pollack said basic service in Winchester, consisting of off-the-air channels and the community channel is $5.95. Expanded service — everything but the movie channels — is $8.95 but does not include the movies.

The super deluxe service, which includes everything, costs $30.95 a month plus an installation fee. However, if residents sign up for service 90 days after contacted, the installation is free.

Pollack said that in his previous experiences, 75 percent of the people who subscribe take the deluxe package.

"You never have to leave your house again with that," Selectman Wade Welch said.

"Now we'll see who the mole-like people of Winchester are," O'Connell added.

Pollack also told the Selectmen that Continental cannot legally make copyrighted movies available in public places.

This means that an organization like the Sons of Italy or the Knights of Columbus cannot show a copyrighted movie.

Pollack defined a public place as anything considered to be a community room.

For those of you who are unfamiliar with what a "Goodies" shop has to offer, let me tell you about mine.

Everything "from soup to nuts."

We are proudest, of course, of those delectables which we produce in our own kitchen. We make a wide variety of interesting and delicious, hot and cold soups, chile, salads, quiche, entrees, pasta sauces, dips and spreads, fresh hors d'oeuvres, breads, croissants, (Wednesdays and Saturdays only), cookies and brownies, tea cakes and fancy desserts.

To compliment our own foods, we offer fine cheese and pates, fresh pastas from Romagna Table, smoked meats, fish and fowl (with no preservatives and low salt content) from Sutherland Smokehouse, Egerman's bagels, cold meats, frozen hors d'oeuvres, a limited line of gourmet groceries and gift items.

About mid-September we will begin work on our Fall and Winter menu. Until that time and the printing of our first catering menu, all catering is arranged on an individual basis. Unpatrolled Reservoirs Abused

By SUSAN SCHNECK

The prospect of impurities such as fishing bait lurking in the depths of the town reservoir had Board of Selectman Michael Saraco fit to be tied at Monday's meeting.

"If I find out that there's bait or anything else in that water, I'll have the state here faster than you can count," he warned.

The topic came up quite incidentally while the Selectmen were discussing the patrolling of the Fells.

The Selectmen had asked the Fire Department for a history of activity in the Fells as part of a study on how to reduce fire damage in the Fells.

Saraco said he discovered about a month ago that the reservoirs were not being patrolled on weekends and during the night. He said he was listening to his scanner and someone was unsuccessfully trying to reach a patroller at the reservoir at about 5 p.m.

"I brought this up at a meeting at that time and I was told that something would be done," he shouted. "What's the point of these meetings anyway if nothing gets done?"

Michael Connolly, a retired Fire Captain, told the Selectmen that boating and fishing occurred there every night and that patrols had been cut back due to Prop. 25.

"If our patrols are not patrolling our drinking water, let's get them patrolling it," Saraco shouted, banging his fists for emphasis. "That's our drinking water and I don't care about costs, fires or anything."

The other Selectmen agreed that the matter was very important and must be attended to immediately rather than waiting until Sept. 21 when they had planned to discuss the patrolling of the Fells.

O'Connell said he plans to be meeting in the next few days with Warrington, the police and fire department chiefs and other town employees to discuss the situation.

Water Superintendent Richard Warrington said the reservoir is patrolled on a steady basis during the week for eight hours a day and that spot checks are made on weekends.

"There is patrolling 40 hours a week but I wouldn't want to say what hours because people could avoid the patrols," he said.

Warrington said patrolling the area is a big problem as it is a large area which must be patrolled by one man.

"Until the day that that area is completely restricted, you really can't control it," he said. "The MDC parkland that surrounds our land makes it even harder to patrol. People are in there for recreational reasons and wish to see that nice pretty area by the reservoir. They walk past 15 to 20 'No Trespassing' signs and sit down eating their lunch or jogging by and say, 'I didn't think the signs meant me.'"

Warrington said patrols have not been cut back recently but added, "We could use all the help we can get with this area."

"I am not at this point going to blow any emergency bugle as Chairman of the Board," O'Connell said. "We do have problems with unwarranted intruders in that area but you cannot guarantee complete protection unless you move a regiment of troops in. There are limitations to the amount of resources a town can deploy."

Pool Fund Is Not Washed Up

The Winchester Pool Fund "Jump In It" sign at the downtown rotary was taken down this last week, but that doesn't mean the effort to get a pool for Winchester is dead.

The committee in charge of raising the $1.3 million needed for the pool has hired a professional fund-raiser to spur donations.

The committee's original door-to-door fund-raising effort sputtered and stopped when donations reached the $120,000 mark.

But committee head Mary Barger said this doesn't mean the community wasn't interested in getting a pool built alongside McCall Jr. High School.

"We weren't at all disappointed in the response from the community," said Barger. "The over-all response was good, and the number of gifts we got was terrific."

"It's just that $1.3 million is an awful lot of money to raise," she continued. "A lot of people contributed, but when you're out to raise that much money, you need large, and I mean large, gifts."

Barger noted the fund had received three $10,000 donations — one from the Winchester Rotary Club — a $5,000 donation from Purity Supreme and several $1,000 gifts.

But gifts of that size were the exception, and the original fundraising effort withered.

So the committee decided to take a new look at their fund-raising technique, and set up a sub-committee to do so.

Evander French, the chairman of that sub-committee, said his group felt they still had a chance to raise the money for the pool.

"We wanted to make one last effort to make this thing go," said French. "Our goal was $1.3 million, but after two years of a varying degree of effort, we'd only reached 10 percent of that goal."

"It was obvious to us that without help, we would not be able to raise the kind of money we needed," he added.

The sub-committee of 2 decided, after three meetings, to hire a professional fundraiser "and see if there was any chance of salvaging the campaign," said French.

After looking at a dozen firms, and interviewing three, the committee decided on Cambridge consultant John King, who worked as a fund-raiser for Harvard University, among other organizations.

King, who will be paid about $3,000 for his six weeks worth of advice, has been meeting occasionally with the sub-committee since the beginning of July.

Ann McGovern, a member of the sub-committee, said her group and King have not made a final decision on how to raise the remaining $1.1 million, but they have arrived at a general plan.

"Apparently, from a professional fundraiser's point of view, we did the whole thing backwards," explained McGovern. "Instead of going door-to-door, as we did, you are supposed to go for the big gifts first."

Once a sizable amount of money has been raised through large donations, McGovern explained, then a professional fundraiser goes to the community to fill in the remaining dollars.

McGovern said King does not anticipate problems raising large sums of money.

"We're aware that there are a number of very generous people in this town who are in the position of being able to make large gifts," she said.

Still, McGovern said she doesn't regret not going to the big-money people first.

"Going door-to-door, we raised more money than anyone ever has in this town," she explained. "That gave us the background to know that the community needed and wanted a pool."

"While from a professional money-raiser's point of view, it may have been backwards, from my point of view it was the way to go, because it showed there was interest," she said.

One option rejected by the sub-committee was to build a less expensive pool, to shorten the gap between the funds raised and the funds needed.

"We discussed the idea with the pool planning committee (which was set up by Town Meeting to design the pool)," French said. "And they convinced us to go for a first-class pool."

"This is a first-rate town and it should have a first-rate pool," added French.

Town Meeting member Harrison Chadwick, the head of the pool design committee, explained the pool was designed by three competent professionals.

Civil engineer Richard Donovan of S. Border rd., geo-technical engineer Steve Poulos of Lincoln st. and architect Eugene Kacek, of Glangarry rd. worked together to design the pool.

"I wouldn't know the first thing about constructing a pool," said Chadwick. "But when you put those three heads together, you're going to come up with something pretty reliable."

The final design for the pool called for it to be constructed abutting the McCall Jr. High gymnasium.

The pool would be 25 meters long and 49 ft. wide — broad enough for seven lanes for laps or six marked lanes for competition.

The pool would have a one meter diving board at one 12-foot-deep end.

The building housing the pool would have seating for 250 spectators, boys and girls locker rooms, an office, a courtyard and a service area.

Planning Board Likes Blackhorse Condo Changes

The Planning Board this week voiced its satisfaction with developer Alfred L. Landry's revised plans for a 28-unit condominium development off Grove pl.

After Landry's second meeting in two weeks with the committee, board member Charles N. Tseckares told Landry, "I think you've been very responsive to our suggestions."

Landry presented the board with a variety of minor adjustments made since last week in the plans for the Blackhorse Common project.

The Planning Board, which previously endorsed the project unanimously, will now recommend the proposal to the Zoning Board of Appeals. The Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing on the project Sept. 10.

At the spring Town Meeting, the almost 11-acre site was rezoned from a residential and conservancy-institutional district to a planned residential district. Among the changes Landry made in his plans at the request of the Planning Board were the addition of charts indicating the size and quantity of plantings and the addition of a curved section in the main road.

The board suggested a few last-minute changes, such as the addition of another curve in the main road and a notation on the plans that the development will be designated as a private way.

Landry said he would consider the board's suggestions.

The board also reemphasized the need to make improvements to Grove pl. The improvements include increasing the street width to 25 feet, building a sidewalk and changing the grade level to less than 5 percent at the Grove st. intersection.

The board reminded Landry that he should obtain a security bond to insure the improvements on Grove pl. are completed.

Holiday Deadlines

News deadlines for copy for the Sept. 10 issue of The Winchester Star will be Friday, Sept. 4. Classified and advertising deadlines will not change and will be Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Mail Rerouting Causes Delay

All the mail routes in Winchester were revised last week to ensure that each route takes eight hours to complete, according to John Moore, Superintendent of Winchester postal operations.

This means that carriers are walking new and different routes, causing some confusion and delays in the distribution of mail, said Moore.

"Any adjustment would be hectic in the beginning," Moore said. "It takes about three weeks to get back to normal."

Moore said that some residents are receiving their mail later and some earlier as a result of the revision. But, added Moore, every route has been delivered each day since the changes were made.

The mail truck on Meadowcroft rd. was also eliminated to save on gas costs.

No positions were cut back or eliminated.

The Winchester Star may be delivered to homes on Friday as a result of the route reshuffling because the papers are divided according to routes which no longer exist.

"It will take at least an extra day to rearrange the papers," Moore said.

An inspection team from the general mail facility in Woburn consolidated the routes because "some men were working less than eight hours but being paid for an eight-hour route," Moore said.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Former Resident Sentenced For Arson

A former Winchester resident was sentenced to two years probation for twice setting fire to her former Wellington rd. home in 1978.

Doris DeStefano, 56, was found guilty on two charges of arson of a dwelling, conspiracy to defraud an insurance company, conspiracy to commit arson and burning a building with intent to defraud.

During the trial in Middlesex Superior Court, DeStefano was accused of scheming with her husband, Leslie Surrette, to destroy their Winchester home to collect insurance on it.

The single-family, split-level ranch house sustained an estimated $20,000 damage in a Jan. 9, 1978 fire and an additional $10,000 damage in another fire 20 days later.

DeStefano's husband, Leslie Surrette, had been scheduled to stand trial with his wife, but failed to appear when the trial began Aug. 12. Judge Francis J. Larkin, who presided over the trial without a jury, issued a warrant for Surrette's arrest.

During the trial, prosecutor William Kennedy presented evidence that the insurance on the home and its contents was raised to $82,000 less than a month before the first fire.

The prosecutor also showed evidence that the couple had rented an apartment under an assumed name in Malden a few days prior to the first fire, and that they had moved many of their personal belongings into it.

After the conviction, Kennedy urged Larkin to jail DeStefano for a minimum of six months, saying Winchester firefighters had twice risked their lives when they entered the burning home.

The judge rejected Kennedy's argument, noting that DeStefano, who now lives in the North End of Boston, suffered great financial losses because of the fires, since her insurance company was not obligated to compensate her for damages.

At 95, She Remains As Busy As A Bee

By JOHN KENNEDY

Marjorie Mason has always expressed a simple creed in life; that is, "keep busy."

Back in 1912, as an enterprising 26-year-old, her motto led her to join 16 other Winchester women who'd banded together to sew linens for the town's fledgling "cottage" hospital, opened that year on the corner of Washington and Lincoln sts.

They called themselves the Winton Club and met once a month at someone's house to socialize, stitch sheets and pillow cases, and, generally, to do what they could to help the financially squeezed predecessor of the current Winchester Hospital.

Mrs. Marjorie Mason, 95, offers a simple key to long life: "Keep busy."

Today, Mason, a resident of Mt. Vernon st., is the sole surviving charter member of the Winton Club. And, she still does keep busy. For, at age 95, Marjorie Mason is still volunteering.

Bright, articulate and independent, Mason puts in one day a month as a volunteer in the hospital's gift shop. No slouch behind the counter, Mason's known as a shrewd salesperson, specializing in the soft sell, a skill she's fostered through a durable part-time sales career at several Winchester shops and businesses.

Looking back over nearly 70 years as a volunteer Mason recalled "I joined the Winton Club because I like working with people and, well, it was fun."

Mason said that this youthful urge for activity led to her current dedication to volunteering. "Something which you've helped start, like the Winton Club, you stay interested in. I've just enjoyed it."

"The spirit of the club is great, and it's wonderful to be part of something so vital. It's amazing how much you can contribute to the hospital," Mason commented.

Mason, whose crisp features, strong voice and 'salt and pepper' hair clearly belie her years, recalled Winchester Hospital as a rather simple affair when she began her volunteer career.

"It started as just an experiment," Mason said of the hospital which, in 1912, had space for 12 patients and was staffed by four visiting nurses.

Recounting the community effort which helped found the hospital, Mason added, "the older women in town raised money to furnish equipment for the operating room. After that was finished, it was up to our younger girls to help out with sewing."

Through her long stint as a Winton member, Mason's been involved in every phase of patient service offered by the volunteer organization. Along with gift shop and coffee cart work, until three years ago, Mason still worked with the Winton committee sewing linens used in Winchester's operating rooms.

Born Marjorie Cutting and a lifelong resident of Winchester, she married Clifford Mason in 1914. Mason maintains close ties with her two children; a son living in Squantum, and a daughter living in South Carolina. But at the same time, she's firmly established her own lifestyle.

"My ties and interests are here in Winchester," Mason insisted. "When you're in one place for a long time, you develop a certain fondness for it. It becomes more important the older you get," she confessed.

Mason said she enjoys her volunteer duties and the "opportunity to cheer people up when they are sick." She credits her vigorous outlook to the early influence of her parents and family friends who directed her to overcome a bout with youthful shyness by "teaching me to help other people."

Mason, a self-avowed liberal, adds this quality has enabled her to keep an interested and informed eye on community and world events. "I try to be tolerant of changing times. After all," she said, "I'm of a different generation."

"It's a changing world, and you have to change with it," Mason continued. "If you can adapt," she added, "you're all right. If you can't, you're in trouble," she said curtly.

On life at age 95, Mason said, "People are very kind and generous to us older folks." "But," she admitted, "so many of my contemporaries are gone ... the young people are kind and solicitous, but it's not the same. I miss that."

"I don't let frustrations trouble me, though," she said. "There's so much in life to enjoy."

Though Mason denies holding any secret tap to a fountain of youth, she does offer some clear insight into her own long life. "I've never had any hobbies, I just keep busy. If you're busy, you're happy," she summarized. "There's a great deal of work for everyone, and you should keep active as long as you can."

Seniors' Fair Coming Up

With less than one month remaining before the opening of the Winchester Seniors Association Fall Fiesta Fair on Oct. 1, a reminder is being given to those people who promised to make hand-made articles for both the holiday and the knit tables.

Anne Feuss, chairperson of the holiday table, is eager to receive any creative work that can be donated such as embroidery, crevel, needlepoint, crocheted items, and other hand-fashioned articles.

May Hamby, chairperson of the knit table, needs all kinds of inner and outer wear, sleepers, socks, mittens, stocking caps, scarves, sweaters etc. It is hoped that such items are in the process of completion by those who have indicated that they will submit them in time for the fair. The gift shop, chaired by Pauline McGuigan and Evelyn Jenks, needs choice glassware, antiques, trays, vases, china, art work of all kinds, silver, gold, pewter, stainless steel, etc. Call the Jenks Senior Center to make arrangements to have your items collected at an early date for pricing.

Donations for all of the other tables will be gratefully received. The Fair Committee is excluding gifts of clothes for reasons of limited space.

Tickets will not be sold at the door since the caterer must know about amounts of food to prepare prior to the meal. Tickets are available at the Jenks Senior Center on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hours: Monday thru Saturday

Total class time is spent learning and improving technique and skills. We are a "training" school with efforts directed to the goal of giving our students a secure foundation in classical ballet technique while developing coordination, rhythm, poise and self-discipline, which is so important to the beginning and intermediate student. We also give the individual guidance and attention to those students who wish to go on and pursue a career as a professional ballet dancer.

Internship Opportunities

August signals the last month of summer vacation and the return of thousands of students to their apartments and dormitories. As colleges and universities gear themselves for the first day of classes, so does the Mass. Internship Office.

Presently underway at the Internship Office is their annual update. This happens each summer so that all the internships listed for the coming academic year are current.

The Mass. Internship Office, located in the State House, is a referral agency and clearinghouse for students seeking the chance to apply their academic studies in a professional setting.

"We list opportunities in nine different interest areas," said Nancy Spadorcia, director of the office. "By the end of August we will have all 450 internship positions updated.

"Among the most popular are positions in law and government, communications, and environmental affairs," she added. "Some students do an internship for the experience and others are able to get academic credit from their schools."

Anyone interested should call the Internship Office for an appointment.

School Positions Open

A few positions are open in both the three-year-old and five-year-old (pre-kindergarten) classes for the 1981-82 school year at the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School. For further information, call Maria Shields of Ware rd., Beverly Jolly, or Ruth McDowell of Main st.

Methodist Nursery School Opens Sept. 21

Orientation for parents and children registered for classes at Methodist Nursery School is scheduled for the morning and afternoon of Sept. 21 and Tuesday morning Sept. 22. Pre-kindergarten children and parents are expected on the 21st; three year old children and parents will attend for the first time on Tuesday, Sept. 22. Our regular class schedule will begin on Tuesday, Sept. 22, for our afternoon class and on Wednesday, Sept. 23, for our morning class.

Methodist Nursery is a non-profit, non-sectarian school open to all children of the community between three years and five years of age. The morning two day session is planned for three year old children experiencing pre-school for the first time. The morning three-day session is a pre-kindergarten class for four year old children. The afternoon session is for pre-kindergartners who have already attended pre-school for one year or who are socially more mature. In addition the afternoon session includes a learning program for children whose parents have decided to defer public school attendance for an extra year. For those children more emphasis is placed on beginning reading and arithmetic skills.

At this time the morning classes are fully enrolled with 20 children in each class and the afternoon four day class is filled. There are a few two-day afternoon openings on Mondays and Wednesdays for four or five year old boys. Please contact the school at 34 Dix st., after Sept. 22 for more information.

Act Now Before It's Too Late To Change

I can recall the grief and guilt of my entire hometown when the 12-year-old boy died foolishly, unnecessarily in a house fire.

The boy could have been saved. The fire was called into the Walpole Fire Department quickly enough. But instead of going to Gould ave., where the boy was lying in a smokey bedroom, the fire dept. headed in the other direction, across town to Gould st.

By the time the fire dept. realized it's mistake, turned the trucks around and headed for the right street, the boy was dead.

Winchester Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia fears the same thing may happen in Winchester.

Ciarcia brought up the problem while the Planning Board was discussing Al Landry's Blackhorse Common development recently.

Blackhorse Common and a few of the other condo developments going up around town, such as the Waterfield Place condos going in the old Washington School, could cause a fatal mix-up during a fire, Ciarcia said.

Trying to tie their developments in with the flavor of Winchester, developers have been giving their projects "historic" Winchester names — Blackhorse Common refers to the town's early Blackhorse Tavern, and Waterfield Place harks back to the original name of Winchester.

The problem with the practice, Ciarcia pointed out, was that developers have been doing this for years. So there is already a Blackhorse terr., and a Waterfield rd.

"If there's a fire in Blackhorse Common say, and somebody calls the fire department, they're going to be excited, and in a hurry," Ciarcia said.

"Maybe the fellow manning the fire department phone will only catch the first word, 'Blackhorse,' and send the boys to Blackhorse terr."

"Then there's going to be trouble," he concluded.

Ciarcia suggested that the town's Traffic Advisory Committee (on which he serves) take a look at the duplication of names, work with the developers, and try to change the names.

The same thing happened in Walpole. A special committee was set up to look at all the street names in town. Two dozen street names were eventually changed, either because the names duplicated the names of other streets in town, or because they sounded like the names of other streets.

But in Walpole, it took a death to get those changes. Let's hope that in Winchester it will only take a wise suggestion.

Eating Habits Are A Major Problem

We Americans are being told we eat too much of the wrong things. What can we do to change our eating habits and those of our families?

It sometimes seems impossible to maintain a balanced diet of nutritious foods when we are constantly barraged with television commercials for soft drinks, sugary snacks, high-fat foods and fast-food restaurants.

Leading American physicians and nutritionists believe that overeating and eating the wrong foods have become a major health problem, and that as a result, about 20 percent of American adults are so overweight that their extra pounds are interfering with good health and longevity.

During the early part of this century, almost 40 percent of all caloric intake was in the form of complex carbohydrates — fruits, vegetables and grain products. Today, we are getting little more than 20 percent of all our calories from these sources, while the saturated fats and sugars we consume make up more than half our total calories.

Americans consumed 76 pounds of sugar per person in 1910. By 1971, that per-person figure had risen to 105 pounds, and the single largest use of sugar — 23 pounds per person — was contained in soft drinks.

Unfortunately, these soft drinks, along with fast foods and "junk snacks," are particularly attractive to young people and adults who are not aware of good nutrition. Since the free sugar contained in such foods does not contain adequate vitamins, those who consume significant amounts of them are especially susceptible to vitamin and mineral deficiencies. In addition, obesity, diabetes and tooth decay are all linked to too much sugar in the diet.

Similarly, some elderly people in urban areas suffer marked vitamin deficiencies because they are unable to get to supermarkets to buy fresh fruits and vegetables, either because they lack readily available transportation or because they are afraid to venture far from their homes. Instead, they live on canned goods from the corner variety store.

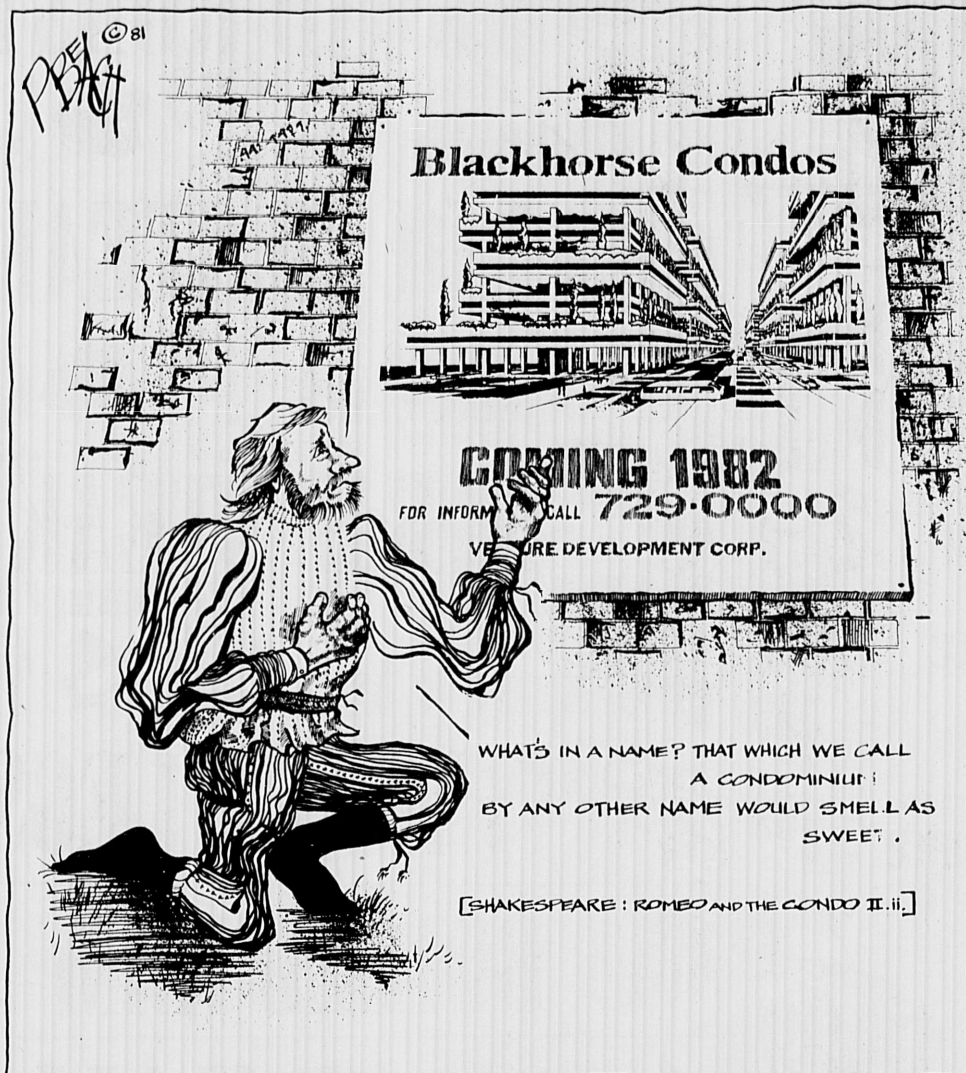

Following extensive studies and legislative hearings, the federal government has set forth a number of dietary goals for American. The guidelines are intended to reverse bad eating habits and promote a well-balanced diet. A good diet should include an emphasis on fresh fruits and vegetables and grain products. There is no need to avoid breads, pastas and potatoes, although too much of these foods can lead to overweight. At the same time, we need only about half as much protein as we now eat, so we should begin to shift away from an excess of meats and dairy products.

We should make fish and chicken a regular part of our diets to reduce cholesterol levels and decrease our chances of heart disease. We should substitute corn oil for butter and consume cheaper cuts of beef, which have less "marbling" of fat. Despite the recent controversy over the role of cholesterol in heart disease, the prudent person will realize that moderation is the key.

We should cut down or eliminate processed convenience foods, which, as pointed out above, are full of sugar and salt (used to mask the flavors of chemicals used in processing); we should prepare more foods in our homes, where we can have some control over the amounts of salt and sugar used.

The increase in high blood pressure among children and adults can be directly traced to the increase in consumption of salt. Foods that contain large amounts of salt, such as processed luncheon meats, bologna and bacon, should be eaten sparingly.

This "Matter of Health" was produced with the cooperation of the physicians in the Clinical Nutrition Unit of University Hospital-Boston University Medical Center.

Letters To The Editor

Enforce Contracts With Developers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Judging by the Star's article on the Wedgewood Condominiums, it seems that the building being built on Main st. is not the one approved by the Planning Board. It leaves out promised features, perhaps put in to secure town approval but cheaper for the builder to leave out. This scenario, completed by the disappearance of the original developer, a takeover by another who increases the scale of the project, and accusations from a chorus of irate abutters, is unfortunately all too familiar in the building industry. Surely, it's something the Planning Board should have been watching out for while construction has been going on, only a short distance from Town Hall.

What to do? Without doubt Winchester benefits in the long run if developers see that they must adhere to agreements made between themselves and the town, represented by the Planning Board. In this case, restoration of the promised "residential details" might be insisted on. Only a few years ago, the town forced a resident to tear down his child's tree house, because in standing too near the lot line it violated the zoning regulations. If enforcement was thought necessary in that trivial case, it is far more advisable now, when so much more affecting our present and future suburban environment is at stake.

Sincerely,
Sergei P. Sorokin

Pay Women For Work Done At Home

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was listening to Channel 5 on Sun. noon and they were discussing the E.R.A. I am in agreement with their program. What do men think when they get married? Some of them are real mean ones. For example, they look upon their mates as housekeepers who don't know anything period.

Women should be paid for their labors such as wife, mother, taxi driver, nurse, etc. Some are expected to do their work whether they are ill or not and wait on everyone and usually without respect. This business of people saying, you earn respect is nonsense!

Men take their wives for granted and never miss them until they go and then wonder why things are all piling up — even bills. There is a saying and it goes like this, "Take care of the first for the second is far worse and you long for the old one again."

At least 8 out of 10 women are decent loyal wives. This I know.

What about a salary for mothers and for the ones who stay home bored because of the same thing each day.

Sincerely,
Louise Chase
P.S. Did you ever sit down to a nice meal with your family and get up and wonder how long it took your wife with (love in her heart) to prepare it? I bet you did not in most cases.

Reflections On The Autumn Season- A Chance To Wonder

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Recently, I wrote your paper concerning a procedure at the town dump. To my surprise, it appeared in your paper two weeks hence. I must thank you for the public exposure of a situation which concerned me very much — whatever the final outcome.

I now write to you with a small essay about this time of year and the thoughts it can inspire in all of us. I hope you can find room to print it somewhere in your paper in the coming weeks — not for my notoriety, but for the chance for your readers to share some thoughts of another resident of their town about a time of the calendar year which most of us may consider sad, maybe even depressing. It doesn't have to be.

Sincerely,

will bring. Others, aware of the inevitable end that all life faces and the thought they are one year closer to it than last year, will scurry to bring about a year that will be better than the one past, chasing their ideals as they chase the vanishing summer.

Still others will plod on, expecting neither the worst nor the best, aware of the mundanity of their lives yet unable to provide the stimulus needed for change. Habitually seated in their lives, as a tall Norway maple's roots in the glacial soil on this continent at this latitude.

It is the time of year to wonder about such things, to question all of the aspects, both good and bad that combine to create all of the lives of all of humanity. Each and every person a unique example of life itself. In youth a piece of wet clay, eager for a chance to mold itself an image — in old age, dry and inflexible, yearning for another opportunity to be young.

Perhaps it is the unending progression of daylight's recedence. Perhaps it is the sad face of a young school girl in her first experience away from home. Or maybe an old man on a park bench, holding his cane, staring off into space as the brown leaves fall silently behind him.

Whatever the image we all have of time and life passing by, this is the season to uncover it — to expose and dissect its meaning; to experience the emotion it can create in all of us.

As the approaching winter strips the leaves from the trees — allowing new growth in the spring — so can we think of starting again, infused with the hope and senses of childhood.

Sincerely,
Bill Blagg

I Wonder, Do Dogs Have Rights Too

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wonder if dogs have rights too? I'd been meaning to bring this to your attention for some time, but yesterday when my sister got spayed, and then came home very sore and sad, I decided to write you to change a discriminatory law.

Male dogs are licensed at a lower fee than are female dogs who are not spayed. If a female dog is spayed, the male rate is the fee. This is highly unjust due to the fact that it also takes a male to increase the dog population.

I suggest that all you humans out there who discuss unfair laws, discrimination, the ERA, etc., get this one off the books.

This week, The Star asked the students of Winchester whether they were ready to go back to school, and what they wanted to do before they had to go back.

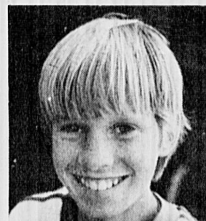

Brian Romer
5th Grader

No, I'm not ready. I want to blow all my money on an arcade first.

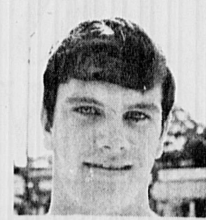

Glen Doherty
6th Grader

No, I want to go on a good vacation, like to Lake Winnepesaukee and go water skiing.

Greg Doherty
7th Grader

No, I just want to have a good time before I go back. I want to win $1000 in the Coca-Cola bottle cap contest. We've already won $4.75.

Jim Feeley
High Schooler

Not really. I just want to enjoy the summer while it's here and get ready for football season.

Dustine Barbuto
4th Grader

Kinda. I like learning and I like art class especially. Before school starts, I'd like to go to Nantasket Beach, to Paragon Park. My father owns a hotel next to Paragon Park.

Jean Romeo
High School Sophomore

No, I just don't want to go back. There's too much work, and we want to be able to see all our friends.

Jazz Band Cancels

The New Black Eagle Jazz Band, scheduled to kick off Discover Winchester Day Fri. night, Sept. 18, will not be here.

The band has informed the Chamber of Commerce that two people were handling their bookings and accidentally scheduled two performances for the same evening.

However, Chamber Executive Director Rita Spence said she is now working on rescheduling the concert. It looks like we will have them for Oct. 16," she said.

Things are going very smoothly for Discover Winchester Day on Sept. 19 and Spence said she is sure everybody will have a good time.

"The energy is really up for this," she said.

Singers Sought

The North Parrish Choral Society of Andover is now recruiting vocalists for the upcoming 81-82 season.

The society's first concert will kick-off a string of exciting performances. Mozart's Missa Brevis in B-flat, complete with two vocal quartets and organ accompaniment will highlight the season opener, Friday evening, Oct. 9 at Methuen Music Hall.

"Winter-On-Avon", an original composition by music director, Marie Stultz, will be premiered this Christmas. And the St. Valentine's Day Revels, an evening of Elizabethan merry-making, will be presented this Feb.

FAA regulations, instituted in 1977 require that animals carried into an aircraft cabin be in carriers no larger than 19 inches long, 17 inches wide and 7 1/2 inches high. This allows only for a very small pet. Larger pets, which go into the baggage compartment, must be in containers "large enough for the animal to sit and stand." Most big jets, allocate enough space for 6 of these larger, well-ventilated containers. It is wise to write "LIVE ANIMAL" on the outside of the container, and naturally, it should be leakproof.

Barones Meet With Secretary Of Defense Caspar Weinberger

Dr. and Mrs. William D. Barone of School st. recently heard a private critique by Defense Sec. Caspar W. Weinberger on foreign affairs and policy.

Weinberger's critique was given at the Bar Harbor, Maine, home of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Phillips, where the Barones were staying as house guests.

Weinberger was in Bar Harbor to speak to the Maine Council of the Navy League of the United States, and to receive an award from the Boston Council of the Navy League. The award was presented in recognition of Weinberger's outstanding interest and contribution to the Boston Council and to the U. S. Navy.

The secretary spoke to well over 150 people at the award dinner, held at the Harbor Club, stating that, "The United States must regain ground lost to the USSR."

Later, Weinberger spoke at the Phillips home to several guests, including the Barones.

Dr. and Mrs. Barone have been with the World Affairs Council of Boston for many years and have prepared public relations formats on foreign policies and domestic issues for Republican candidates and presidents. The most successful was the King-Faisal-Sadat-Nixon Summit Meeting in Cairo in 1974 that ended the Oil Embargo. This was created and initiated by Dr. Barone.

★ Garbage

dump and I don't want to carry messy garbage.

Chadwick also noted that he has not heard of any other town that has discontinued garbage collection.

"When I tell people the town of Winchester can't pick up garbage, people just don't believe me," he said.

"There will be a good and full debate on garbage collection once again," O'Connell concluded.

Also promising to spark a "good and full debate" will be an article on accessory housing.

Although this item was scheduled for the last Town Meeting, it never reached the floor as there were some questions over the legality of the article.

Constance Williams, a member of the League of Women's Voters, once again presented her plan to the Selectmen. Williams and other League members hope to change the current town laws prohibiting two kitchens in one home.

"Some of our one-family houses could be much more effectively used if accessory apartments were allowed," Williams said. "Especially for people who are single-nesters."

Williams will officially present the article to the Selectmen at their meeting Sept. 14 but it was discussed Monday so she could get some feedback from the board.

And she did get quite a lot of feedback.

The Selectmen specifically spoke out against two of the rules included in last year's article. One of the rules limits the number of apartments allowed in a precinct and the other places an age limit on houses before apartments can be built so that the article would only apply to older houses.

Calling the whole issue a "sticky wicket," O'Connell said these rules appeared to be discriminatory.

Williams said the age requirement on houses was included so that people would not build houses with the intent of converting them to accessory apartments. She added that she was open to suggestions from the Selectmen and would like to draw up an article which they would support.

"Some of these requirements appear discriminatory to me," said Welch. "But that still does not mean that it you strike them from the rules that I will support it. There is the question of who in Winchester supports this and the question of whether they will support it and wish they did not later."

"The rules are written so owners cannot change the appearance of their houses," Williams said. "They are stringent and in other places like Concord where they have had accessory apartments the people have not been overwhelmed."

"I'm having some philosophical wrestling in my mind with the age requirement on the houses," O'Connell said. "I have difficulty with anything that comes across as being discriminatory."

O'Connell said the issue also exposes a "raw nerve" which is not as tangible as age or percentage requirements — the possibility of changing the character of the town.

"There is an abstract element to this that doesn't show up in the surveys but might bloody well show up on Town Meeting floor," O'Connell said. "We can anticipate a debate on that."

Yet a third controversial subject for Town Meeting surfaced Monday night. Chadwick told the selectmen that the Rules Committee will report on absentees at Town Meeting.

"It's a hot potato," Chadwick said. After the meeting, O'Connell said there has been quite a problem regarding absentees.

"People who offer themselves or get elected as Town Meeting members should have some sense of obligation in fulfilling their services," he said. "But some of them have flagrantly bad attendance records."

"I, myself, take a dim view of people who are elected to serve and don't," he continued.

O'Connell said an even more difficult problem regarding absentees is with people who leave Town Meeting early.

"People sign in at about 7:30 or 8 and slip off into the night at 8:15," he noted. "All you have to do is compare the total votes counted in the first part of the evening with the latter part. It drops from about 156 to 110."

"I find that very distressing," he emphasized.

★ Impresario

tickets were sold.

But Worcester's attitude toward Murdock has changed. Now he's looked upon as the one man willing to invest his time and cash to bring classical music to Worcester.

Murdock is actually having a more difficult time in Boston, trying to lure concert-goers away from the well-established Celebrity Series. Frankly, Murdock thinks he's got a better product.

"Our only concern is quality and price," said Murdock, "and that's something the Celebrity Series can't offer."

"Because it's so large, because it has to appeal to such a broad range of people, the Celebrity Series has to take an occasional group which, although good, isn't first-rate."

"Since we're offering 10 concerts in Boston as opposed to 50, we can be a little bit more discriminating," he added.

Murdock welcomes the competition from the B.U. Celebrity Series.

"Having two concert series in town has merit," he said. "It's a healthy thing. Competition gives me the incentive to try to put on the best, at a lower price than the capitalism."

Murdock has managed to put on some of the best in the three years the concert series has run. Last year, hundreds of fans were turned away at the Symphony Hall door, unable to get a seat for Yehudi Menuhin violin concert.

Murdock brought the Academy of St.

Martin-in-the-Fields, "the most famous chamber orchestra in the world, and the biggest record sellers of any classical group," to Worcester for the first time.

"People literally broke down the doors to see them," noted Murdock.

Flamenco guitar genius Andres Segovia was also brought to Worcester by Murdock. And this next season, Murdock plans to bring Ivo Pogorelich, the piano wizard who claims he is the reincarnation of Franz Liszt, to Symphony Hall for his Boston debut.

Murdock said he feels it is important to bring young artists like Pogorelich to Boston, and to "see the artist as his career develops."

"That is what a promoter, above all, is supposed to do," he said.

Murdock also feels it is important for him to keep in touch with the great orchestras of Europe, by touring the continent.

"Being in Europe puts you in touch with the source of classical music," he explains. "Having been to Prague, for example, I know that every chamber orchestra in that country is first rate. They take their music that seriously."

"I could bring an unknown orchestra from Prague to Boston, and the average guy in the street will say 'who's that?'" he continued. "But I know if that guy goes to see them, he will walk out of the hall satisfied."

Murdock is considering starting tours of Europe, to let others in on the "source." Murdock will be the tour guide, lecturer on classical music — always the organizer.

But he won't stray too far from his career as an impresario. Once the Boston series can stand on its own, and the Worcester series is an institution, maybe, he said, he'll move to Europe, take a break.

"I also want to get more involved in family things — I like mowing the lawn, I like to work on cars," he said.

But the rewards of those pleasures can't compare with the rewards of his business.

"For me, this is a dream come true," he said. "Very few people in this world are allowed the privilege of deciding what they want to do and having it work out. I have."

★ Assault

permission, out of the way of traffic.

Hill's report said that as he was getting out of the car after moving it into a driveway across the street, the driver stood outside the car and punched him in the mouth.

Hill's report said he and the driver then struggled and rolled to the ground beside the car. But the report said that as Hill was about to handcuff the driver, the passenger of the car grabbed Hill from behind.

Hill's report said he got up and grabbed the passenger and forced him against the side of a building.

The report said the driver then came back and punched Hill from behind. Hill's report said he then threw the driver to the ground and ran to a call box for help. The suspects fled as a police car approached, according to Hill.

Winchester police soon thereafter captured a man Hill identified as the passenger and Woburn police caught a man Hill identified as the driver.

The former, a 22-year-old man, was charged with assaulting a police officer. The latter, a 16-year-old boy who Hill said originally identified himself as being 23, was charged with assaulting a police officer, driving while intoxicated, driving without a license and driving without a registration.

When the two go to court Sept. 17, the suspects' lawyer will file an appearance. At that time, the lawyer will indicate whether he wants the case to be heard by a single judge or whether he wants to skip that stage and go directly to a six-member jury at Lowell District Court.

The Enka Society was formed by five Winchester High School girls in 1902, in response to a secret society formed by the boys.

Immaculate Conception Jubilee Sept. 13

The Immaculate Conception Parish, Winchester-Woburn will celebrate its Fiftieth Anniversary between September 1981 and May 1982. The Parish comprises a portion of Woburn and Winchester which formerly were part of Saint Charles Parish and Saint Mary's Parish.

The first Parish Mass was celebrated in the Noonan School Auditorium, Winchester on September 28, 1931 by the newly appointed Pastor, Rev. James F. Fitzsimons. Four months later the original Church was opened on Sheridan Circle, Winchester with a Mass on January 24, 1932.

The first event of the Golden Jubilee celebration will be a Mass in the Parish Church celebrated by Most Rev. John J. Mulcahy, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Boston.

Following the Mass there will be a gala "Funday" family picnic at the McDonald Field (formerly Loring), Winchester. All families of the Parish and former parishioners are invited to attend and participate in the various activities. There will be races, pony rides, pie and watermelon eating contests, softball game, music by Queensmen, Disc Jockey and dancing, etc. A birthday cake and ice cream will be served at approximately 4:30 p.m.

Star Crossword

By Marjorie Pedersen

(Confetti, Synd. 1981)

And we thought the Mystery Photo contests were popular!

The first Winchester Star Crossword Puzzle drew an amazing turnout of contestants despite several errors in the clues. One clue was missing altogether while several across and down clues were mixed up. What a challenge to decode our system and then answer the puzzle correctly!

This week we have all the bugs worked out and challenge you puzzle types to try again. For each of the first four weeks of the Star Crossword Puzzle, we are offering a prize of a pair of tickets to either the Red Sox or the Bruins.

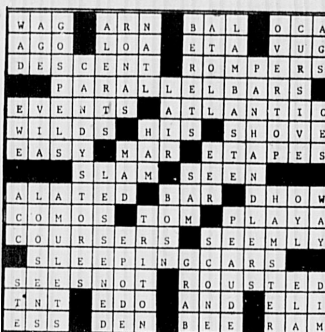

To win, completed puzzle must be received by 4 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8. Mail or bring your puzzle to The Star, 3 Church St., Winchester 01890. Correct answers will be dropped into a hat and a winner will be drawn.

Star Sports

It's That Time Of Year Again

Summer's over.

Forget about falling leaves, closing pools and dying grass. The tell-tale sign that a new season has begun came sometime Monday morning, when the first drop of sweat was shed somewhere on a high school practice field.

And fans of Winchester High sports teams should cheer for the turn in the seasons, because this is the time when local teams, by and large, win most frequently.

To prepare for the upcoming season, many of the fall teams were out practicing Monday morning on the first day of double sessions. The week is grueling, but also builds character, which comes in handy during the long season.

One team that was out shaping up this week was the football team. The Sachems are coming off an impressive 8-2 record and hope to get off the mark as fast as they did last year, when they went 6-0 during the first half of the season.

The team finished in second place in the Middlesex League and culminated its season with a heart-pounding win against arch-rival Woburn on Turkey Day. The 7-6 win against Woburn broke a two game losing streak for the Sachems on Thanksgiving in the 75th meeting between the two clubs.

The football team will see how far they've progressed during its first week in a scrimmage 10 Friday morning at Chelmsford.

The boys' soccer team also will have a scrimmage Friday at 10 after a week of double sessions when they duel Arlington at home.

Last year, the team lost to Billerica in the semi-finals of the Northern Regionals by a score of 1-0 at Boston University's Alumni Stadium. The fluke, decisive goal came during a rain-soaked game when the ball slipped through the goalie's hands.

The end of the season was a disappointing finale to an impressive 22-3 year for the team.

The girls' soccer team also is coming off an outstanding season. Last year, the team reached the semi-finals of the state tournament before dropping a hard-fought game to Concord, 2-1. Concord went on to become the state champions for the second year in a row.

The team has a bright future, with players from last year's undefeated freshmen team moving up to join the upperclassmen.

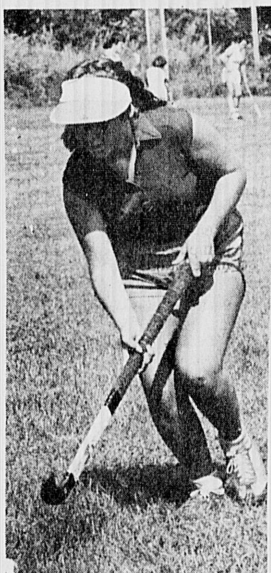

Field hockey players were also out shaping up during the week. After a rough start last year, the team came on with a flourish as the season entered its second half. The team will try to keep that momentum going into this season.

Perennial powerhouses Melrose, Woburn, Lexington and Wakefield will try to keep Winchester from climbing to the top of the pack.

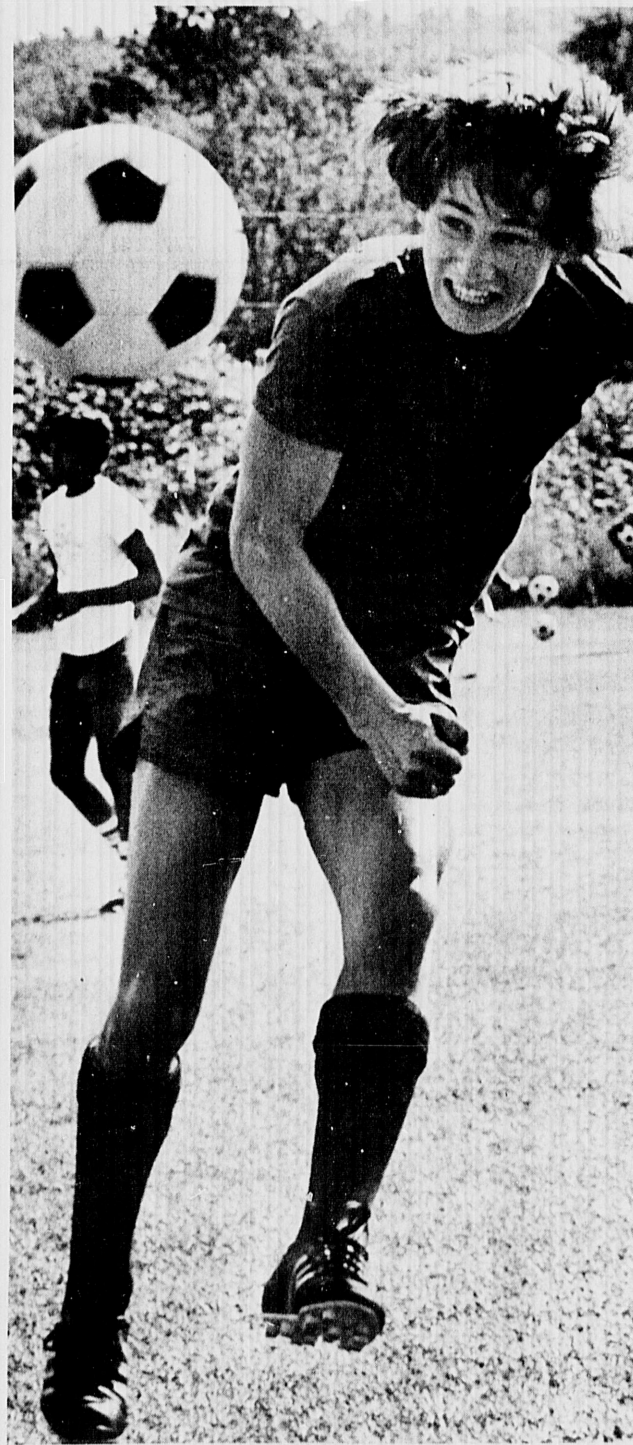

The cross country teams, which began practicing Monday evening, also expect to perform well. The boys' team, coming off a 3-6 season, hope to improve their record this year while the girls' team, coming off a 9-0 record as Middlesex League champions, will be happy with a repeat performance.

The swim team and the golf team will begin practicing after this week.

Next week's Star will include previews of all the high school fall sports teams as well as schedules for what promises to be another exciting sports season in Winchester.

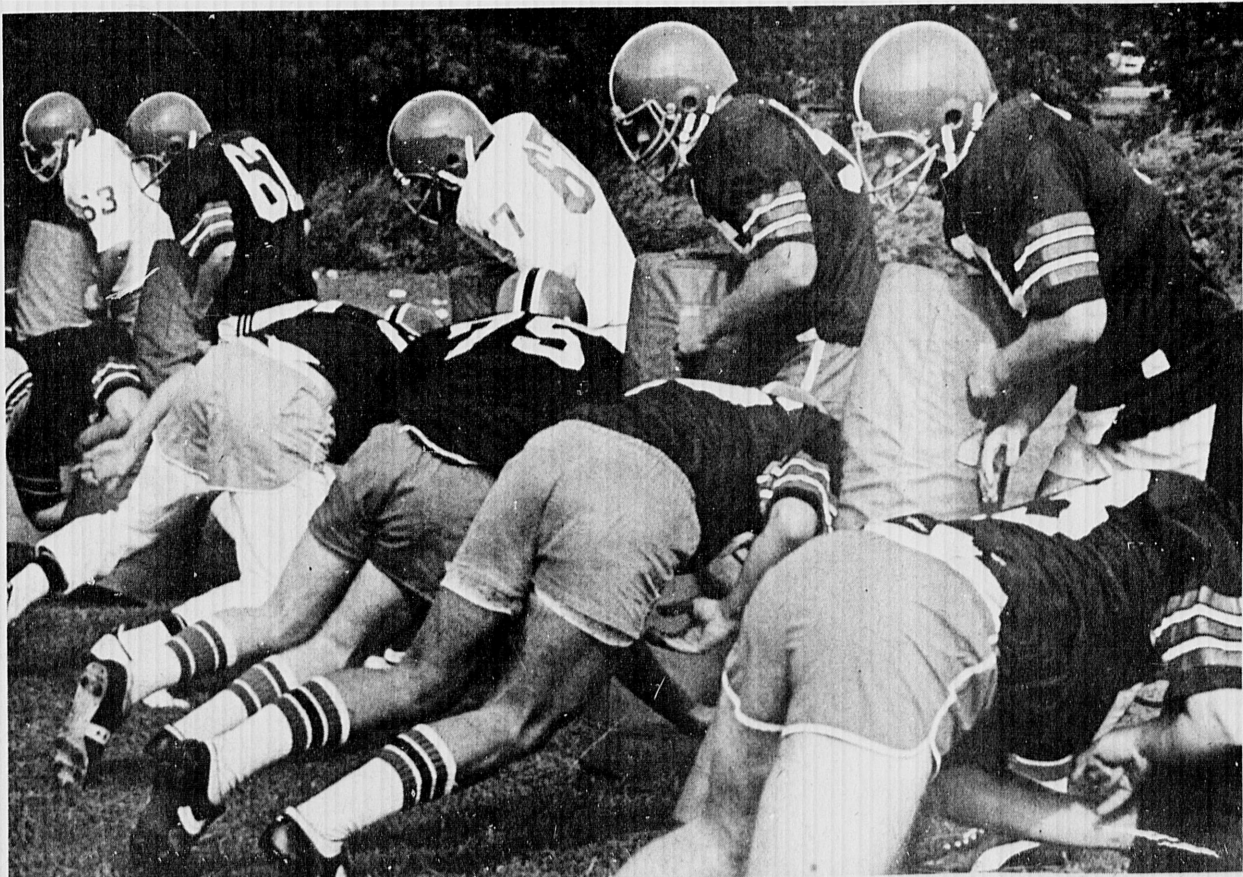

Fall Sports Preview Next Week

Williamson Wins Trophy For Regatta Victory

John Williamson of the Winchester Boat Club won the Tom Curtin Jr. Trophy in a regatta sponsored by the Yacht Racing Union of Massachusetts Bay.

This event, the junior (age 14-17) single-handed championship, was held at the Wollaston Yacht Club on July 11.

Williamson won two of the seven races, which were held in Quincy Bay. The regatta outcome was in question until the last race when Williamson beat his nearest competitor by two boat lengths.

Williamson's victory at Wollaston entitled him to enter the New England junior championship, which was held at the Portland Yacht Club in Falmouth, Me. on Aug. 11 and 12.

There were six entries in this event who represented the top junior sailors from Maine to Rhode Island.

The regatta was sailed in light to moderate breezes, and, on the first day, in dense fog.

The winner was from Bristol, R.I. Winchester Boat Club sailors won two trophies in each of two fleets at the National Ten Association Junior Championship, hosted by the Cottage Park Yacht Club in Winthrop.

The National Ten is a popular training boat for young sailors and is the boat used in the WBC sailing program.

The Silver Fleet event was won by Debbie Cahill. Bill Brady took third place. Third place in the Gold Fleet was taken by John Williamson with Denise Adams placing fifth.

There were ten entries from the boat club. In addition to the above were Sean O'Connor, Kerry Price, Joseph Abate, Leslie Levaggi, Paula Ricciardelli, and Laura Weylman.

High Blood Pressure And Hypertension

Approximately 60 million Americans suffer from high blood pressure, yet in only about 10 percent of these cases can the condition be traced to a specific cause, such as kidney disease or a hormonal abnormality. The remaining 90 percent of cases are called "essential hypertension," meaning hypertension, or high blood pressure, that has no known cause. What is known, however, is that hypertension is not caused by being "hyper" or tense.

Some scientists think that a hereditary sensitivity to salt in the diet may be a cause of high blood pressure, because hypertension is virtually unheard of in societies that do not consume salt. Even though the cause is not fully understood, doctors now have the ability to lower blood pressure in every person with hypertension.

High blood pressure affects people of all ages, but it is most common in persons over the age of 40. Although it may run in families, many persons with a strong family history of high blood pressure may never develop it.

When checking your blood pressure, your doctor writes down two numbers. Systolic pressure, the number on the top, represents the blood pressure in the arteries when the heart is pumping blood. The number on the bottom, called diastolic pressure, is the pressure in the arteries when the heart is filling with blood for the next beat. A systolic pressure greater than 140 is considered elevated; persons whose diastolic pressure remains higher than 90 or 95 have high blood pressure. A diastolic reading over 95 means that even when the heart is at rest, the pressure in the arteries is too high.

What can be done about high blood pressure? If you are overweight, your doctor may suggest that you lose weight to reduce the strain on your heart. Since salt appears to be an important factor in high blood pressure, he or she may suggest reducing your salt intake. Even more effective in lowering blood pressure is the use of diuretic drugs which wash out excess salt in the body.

Even though you may be taking a diuretic, it is important to restrict your salt intake. This means avoiding junk foods and snack foods that are heavily salted and not adding salt to your food. Herbs, spices and fresh lemon juice are pleasant and healthy salt substitutes.

Such moderate exercise as brisk walking may be part of the therapy your doctor suggests in treating your high blood pressure. He or she also will suggest that you learn to relax and get plenty of sleep. Blood pressure is lowest when we sleep and rises when we are awake and active.

Drinking excessive amounts of alcohol can, among other harmful effects, cause damage to the heart muscle. However, a person with high blood pressure may drink alcohol in moderation. Remember, though, that alcohol is high in calories, so if you are trying to lose weight, you may want to restrict your alcohol intake.

Smoking, another risk factor in coronary heart disease and hardening of the arteries, should be reduced or eliminated if your doctor tells you that you have high blood pressure.

This Matter of Health was prepared in cooperation with the physicians and staff of the Hypertension Section of the Evans Medical Group of University Hospital in Boston. Readers may suggest topics for future Matters of Health by writing to Box H, University Hospital, Boston, Ma. 02118.

SPRINKLERS CUT HOME FIRES

Anti-fire ceiling sprinklers can be appearing in the home within a few years, following the lead of the widely-accepted smoke detectors. Work has been progressing for two years in the development of a low-cost, effective residential sprinkler system.

Federal officials, now setting standards for a model residential system, estimate home sprinklers could reduce home fire deaths by up to 80 percent and cut residential property losses by 90 percent.

Research has shown that most home fires can be contained in the room of origin — and often extinguished — with the sprinkler system using about 6 gallons of water per minute. Sprinklers may not be able to put out all fires, but they can usually control a fire for 15 to 20 minutes so the occupants can get out and the fire service can get in. When the fire service does get there the fire has been kept to one room so they normally would have very little trouble doing it. Sprinklers would not be used to replace smoke detectors or fire departments.

Residential sprinklers would be used with smoke detectors to save lives and help firefighters by containing the flames.

Red Cross Collects 48 Pints At K Of C

Sixty-eight area residents presented themselves at last week's summer blood drive which was held at the K of C Hall in Winchester and co-sponsored by the Winchester and Woburn K of C councils and the Red Cross.

Forty-eight units of blood were collected for use during this Blood Need Alert period. Volunteer-in-charge at the drive Mary Fowle summed up the results by saying, "It was a really nice turn-out for this time of year, actually better than expected. Our goal was 40 collected units and we bettered that by eight."

"There was a much higher than usual number of deferees," she added, explaining that "many resulted from the recent switch back to the fingerprick method for obtaining a hemoglobin sample. It was a decision made at the request of the FDA to safeguard the health of potential donors."

Volunteering at the Drive were Nancy Burgatti, Jeff Blank, Molly Davis, Peggy McLaughlin, Lou Maroney, Gertrude Parker, Mary Beaton, Marion Smith, Ruth Stevens, Angela Dyson, Susan Taylor, Pauline Barkalow and Mary Fowle.

The Blood Alert remains in effect. While an extra thousand units were collected statewide over the last two weeks, thereby avoiding a crisis, total supplies remain at marginal levels approaching the Labor Day weekend. Red Cross donor centers are open in the evenings. If you missed last week's drive and would like to donate before Labor Day, call the Red Cross at its Church st. office.

Surgery Makes Prime Time

One of the world's smallest color television cameras has recently made orthopedic surgery procedures a prime time event at Winchester Hospital.

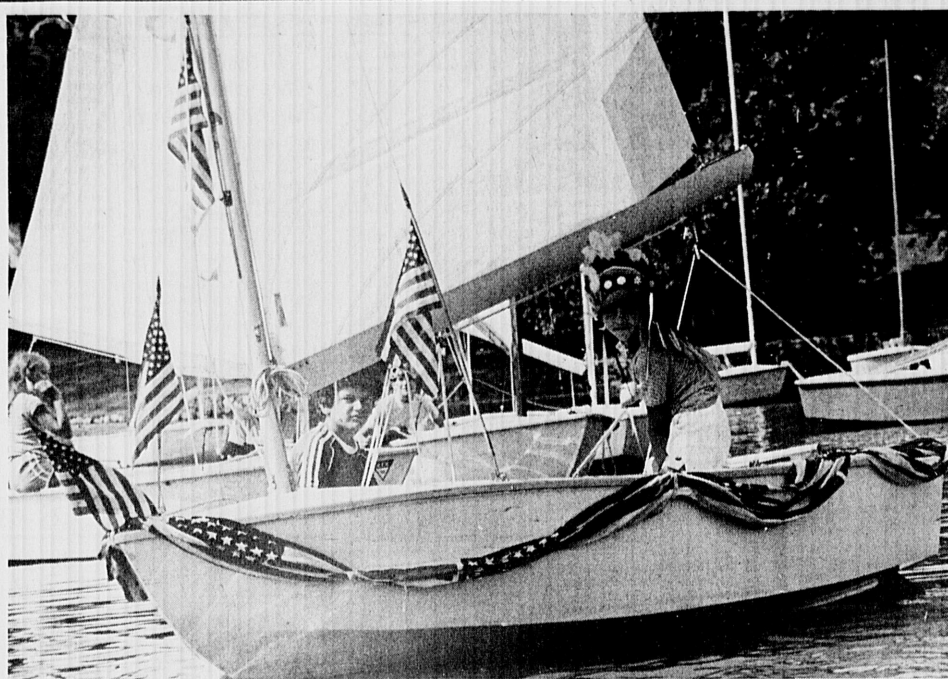

The camera, roughly the size and weight of a small flashlight, was introduced Aug. 31 as part of a fiber optics video system used in performing diagnostic and operative arthroscopy at the hospital.

Funding for the new system's purchase has come under the terms of a private grant made to Winchester Hospital.

Arthroscopy is performed for an average 5-10 patients a week at the hospital.

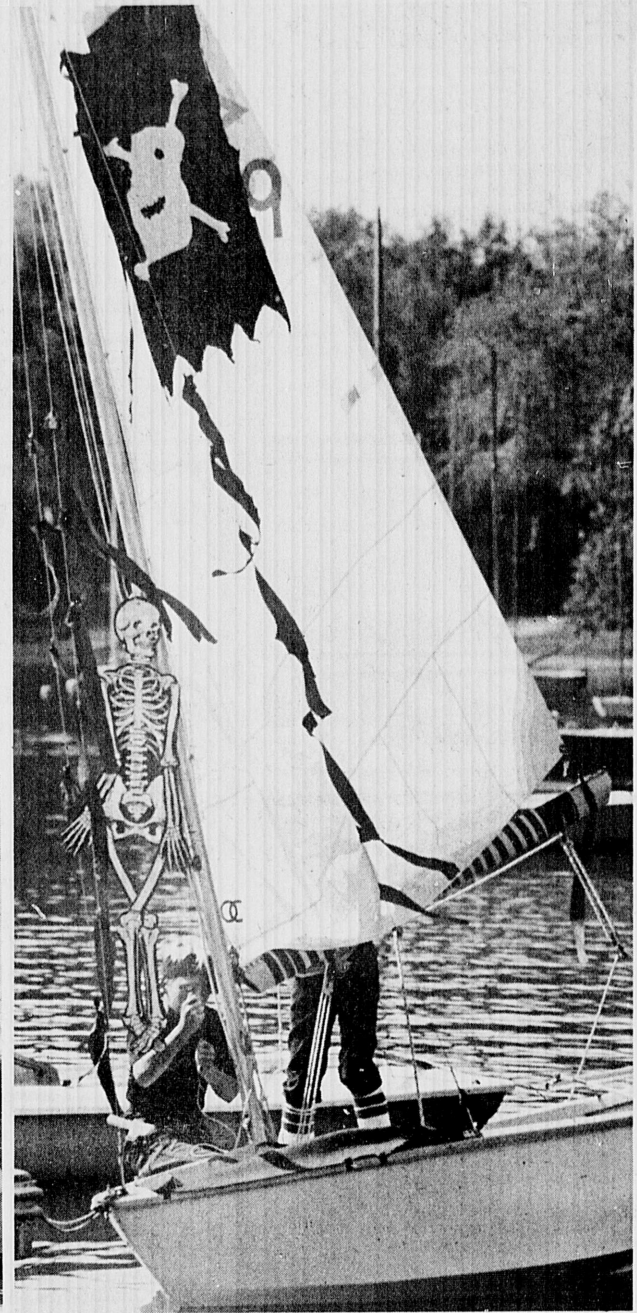

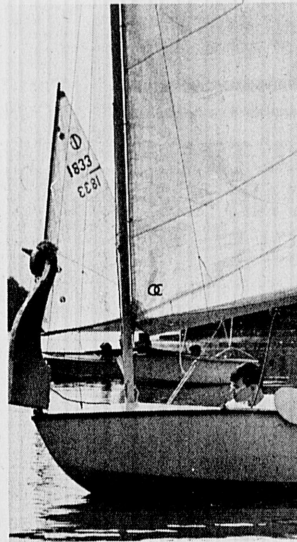

In the procedure an arthroscope, or small telescope, is inserted into the joints through a small incision in the skin. The color camera is attached to this scope and projects the image inside the joint onto a television screen in the operating room. Surgeons are able to see and assess cartilage damage by viewing this televised internal image.

Arthroscopy can eliminate the need for extensive surgery, and has proved beneficial in reducing patient's convalescence, surgeons claim.

SAILING FANTASIES—The Winchester Boat Club called it a "Crazy Rig" sailboat contest and crazy it was. The race last week involved the participants in the club's 10-week sailing course who culminated their summer with a challenge to decorate their boats and race them. Caffeine Affects People In Different Ways

Because caffeine is a drug, you will probably experience "withdrawal" symptoms if you go cold turkey.

Caffeine is a drug, and like any drug, it can affect different people in different ways. In general, however, small to moderate amounts of caffeine pose no health danger.

What happens if we drink too much caffeine? The symptoms of an "overdose" of caffeine include nervousness, anxiety, irritability, muscle-twitching, jitteriness and insomnia. Office workers and waitresses — anyone who has continued access to coffee throughout the day or evening — are prime candidates for caffeine "overdose" symptoms.

For some people, it may take only two cups of coffee to produce these symptoms. For others, it may take several more. Most healthy persons can safely consume in one day three to four cups of coffee or other beverages containing caffeine, such as tea or colas without side effects.

The full long-term effects of too much caffeine are still unknown, but studies have shown that there may be some relationship between coffee drinking and high blood pressure. And anyone with an ulcer can tell you that too much coffee can aggravate the ulcer, since it increases the production of stomach acid and delays the ulcer's healing process.

Other studies have shown a possible link between too much caffeine consumed by pregnant women and resulting birth defects in their babies. This has been a topic of considerable debate, and additional studies are being conducted in this area. Until more definitive information is available, most doctors suggest that pregnant women and nursing mothers use caffeine products sparingly, if at all, since caffeine gets into the blood stream.

What happens if you are a heavy coffee drinker and you decide to give it up or markedly decrease your daily consumption? Because caffeine is a drug, you will probably experience "withdrawal" symptoms if you go cold turkey. You may suffer from a painful, throbbing headache, lethargy and irritability. However, these symptoms disappear after a day or two, and you may consider drinking coffee again, this time on a much more restricted basis, perhaps a cup or two a day.

Coffee is not the only food product that contains caffeine. Tea, cola drinks, chocolate, and such drugs as aspirin compounds, cold remedies, and "stay awake" drugs contain caffeine.

Because there is no "right" amount of caffeine a person can safely ingest, it may be helpful for you to become aware of the caffeine content in some of these food products and drugs so you can decide for yourself how much or how little caffeine you want to ingest.

One cup of regular, brewed coffee (about five ounces) contains between 100 and 150 milligrams of caffeine. Percolated coffee contains less caffeine than drip-style coffee. Instant coffee contains 66 milligrams, while decaffeinated coffee has three milligrams. Decaffeinated brewed coffee has a few more.

Brewed tea contains 30 to 50 milligrams, depending on how strong you like your tea, while instant tea has about 30. The caffeine content of cola drinks ranges from about 61 milligrams for Dr. Pepper to 34 for Diet Pepsi. Five ounces of cocoa contain 13 milligrams, and one ounce of milk chocolate contains 6 milligrams.

The caffeine content in over-the-counter drugs ranges from 200 for Vivarin to 32 for many aspirins and aspirin compounds. Most cold preparations that contain caffeine have about 30 milligrams of caffeine in them.

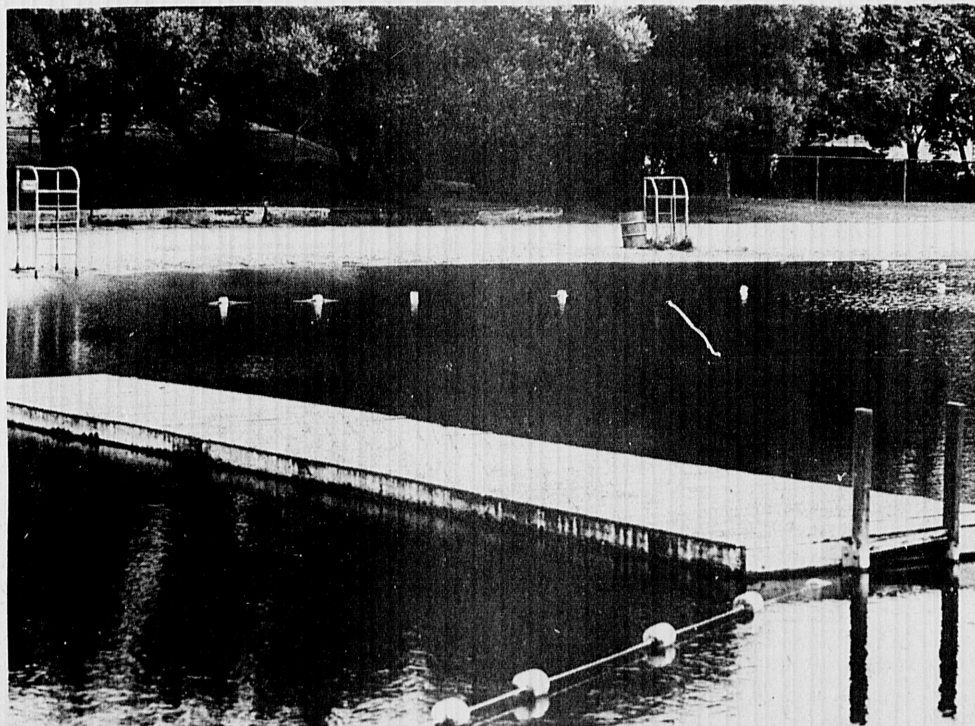

What constitutes a "reasonable" or "unreasonable" amount of caffeine everyday varies from person to person. Children who drink more than one or two soft drinks containing caffeine and adults who regularly consume more than three caffeine-containing drinks should give some thought to modifying this habit.

DUCK'S BEST FRIEND—Any visitor to the Duck Pond draws a feathered crowd but one with a loaf of bread is real popular. Keith Bonn of Pond Street was one of the ducks' most popular visitors Saturday afternoon.

BEACH CLOSED TEMPORARILY—Recreation Director Kenneth Cereghino announced that the two town beach facilities, Leonard (above) and Wedge, will be closed for the week of Aug. 31 through Sept. 4, but will reopen for the three-day period (Labor Day weekend) of Sept. 5-7. Traditionally, the beaches have been open through the Labor Day weekend. This year's decision to close and again reopen results from a reduction in the Recreation Department's budget, the lateness of the Labor Day holiday and the decline in attendance by users over the latter part of the season.

Check the level of the transmission fluid every time you check the oil in the engine. This procedure only takes a few seconds and it may save you plenty of grief. The level should be checked only when your car has been driven for 5 miles or more. The shift lever should be in "park," and the engine should be running when the fluid is checked. If the engine is cold, you may get a false reading. Excess oil added to the transmission at this time causes the oil to go out a vent pipe and also causes foaming. You don't want either to happen.

League Gives Energy Exhibit And House Tour Sept. 20

A committee of the League of Women Voters of Winchester has met frequently in recent weeks to plan an "Energy House Tour and Exhibit" scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 20.

The new, partially-solar Winchester Savings Bank at 661 Main st. will host the Energy Exhibit from noon to 4 p.m. Exhibitors have been invited to display their products and give demonstrations.

At the exhibit, maps will be available to the public indicating the locations of the houses on the tour. Homes have been selected which offer the public an opportunity to see active and passive solar components, greenhouse additions, and other related energy-saving installations. There will also be a "Mass-Save House" on the tour. (Mass-Save Inc. is a non-profit organization formed by Massachusetts electric and gas utilities to provide energy conservation services to their residential customers).

This house will be one which has had a Mass-Save Energy Audit done on it, and detailed information on the energy conservation measures recommended for it will be dramatized. To reserve an advanced-sale ticket, contact the Winchester League of Voters through Francine Lee, on High st.

GREEN LIGHT — Developers have the go-ahead to start converting Noonan School to Noonan Glen Housing Units.

Noonan School Conversion Work Underway Again

By SUSAN SCHNECK

When it comes to building housing developments, "good things don't come in small packages" as overhead expenses are fixed.

In the case of the Noonan School, however, they did. The town benefitted from the planned 18 unit Noonan Glen elderly housing plan because of its small size.

Winchester's first alternate school use project has been held up for a year due to anticipated high interest rates.

"High interest rates related to the bond financing of the project and cut-backs in section 8 federal housing programs have tied the project up," said Bill Roop of McNeill Associates, the Westwood firm that bought the Noonan School a year and a half ago for about $175,000 to convert it to low income elderly housing.

This unfortunate combination has virtually left the project plans on hold. But a recent turn of events set the wheels going again.

McNeill Associates were finally able to get funding for the project because there was money left over from a bigger project.

"Because Noonan Glen is so small we were able to obtain the limited funding available," said Roop. "It's the only advantage we've had from its small size."

Roop said they hope to begin construction by the end of September and that Noonan Glen would be ready for occupancy next Spring.

Construction includes substantial changes in the Noonan School to build 12 one-bedroom units and six two-bedroom units.

"Everything will be new and hopefully it will be very attractive said Bill McDevitt of McNeill Associates.

"I think Noonan School is one of the most attractive schools being converted," agreed Roop. "It has a residential character and will be a very nice place to live in."

"It's situated in a nice place and the neighbors and town officials have given us a lot of support," he continued. "It will be a real asset to the community."

The housing will be available to persons over 62 years of age, in accordance with federal guidelines. Under this type of section 8 housing, persons pay one fourth of their income for rent and the government makes up the difference.

In the meantime, inflation has raised the construction cost figures that McNeill Associates were working with when they originally planned the project.

But Roop said they have managed to devise ways to stay within their budget without any major setbacks.

"It looks good so far," said Roop.

Richard Rogers, you've got us on the ropes. Neither Noreen Murphy or Marc McGeehan has been able to fool you. Noreen's taken to going out and shooting Mystery Photos all night. Says the night exposure might get you.

No one is even near you in the standings. With your correct identification of last week's photo as being on Winchester terr., you've made it 14 in a row correct. And we've only had 14 Mystery Photos.

So if you get this final one — and this isn't easy, it has the famous "Murphy Night Exposure Touch" — we are prepared to declare you SUMMER SEASON MYSTERY PHOTO MASTER CHAMPION.

And believe it or not, you have touched our accountant's heart. (although it is rumored that even the spirit of Christmas Past couldn't do that).

For the first time in Mystery Photo history, there will be a prize of two Red Sox or Bruins tickets for each seasonal champion (we've got to stretch the tickets over four months. You didn't touch Chuck's heart that deeply).

But of course, if you make the high exalted post of Summer Master Champion, there will be some disadvantages. All scoring will start back at zero for the fall championship race.

No more six photo lead over the likes of Jay Barbuto or Ellen McKenney. No more lead over the Police Eye Team or the Engineering Survey Team.

But if you should happen to beat them all again by Christmas (the end of the fall season) that will be your last pair of tickets (Bruins, of course). Only two awards per champion.

He took a picture of it, and planned to send it in with this week's answer. But when he checked the paper, the Mystery Photo was the exact same picture he'd taken the day before.

Jay Barbuto has entered the Twilight Zone.
If you're back, Good Luck.

Town Day — A Discoverer's Dream

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Town residents would be well advised to bring a big treasure chest with them as they embark on "Discover Winchester Day" Sept. 19.

There is a lot more to this town than houses, streets and foliage and Winchester residents will have to the opportunity to make quite a few discoveries more than enough to fill a treasure chest.

Winchester Chamber of Commerce Coordinator Jack Childs promises that one enjoyable discovery will be the best chocolate chips in the Boston area. He even has a Real Paper article to back up that promise.

But perhaps the most amazing aspect of the Cookies Cook'n booth will be the six foot cookie who walks around talking to people.

Surely the only other attraction in this giant cookie's league on Saturday will be the Coco Cola robot who will also be socializing among the crowd.

The day promises to be packed with entertainment.

Jack Childs has some good connections in the right places and has secured several talented groups to perform for free on this year's town day.

The Itedneck Revival, a country western band involved with T.V., theatre groups and radio will be performing. These six musicians from Lowell have agreed to perform and are scheduled for 1:30. "They would normally receive a high fee," Childs said.

Sweet Adelines, a big hit last town day, has agreed to perform a couple of different times during the day. They are tentatively scheduled for 11:30.

And straight from Winchester's Harriet Hoxter Ballet School will be a performance promising to make residents proud to claim the school.

Mary Vasei, the school director, will direct a mini ballet class for 20 minutes to give an idea of what a class is like.

Following that performance, three of the girls will dance to Music Box Waltz from Ballet Suite No. "1" by Shostakovich and choreographed by Vasei. Then a younger childrens group of eight and nine-year-olds will dance. Two students will then perform followed by a Gande Finale to Arthur Fiedler's Stars and Stripes.

The girls will be dancing in ballet slippers and not pointe shoes since they will be performing on concrete.

"The girls are really looking forward to adding ballet to Discover Winchester Day," said Vasei.

Auctions are always entertaining whether you are buying, watching or forcing up the prices. Al Ruggles from Winchester Sports has agreed to play auctioneer for the items donated by local retailers. People passing by his store on Main St. can hear cries of "Do I hear $5 coming from inside as Ruggles practices

GETTING READY — Members of the Harriet Hoxter School of Ballet are practicing hard for their performance at the Discover Winchester Day festivities on Saturday, Sept. 19. for his role which he says he is known for worldwide. Ruggles will be dressed in old fashioned garb according to Childs and "really sell the stuff cheap," Childs promised. This attraction is scheduled to start at 3:00.

When the auction is over, townsfolk will have yet another chance to walk home with some new items — only this stuff is not cheap.

Three items are scheduled to be raffled off. They are a Brunswick pool table valued at $1,020, a bicycle valued at $170 and a portable a.m.-f.m. cassette player valued between $150 and $200. The profits from these items were donated to the Chamber by Eastern Billiards, Mystic Valley Wheel Works and Winchester T.V. and Appliance respectively.

Fitting perfectly with the old fashioned theme of the event, Ralph Bonnell of Bonnell Ford will show off some of his antique car collection. Everybody loves an excuse to let go and have some fun and some of the retailers are really getting into the mood of the day.

Childs said Jack Chitel is "planning exciting things with balloons and perhaps some old fashioned entertainment." Not to be outdone, the Winchester Savings Bank will have an old fashioned popcorn machine in their booth. Other retailers are planning to come dressed in old fashioned costumes. So far, there are 60 booths scheduled.

"Things are moving along smoothly," said Childs. "It'll be fun. Continental Cable will film the entire day and put together a program."

Discover Winchester Day evolved like many ideas, when a group of people were sitting around chewing the fat.

In this case, some Chamber members just sat down and began talking about the town day two years ago and the idea of town day.

"It's the end of summer and the beginning of fall and people are coming back to town," said Childs. "So we decided, hey let's discover Winchester — come back to town and meet old friends we haven't seen for awhile and give it an old fashioned flavor as a sub theme."

Childs said they hope to make Discover Winchester Day an annual town tradition with a different sub theme each time.

"We're already putting down ideas for next year and I think we can plan on it every year now," Childs said. "We can plan on coming back to town after the summer and getting a real town feeling."

"I know it's going to be an exciting day

Flea Market To Raise Scholarships

Those boxes of books and dishes sitting in the back of the closets could be turned into scholarships, student activities and educational programs.

The Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Assoc. is seeking donations to sell at the Jaycee's Annual Flea Market on Sept. 26 across from Town Hall.

Suggested items include clothing, books, dishes, toys, sports equipment and appliances. Donations can be dropped off at the homes of Tina Furey, 18 Hollywood rd., Meredith Clotti, 331 Main St. or Judy Shaw, 7 Copley St. They may also be brought to the high school.

Multi-Use Zoning Eyed

By DAVE LEECO

Town officials are working on a zoning by-law that could bring back the shop owner who lives over his store.

Economic Development Coordinator John Connery brought the Planning Board this week a rough draft of a multi-use zoning article which he hopes to have ready for the Spring Town Meeting.

Multi-use zoning, he explained, would allow buildings to be constructed with, for example, stores on the ground floor and apartments above.

"This is certainly not a new idea," said Connery. "It's been discussed in this town even 10 years ago, and it's been allowed under the Massachusetts zoning laws for the past two decades."

Connery's bringing up the idea now because he feels developers can be lured to Winchester center by the bait of multiple use.

Connery told the Planning Board that multi-use zoning is "one of the instruments we require for revitalization." Connery explained that the downtown desperately needed more retail floor space.

"The center is choked off, and is being slowly killed," said Connery. "It just doesn't have the space."

Connery noted that even though Winchester center was "a depressed downtown area," merchants were still scrambling to get the limited retail space available.

"Empty stores are snapped up in 30-60 days," he said. "And as a result the rents are as high as $17-$18 a square foot."

Multi-use zoning, he said, would provide more space, and give merchants a break on the high rents, by attracting builders.

"In many new developments, having multiple uses in the building is the backbone of the development," said Connery.

Connery explained after the meeting that having multiple uses allows a developer more flexibility in financing his project.

"There are different pay-backs for different kinds of development," he explained. "If a developer puts in condos, he can sell off those condos fairly quickly and move on to the next development."

"But if you're talking about a store or an office building, he gets his pay-back from rents that he applies against a mortgage," he continued. "Most developers can't afford to do that, they've got to get some of the money back."

"With multiple use, he can sell off the condos to pay off some of the construction costs, and keep on collecting the rents from downstairs."

Connery is proposing several restrictions on multi-use zoning, to give the town greater control over the developments.

Multi-use buildings would only be allowed in the center, he said, and a special permit from the Board of Appeal would be required before construction.

"There is strong wording in the by-law to give the town both design control and site plan control," he said. "You'll be granting the special permit on your grounds."

In the special permit, the Board of Appeal could allow the developer to build more units in a building than is allowed under the normal by-laws, Connery noted.

But even that, he said, would give the town an edge in demanding certain features be designed into the building.

"If we were to give the developer an extra two or three units, he would have to give us something back," he explained.

"The town could say he had to put two units of elderly housing in, which wouldn't be a bad thing for the town. Or it could be that if the development was along a river, the town could say 'Give us that as a public park'."

Connery asked the Planning Board to read over the proposed draft of the by-law, and get back to him with suggestions.

Planning Board Chairman Marion Crandall said her board would discuss the by-law at its next meeting, and added that "this is something the board has expressed interest in in the past."

Board member Clarence Borggaard, for one, thought the whole thing a sensible idea.

"This is nothing new," he said. "In the old days, the shopkeeper used to live above his store. This is just brings that back."

One of London's un-sung tourist sites is the Museum of London. While it may not be as dramatic an attraction as the National Gallery or the British Museum, it offers valuable insight. It turns history into fun by re-creating and exploring the many periods of London's past. Accompanied by witty text, appropriate street sounds, music or poetry, the visitor strolls through a remarkable simulation of everyday life in London's past. The centuries flow by as careful examination is rewarded by remarkable detail and insight.

Energy-Saving Houses To Be Toured By LWV

The Winchester League of Women Voters is planning an Energy Exhibit and House Tour for Sept. 20. The exhibit will be held at the Winchester Savings Bank, 661 Main st., and will feature exhibitors of various kinds of energy-saving devices and designs for the home.

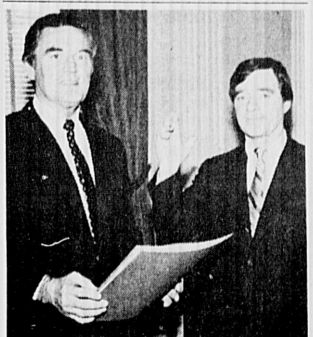

The new, partially solar Winchester Savings Bank on Main st. will host the Energy Exhibit from noon to 4 p.m. Exhibitors have been invited to display their products and give demonstrations.

At the exhibit, maps will be available to the public indicating the locations of houses on the tour. Homes have been selected which offer the public an opportunity to see first-hand active and passive solar components, greenhouse additions, and other related energy saving installations.

There will also be a "Mass-Save House" on the tour. Mass-Save Inc. is a non-profit organization formed by Massachusetts electric and gas utilities to provide energy conservation services to their residential customers.

This house will be one which has had an energy audit done by Mass-Save, and detailed information on the energy conservation measures recommended for the home will be dramatized.

Committee Chairperson Marty Fuller reports that while the exhibition space is filled, more houses are sought for the tour. Anyone having a home they would like included should contact her.

New Fall Hours At Library

The new fall hours at the Winchester Public Library will be Mondays, 1-9 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays, 10-9 p.m.; Wednesdays and Fridays 10-5:30. This will start the week of Sept. 14.

Should you forget and telephone the library at the wrong time, you will hear the voice of Heidi Hakei Zeig giving the opening hours and other library information. This is a new answering service introduced by the new director, G. Matthew Sperber. In time it is hoped that the junior library will have its own recorded answering service.

A new quarterly magazine that will help discover New England this fall is Piper Street. It has a day-by-day calendar of fairs, festivals, and cultural events for the months of September, October and November for all the six states.

In addition it lists interesting facilities to visit like historic houses, museums, lighthouses, zoos, factory outlets and where to stop for food and lodging. There is going to be an Oyster Festival, Sept. 11-13 at Norwalk, Conn. and the Twelfth Annual Flea Market at Topsfield, Mass.

on Sept. 12 and 13. Just two of the over 200 events scheduled in September.

"Discover Winchester" on Sept. 19 is not listed in Piper Street. Next week this column will tell you what the Winchester Public Library hopes to be doing as part of that event.

Merchant Drawn To Center

By SUSAN SCHNECK

There seems to be some sort of magnet attracting former resident Walter Call to Winchester. In fact, he is drawn to the exact same location in town.

The man just can't seem to get away. Call owned the Silhouette hair salon on Main st. 20 years ago. Over the past two decades he has owned another salon on Newbury st. and travelled around the world.

But Call has come home again. Since mid-August he is once again the owner of the same store. Same address but different name and some additional merchandise and ideas.

It's hard to describe Wallen's on Main st. On first glance, it appears to be a flower shop. It has everything necessary for a top quality flower shop — exotic and common plants, silk flower arrangements, plants and trees. But there is more. Between the plants and flowers, lining the walls and shelves are music box dolls, authentic Chinese screens, jewelry, crystal glassware and many gifts from all over the world.

Call knows for a fact that his gifts are authentic. He picked them up himself during his four-year trip around the world.

Maybe Wallen's is a combination gift and flower shop, one might conclude. But there is more. Towards the back are beauty salon chairs and hair dryers.

The store is definitely one of a kind. Call is not the type who likes to stay idle if he can help it.

"If I don't have a floral arrangement I'm working on at the time, and I'm going to be idle, I may as well be winding a perm," Call said, explaining his recent shipment of chairs and dryers. "Why not? I still have my license."

Call is only too aware of the numerous beauty salons in Winchester but he does not feel that he is competing with them as his shop will be different. He plans on catering to working people who may not want their cut until 11 p.m.

To Call, the hair and flower businesses are very similar. "They're both creative and you can use your hands," he said. "A hair style is a work of art just like a floral arrangement. You get the same amount of pride from both."

After returning from his trip around the world a couple of years ago, Call said he was lying in bed one morning trying to decide on his next career. "It was either cooking or floral arrangements. — I love them both," he said. Attracted to the potential for creativity, flower arrangements offered, Call enrolled in the Rittner School of Floral Design. He graduated in May of 1981.

From there, Fate seems to have taken over.

"I was driving down Main st. and noticed that my old shop was up for sale so I bought it," he said. "I found my old beauty shop." Wallen's opened up three and a half weeks later.

Call says he knew exactly what he was getting into when he opened up his shop in Winchester and that he loves owning a shop in town. He said he is not troubled by the existence of other floral and gift shops in town.

"We all work together here," he said. "If someone runs out of something, we give it to them. It's not like we're competing."

"I love it," he said. "I've met some beautiful people."

"I feel like I never left."

The Harriet Hctor Winchester Ballet School is not a "dance recital" school which spends students' class time and money on preparation and expensive costumes. Total class time is spent learning and improving technique and skills. We are a "training" school with efforts directed to the goal of giving our students a secure foundation in classical ballet technique while developing coordination, rhythm, poise and self discipline, which is so important to the beginning and intermediate student. We also give the individual guidance and attention to those students who wish to go on and pursue a career as a professional ballet dancer.

Fitzpatrick Running Sept. 15 For Silver-Haired Legislature

Marion K. Fitzpatrick of Lexington is a candidate for Silver-Haired Senator from the Fourth Middlesex Legislative District, the area covered by our regularly-elected legislators.

Election day for the Legislature is Sept. 15.

Fitzpatrick, retired from teaching at Arlington High School in 1977, has been very involved in senior affairs and activities in this area as president of the Middlesex South Chapter of the Massachusetts Retired Teachers' Association, vice president of the American Association of Retired Persons, and chairman of the Lexington Elder Chorus, which received a grant from the Department of Elder Affairs through her efforts.

She has been an active member of her Senior Citizens' Club and of the Lexington CoA Community. She enrolled for three years in Gerontology Courses at Middlesex Community College in order to better understand the problems and needs of the elderly.

As a participant in the Health Workshop of the League of Women Voters, she has been particularly interested in nursing homes, home care, and congregate housing.

Graduate of Boston University with an A.B. Degree and of Tufts University with a M.Ed., she has spent many years in the classroom in Somerville and Arlington, teaching Latin and French.

As a mother of six children and grandmother of sixteen grandchildren, she is interested in the welfare of all citizens in her community, in her area and in her state.

When Massachusetts Secretary of Elder Affairs, Dr. Thomas H.D. Mahoney, first announced his intention to develop a "Silver-Haired Legislature" in this state last year, some skeptics questioned the value of such a large group of senior citizens taking over the State House for three days in November.

However, by election day, the elder voters went to more than 400 polling places and cast 54,000 ballots to elect from 410 candidates 160 representatives and 40 senators for the program.

Candidates are age 60 and over and must have an application slip signed by at least 50 registered voters of age 60 or over. Deadline date for applying was July 31. A pre-election workshop for all candidates was run Aug. 18 at Framingham State College, where a review of the objectives of the Silver-Haired Legislature was presented with a special emphasis on the successes of the program.

The Department of Elder Affairs received a major grant of $39,246 from the Consumer Education Program of the new Department of Education to expand the active participation and training of new elderly advocates. No funds were diverted from services for older persons.

Borggaard Is The Local Silver-Haired Candidate

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I write this to remind all Winchester Senior Citizens of the election to be held at the Jenks Senior Center, on Tuesday, Sept. 15, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

It so happens that my wife and I have been chosen to be the local candidates for election as representative and senator, respectively, to the recently created "Silver-Haired Legislature."

Please make a determined effort to cast your ballot, in order that our town may be among those represented for the coming year. It will take only a few minutes of your day if you are able to walk or drive down; and if you live too far away, or are unable to walk or drive for any reason, please call the Center (729-2111) and someone will gladly pick you up and bring you home again.

Thank you, all — and let's demonstrate, again, that our little town need not always be dominated by our more populous neighbors.

Toxic Waste's Effects On Kids To Be Addressed By Council

"Toxic Waste and Our Kids" will be the topic of a presentation at the annual elections meeting of the Mystic Valley Council for Children on Monday from 7-9 p.m. at the First Congregational Church, Winchester.

Rev. Bruce Young of Woburn Citizens for a Cleaner Environment (FACE) will be the guest speaker. The State Department of Public Health has identified Woburn as having the highest rate of renal (kidney) cancer and childhood leukemia in the state. Eight cases of childhood leukemia have been reported within a half-mile radius over a 10-year period, and a number of these children have died.

The causes for this high incidence have not been discovered. Rev. Young will discuss the efforts of his organization to find solutions to this problem. The WCVB-TV "Calendar" segment titled "What's Wrong with Woburn?" will also be shown.

The Mystic Valley Council for Children is a volunteer organization of people who live or work in Arlington.

Senior Notes

Colon-Rectal Cancer Detection Program

Cancer of the rectum and colon is the second leading cancer killer of both men and women in the United States. However, with early diagnosis, three out of four people might be saved. On Sept. 17 from 9:30-11:30 a.m., the American Cancer Society, the Winchester Hospital, and the Council on Aging will hold a free colon-rectal cancer detection program.

Each participant will be given three kits with simple instructions to prepare stool specimens at home over three consecutive days. The results will be analyzed in the Winchester Hospital Laboratory, and you will be notified of the results and given follow-up advice, if necessary. No sign-up is necessary. If you have any questions, call the Jenks Senior Center.

Corrections of Date

There will be no Social Security Representative visiting Jenks Senior Center in Sept. as formerly announced. The date has been advanced to Oct. 23 from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

The Luncheon to be given by the Church Women United for senior citizens carried a wrong telephone number in the recent WSA Newsletter. The luncheon will be at St. Mary's Church Hall on Oct. 6 at noon. Reservations are necessary for the turkey dinner. Please call Alice O'Leary, Church st. or Marjorie Berger, Yale st. from Monday, Sept. 28 through Friday, Oct. 2 to reserve a ticket.

Eye and Ear Program

On Sept. 18 at 10 a.m. at the Jenks Senior Center, Dr. Dallow and Dr. Mulvaney will speak on diminished hearing and vision — how to recognize the problem, and what to do to help. Questions will be answered. Coffee and donuts will be served.

1982 Caribbean Cruise

Fly-Cruise to the sun-drenched Caribbean aboard the Sun Viking on Nov. 7-14 in 1982. Plans have to be made a year in advance in order to obtain a block of staterooms. Gateway Travel will present a short movie on the cruise on Sept. 23 at 1:30 p.m. A question and answer period will follow. Light refreshments will be served.

Physical Education Instructor Wanted

The Winchester Senior Association is looking for someone who has knowledge of physical education techniques and would like to volunteer a few hours of time each week to teach a senior physical education class. If interested, please call Shelley Ober, Program Administrator, at Jenks Senior Center.

Glee Club

A Senior Glee Club is being formed under the direction of Bob Mulford. The first organizational meeting will be at the Jenks Senior Center on Sept. 15 at 10 a.m. All are welcome to participate. You do not have to be a trained singer to belong to the group.

Legislature

Come vote for representatives for the Silver-Haired Legislature at Jenks Senior Center on Sept. 15 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Transportation can be arranged by calling the Jenks Senior Center.

Two sure signs that summer is over — kids are up before 8 a.m., walking in new clothes to the bus stops; and town officials scrambling to get ready for the Fall Town Meeting.

Yes, one week after Labor Day, the warrant will be closed and the town will go into a long series of public hearings, debate and oratory.

There are a handful of warrant articles on zoning changes, which means a Planning Board public hearing and the outraged group of neighbors that go along with those extravaganzas.

There will be articles on new towing laws, police and fire false alarm fines, and accessory apartment by-laws. Somebody (probably two or more) is bound to want to get up and make impassioned speeches for or against. And they will.

People will call Town Manager Tom Groux at the office. Stop Selectman Mike Saraco on the street. Get in touch with Selectmen Chairman Ed O'Connell (who will refer them to his old friend Alan Macdonald).

Needless to say, the town's officials are looking forward to this like Lucrécia Borgia's bridegrooms looked forward to their first honeymoon drink.

All work must stop, unless it's on the venerable Warrant. And that takes up a considerable amount of time.

Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia feels the crush, since all the zoning articles have to come through his office to the Planning Board.

"There just isn't enough time to really get into those zoning articles and work on them a little," said Ciarcia. "You can't get anything done in this town until Labor Day, and after that you've got two weeks at the most to get articles on the warrant."

"Then, you've got to hold public hearings on articles you haven't even had time to look at, and if you want to make any changes to the article, you need a second public hearing," he lamented. "I don't know what the answer is."

Two flights up the Town Hall stairs, Groux is working on the second draft of the list of this year's articles.

"You know," he said, "Town Meeting controls us a lot more than they realize. You just get through with one and then you have to start working on the next."

"It's not that they control us by anything they do, necessarily," he added. "Just by being there every six months, it means we can't go too far before it comes up again."

"We have to plan on getting the member's approval every step of the way," he concluded.

Must be why the town goes through this scrambling ritual every fall and spring.

County Government Reform May Be Made Possible By Prop. 2½

The revolution known as Proposition 2.5 fomented at local level by that band of rebels known as the Citizens for Limited Taxation has finally spread to include state and county government as well. The fighting which resulted in battles between local citizens and their school committees, boards of selectmen, city councils and mayors has escalated to include the state legislature, the governor and county commissioners across the state. They have all been fighting over the same problem: How do we maintain our champagne and caviar diet on our beer and hot dog income. The realization, after many long and agonizing months, is that we cannot.

The state legislature, after a budget process which resembled more of a three ring circus than an orderly allocation of state revenues, has finally bitten the bullet and lived up to its responsibilities by providing at least $260,000,000 more in local aid. It is now time for the counties to follow suit. It has been the contention of the rebels all along that the state and the counties should share the burden of proposition 2.5 with local government.

County government has long been considered to be the black sheep of Massachusetts government. As the illegitimate child of a legislature which has recently disowned it, through passage of the Advisory Board Budget control provision of the state budget, and which is supported by the local property tax, county government has a unique opportunity to flourish under new parentage.

Middlesex County, long considered to be the worst of the litter, now has the opportunity to fly straight. The clamor for abolition of county government unlikely to be realized in the near future since our revenue starved state is unable to pick up the tab for its enormous patronage appetite.

Like most overweight people, Middlesex County needs a strict diet and more exercise. It is suggested that Middlesex could operate much more efficiently with fewer people and less money. We must reduce its diet of excessive patronage and exercise its personnel a little more. It is suggested that there are about three people for every two jobs in Middlesex. This has resulted from the "one for me and one for you" attitude of state and county officials over the past 15 years. This has been well documented in the past and needs no further explanation.

What is needed, however, is a plan to reform the county system.

There have been many plans to reform county government in the past. None have been overly successful. Given present political realities, the following should be taken as given:

1. The state can not now afford to assume the functions of the county.

2. The counties must maintain the courthouse facilities, jail and house of correction, and hospitals presently under their control.

3. The counties must strive to increase the efficiency and scope of the activities it presently undertakes on behalf of the cities and towns within its borders.

4. The counties must not increase their burden upon the property tax payer.

In short, my plan for county reform is very simple: do more spend less.

I suggest that the budget for Middlesex County reflect the recommendations made by the Middlesex County Advisory Board thus giving them defacto control over the county budget a full year prior to their legal mandate to that effect recently passed by the legislature.

This would result in an operating budget of $22.5 million and a capital outlay budget of $2.5 million. This would result in a cut in county personnel of about 25 percent and will restore county facilities to acceptable standards.

In addition, I suggest that county receipts and unappropriated treasury balances in the amount of $7 million be used to reduce the county assessment resulting in a county assessment not to exceed $18 million. This represents a drop in the county assessment of $4.4 million. This will help local communities meet the burdens of proposition 2.5 since local communities have been expecting a county assessment at least as hefty as that levied in 1981.

In addition, the county assessment formula works in such a way that the communities most negatively effected by the state's lottery formula for distributing state aid stand to gain the most as the result of a lower county assessment.

If this all seems too good to be true, it may be. It requires the action of a responsible state legislature and a more accountable Board of County Commissioners. In any other year this type of reform wouldn't be possible but, as the rebels have been saying all along, this isn't your run of the mill political year, is it?

A FOND FAREWELL — Folks everywhere were saying goodbye to summer over the Labor Day weekend including a couple of fishermen on Wedge Pond Saturday. Fred Murphy (left), 13, and Del Keen, both of Medford, got in one last summer's day of fishing. (Staff photo by Noreen Murphy)

Letters To The Editor

Law Would Stop Seizure Of Lost Pets

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Pound Seizure Law allows research facilities to take lost pets that end up in local pounds. These former house pets, accustomed to kind human treatment, are made subjects of laboratory experiments.

There is currently a proposed bill, H.1245, which would repeal the Pound Seizure Law. This bill would not halt animal research, but would put a stop to the seizing of lost pets. Dogs and cats could still be bred for the purpose of experimentation. (Incidentally, if research facilities were more cooperative and less competitive with each other, needless duplication of experiments might be eliminated).

I hope concerned readers will inform our state senator and representative that they want the Pound Seizure Law repealed, thereby allowing lost pets to be returned to their owners, new homes or put to a humane death, rather than ending up as subjects in laboratory experiments.

Sincerely,
Margot Holtzman

Blackbeans And Tortillas Taste Good

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

About Susan Schneck's August 27 profile, "She Learned About Life in a Mexican Village."

I don't understand how black beans and tortillas could not taste good! Were they infested with weevils? If so, that would only add to the protein content.

Throwing the beans on the floor wasn't all that smart either. I doubt that anybody was fooled.

This has been bothering me.

92 Donate Blood At Winchester Hospital

The Annual Summer Blood Drive, held Aug. 26-27 at Winchester Hospital, brought in 92 hospital employees and area residents who donated their time, and their blood to the American Red Cross.

The Drive was sponsored by Winchester Hospital, the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross, and the Peabody based Northeast Regional Blood Service (NeRBS) which supplies Massachusetts and Maine.

NeRBS field representative Mark Feldhausen called the Winchester Drive "a great success," adding, "There's currently a 925 blood pint deficit across the northeast region. Summer is traditionally our region's most difficult season for receiving donations."

However, Feldhausen declared, "Winchester Hospital is always very responsive. We've had a strong history here of good participation."

Sons Of Italy Sponsor Sept. 13 Bloodmobile

The Sons of Italy will once again be sponsoring a blood drive at their hall at 117 Swanton st., on Sept. 12 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. This continues their traditional support of the Red Cross commitment to meeting the needs of all area hospital patients. The drive is open to the public. "Blood collected on weekends is especially critical because of certain components," said Bob Gerrity of the Red Cross Winchester Chapter. He went on to explain that platelets and plasma, used to treat burn and accident victims as well as leukemia patients, must be utilized within 72 hours. "This makes weekend donors even more important," Gerrity added.

A donor usually spends about 45 minutes to one hour at a bloodmobile. The actual donation takes less than 10 minutes. Before you donate, a careful medical history is taken to make sure that you are well enough to give blood on that day. Your temperature, blood pressure, pulse, and hemoglobin level will be checked.

The Red Cross urges all area donors to contribute to the community blood supply. No appointment is necessary. For more information, contact Winchester Red Cross, Church st.

Stop Smoking Sept. 14

A self-help stop smoking program will be given at Winchester Hospital beginning Monday, Sept. 14. Ellen Mulvey, RN, of the hospital's education department, will be the instructor in the course which will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. in the hospital classroom in Russell House, adjacent to the parking lot.

The course is the American Lung Association's 20-day program. Smoking habits will be analyzed, and the group will learn to substitute behaviors for the smoking habit.

Novena to St. Jude

O Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in vision and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return, I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked.

Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias.

Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. I have had my request granted.

Weddings

Julia Ann Kritzman Is The Wife Of Dr. Bruce Abbott

Julia Ann Kritzman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Julius Kritzman of Newton, became the bride of Dr. Bruce P. Abbott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Abbott of Lawrence st., on Aug. 22.

The wedding and reception were held in the garden of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Leo Stone of Falmouth. The Rev. Jonathan Sinclair Carey of the First Unitarian Church of Boston performed the double ring ceremony.

Marjorie Kritzman of Nantucket, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Kenneth Abbott of Berkeley, Calif., was his brother's best man. Ann Cohen of Chestnut Hill, cousin of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid.

As a part of the service, the bride's mother and Jeffrey Fronczek of Boston sang, accompanied on the piano by William Merrill of Boston.

The bride graduated from Newton South High School, and attended New York University School of Fine Arts. She is a member of the Art Students League of New York, and is a member of the Boston Visual Artists Union.

Abbott graduated from Winchester High School, and from Tufts College of Liberal Arts. He graduated from Tufts University School of Medicine in 1975, and trained at Rhode Island Hospital and New England Medical Center Hospital. He is currently in the private practice of neurology at Newton Wellesley Hospital and Glover Memorial Hospital of Needham. He is a member of the department of neurology at New England Medical Center Hospital and Tufts University School of Medicine. Following a wedding trip to Cape Cod, the couple are living in Needham.

Cheryl Ann Burton Becomes The Bride Of Richard Jacobs

Cheryl Ann Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Burton of Nassau dr., and Richard James Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Jacobs of Wolcott rd., exchanged vows of matrimony at a double ring ceremony on June 21 in St. Mary's Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of chiffonette, highlighted with Venice and Alencon lace

Marjorie Smith Marries Michael Andrew Simmons

The bride, who will retain her maiden name, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Smith of Ohio. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Simmons of Cliff st. and New Hampshire.

Jill Hogan of Concord and Richard Longley of Swampscott attended the couple. David Simmons of Washington D.C. and Peter Simmons of St. Louis, brothers of the groom, ushered.

on bodice and hemline. It was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and cape sleeves with seed pearls. Her fingertip veil was applied with matching laces attached to her beaded Juliet cap.

She carried a cascade bouquet of Cattleya orchids and white roses with ivy.

Roberta Burton, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. Daria Vacca and Wendy Capobianco of Winchester served as bridesmaids.

The attendants wore giana gowns of sea spray green, featuring stitch-pleated bodice, spaghetti straps, and draped sleeveless jackets. Their bouquets of yellow roses and white daisies with yellow streamers complimented their ensembles.

Joanna Leone of Conn., niece of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid, wearing a yellow sheer gown and carrying a nosegay of white daisies with lace streamers.

Lawrence Henry of Winchester served as best man.

Ralph Jacobs, of Boston, brother of the bridegroom, and Paul DiRe of Winchester, were ushers.

Following the reception at the Towne Lyne House in Lynnfield, the couple went on their honeymoon trip to Bermuda and Lake Champlain, Vt. They are presently residing in Woburn.

Gym Opens To Public With Community Use Program

The Winchester Community Use of School will begin its ninth year of operation on Oct. 5. As usual, the high school gym will be open on Monday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 10 for adults only — 18 years and older.

The weekend schedule has been altered significantly. The gym will be open on weekends for four months — December through March. The hours have also been changed. Previously the weekend schedule was noon to 5 p.m. The new hours will be 12:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The CUOS program will also be open during Christmas break and February vacation. Specific times will be posted. The fee for use of the gym is $1 for everyone who uses the facility.

The program is open to all residents who want to keep fit, to exercise for enjoyment, to meet new people, to get a night out or to simply enjoy yourself.

Basketball has been the most popular sport, but many residents participate in weight training, volleyball, paddleball, jogging and wrestling. Basketballs, volleyballs and paddle rackets are available. It is wise to bring your own ball for paddleball.

On most nights all the courts are used. But since the gym is spacious, seldom must anyone wait long for court space. This is an "open" program so there are no reserved courts or scheduled games. All courts are filled on a first come basis.

Although more than 1000 residents have used the gym, there are still many people in Winchester who have never visited the complex. Program director Mike Marino or supervisors George Flynn and Louis Ricci will show anyone around the building during the open gym session. Those seeking a place for exercise should drop in at the gym to see firsthand what is available.

The locker room and shower room are open only during the Monday and Thursday evening sessions. Soap and towels are not provided. It is advised to leave money and other valuables at home or with one of the girls at the desk, but not in the lockers or in the gym.

The gym is open to boys and girls in the seventh grade and up on Saturdays and Sundays. Those not of age may use the gym if they are accompanied by an adult "family" member also using the gym.

Monday and Thursday evenings are for adults only. No one under 18 will be allowed in the gym for any reason. The gym becomes too crowded to allow younger people full use of the gym.

The only entrance to the gym will again be from the Nelson st. area and parking will be in the rear lot.

Mystic Parents Assn.

Yard Sale Sept. 12

The Mystic Parents Association will be holding a yard sale at the Mystic School playground on Sept. 12 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All profits are to support the Mystic School Outdoor Education Program and will consist of furniture, clothes, toys, games, arts and crafts and baked goods.

Donations will be accepted by Maria Snyder, Alden ln.

Tunes Ring At McCall

The sounds of music will be heard beginning the week of Sept. 21 at McCall-Junior High School. Not only on regular band, orchestra, or chorus days, but after school at least twice a week.

The Winchester Music Program will be starting its fall term with lessons offered in a variety of instruments. Qualified teachers trained at such well-known institutions as the Eastman School, New England Conservatory, and Boston University will be teaching cello, violin, recorder, clarinet, flute, french horn, percussion, saxophone, trombone, tuba, baritone and trumpet. Ensembles are also being arranged.

"The interest and support for our pilot program last spring was so encouraging," said Corie Nichols, coordinator of the program. "We feel we are meeting a need here in Winchester. Our hope is to add to and supplement the fine musical opportunities that already exist in the town, to enhance the musical climate, and to work with community groups in whatever way we can

Nichols added that it is important for students to have the opportunity to learn an instrument or be able to continue instruction through junior high and high school.

"We are also excited about the opportunities that are being offered through the adult education program," she said.

The Winchester Music Program has been developed through cooperation with the Belmont Music School, a non-profit community organization that has been in existence and growing for more than 17 years. The program is sponsored by the McCall Parent Association and coordinated by Corie Nichols and Sandy Thompson.

University Extension

Since 1910 Harvard University Extension has sponsored an outstanding academic program with a distinguished faculty, low tuition, open enrollment, convenient evening hours, and access to Harvard facilities, including parking.

Course Offerings

To date, 185,000 men and women from greater Boston have taken courses for credit and non-credit in this Harvard program of continuing education. One can study for a degree, for professional advancement, or for personal enrichment by choosing from the more than 350 courses in 40 liberal arts fields, ranging from Afro-American Studies to Visual and Environmental Studies.

Instruction is offered in many foreign languages (Arabic, Chinese, Czech, French, German, Classical and Modern Greek, Hebrew, Irish, Italian, Japanese, Latin, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, Swedish, and Yiddish) as well as English as a foreign language. We also have a complete pre-medical curriculum (Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and Calculus) and assorted pre-professional courses for people interested in law and business careers.

Undergraduate Programs

Harvard University Extension offers the Associate in Arts and Bachelor of Liberal Arts degrees in Extension Studies. Undergraduate tuition is only $30 per unit of credit, $20 per unit for non-credit, except for seminars and workshops, which are higher. Most courses are taught by Harvard faculty and meet evenings in historic Harvard Yard. Libraries, cafeteria, academic advising, and study skills services are available.

Graduate Programs

A Master of Liberal Arts in Extension Studies degree can be pursued in at least a dozen fields of concentration: Biology, Dramatic Arts, Fine Arts, Government, History, History of Science, Romance Languages and Literatures, Linguistics, Literature, Psychology and Social Relations, Religion, and Visual and Environmental Studies.

Tuition for the Master's degree is only $86.25 per unit of credit for lecture courses, slightly higher for seminars and independent research courses.

A Certificate of Special Studies in Administration and Management, which represents a year of study beyond the bachelor's degree, is also available. More than 30 special courses are offered in the following fields: policy, planning and operations; human resources development; finance and control; quantitative methods; and business communication.

Tuition for the Certificate is $60 per unit of credit. The Certificate program is designed for students with little or no prior academic training in business or administration.

Registration

Harvard University Extension classes begin the week of September 21. Regular registration: September 21-25 (3:00-8:00 p.m., Monday - Thursday; 3:00-6:00 p.m., Friday); registration for limited enrollment courses only: September 16 and 17 (3:00 - 8:00 p.m.) at Lehman Hall (across from the Harvard-Holyoke MBTA station). Back To School

It's Shearing Time!

By TERRY MAROTTA

The time is a day in early September, the place Europa Coiffures. There's less than a week til Back-to-School and the place is jumping. It's a good day to come in and watch the trade, absorb the excitement, tune in to the energy of a new season in the hatching.

Cara McDonough of Royalston ave. is here today for a permanent. A fifth grader at the Muraco School, Cara is a dedicated athlete and has recently returned from soccer camp.

"I'm tired of having hair that's real straight," she explains. "The ends aren't really together now and snarls make them break more often."

Mario Chiuaccariello, the shop's owner, works with her hair.

When she came in today Cara was wearing long hair that reached well down her back. By the end of her stay she's a different girl: a soft pageboy just sweeps her shoulders, the ends turned ever so slightly under in a graceful curve. She has every reason to be delighted.

Our next Back-to-Schooler is somewhat older than McDonough. Andrea Pirani Cahill returns to the classroom this week too, but her place is on the other side of the desk. At 25, she's a special needs teacher in Rockport who makes a point of returning to her home town for Mario's haircuts.

Andrea's hair is long too — deep brown, glossy and thick. She says she wants it cut so that it will be easier to care for. As Mario explains to us, "I can tell right away if a woman is ready to cut her hair." He takes a few minutes to chat with Andrea; he asks her a few questions.

Recalling their interview later he says he sensed she just wasn't ready to cut it. "I told her that," he adds, "and besides, hair like hers is too beautiful to cut."

Andrea takes his advice and within a few minutes she's wearing his alternative to the cut

Cara McDonough gets her back-to-school permanent.

she thought she wanted: a "geometric" coiffure in which the hair is parted and swept to either side of the head, a loop here, a braid there . . . It looks like what you'd picture Rapunzel wearing while she awaits her prince.

. . . And the day wears on. Styles are discussed, commas and apostrophes of damp hair settle around the bases of the chairs. Scissors flash and blowdryers hum. Ringlets emerge and French braids are coaxed into life. The big look right now for women, we learn, is soft and wavy and natural and swingy. A good cut is the key to that look.

And women aren't the only ones concerned with the right look. A steady procession of males passes through the shop as well.

Take Jonathan Keay, for example. He comes in with a shock of blonde hair, well-bleached by the summer sun and probably three months' worth of pool chlorine too. He looks like any 11-year-old boy at the end of August — part Tom Sawyer and part English Sheepdog.

Ronaldo Manfre is working on Jonathan and Ronaldo's specialty is kids, though he has a goodly following among Winchester's ex-children as well, the writer of this piece among them.

head whose owner puts up a pretty respectable fight. There are tears and squirms; a lollipop is produced; then there are sticky tears and squirms. A problem for Ronaldo? Not in the least. He cuts him in motion: a joke here and SNIP! — the bangs are half done. Another bit of teasing here and they're complete. It's amazing to watch; Ronaldo could probably cut the hair of a kid moving down the street on a ten-speed bike.

Jonathan presents no such challenge however. He's a laid-back customer and philosophical about the whole process. Besides, he knows Ronaldo well, having played on a soccer team coached by him. Like Mario with the McDonough family, Ronaldo cuts and dresses hair for the whole Keay family.

Jon is receiving a classical boys' haircut, we learn; parted on the side, it has a clean look to it, a shaped look. As Ronaldo puts it, "No matter what he does, a cut like this is impossible to mess up." Jonathan shakes his head vigorously by way of demonstrating the point. Absent are both the shaved-poodle effect and the bowl-cut effect; instead he has a series of feathery layers, full and healthy-looking.

The sheepdog is gone for good. Jonathan looks terrific.

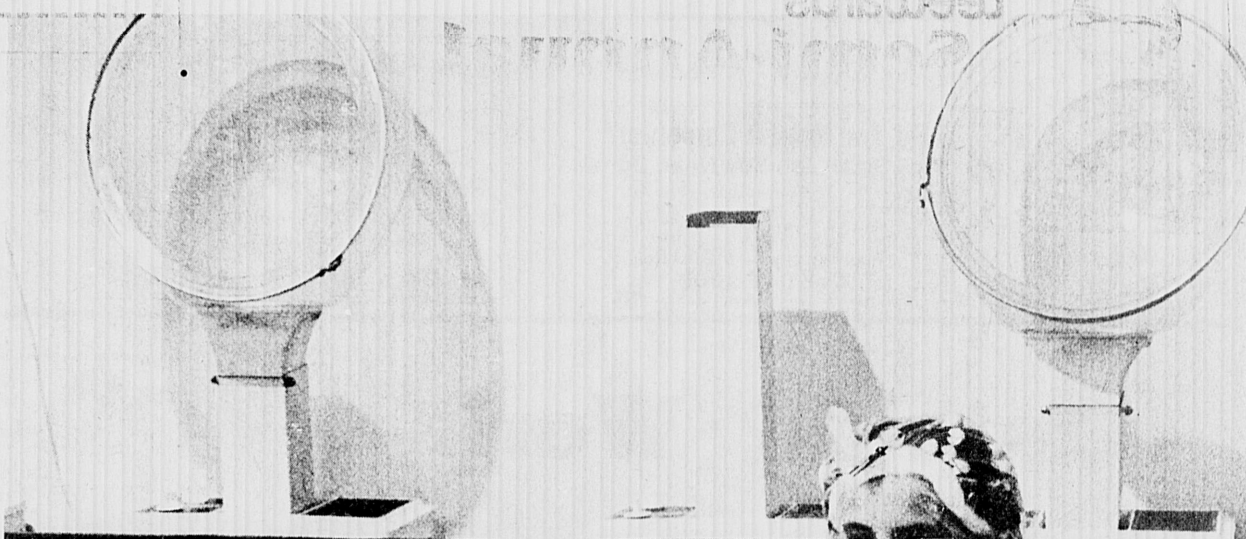

I tell him as much and ask if he's glad he came in today.

"Guess so," he shrugs, "but there are other things I'd rather be doing."

Can't blame a kid for feeling that way, I guess. But whatever Things he's off to do in the next few weeks, he'll be doing them with a little more style.

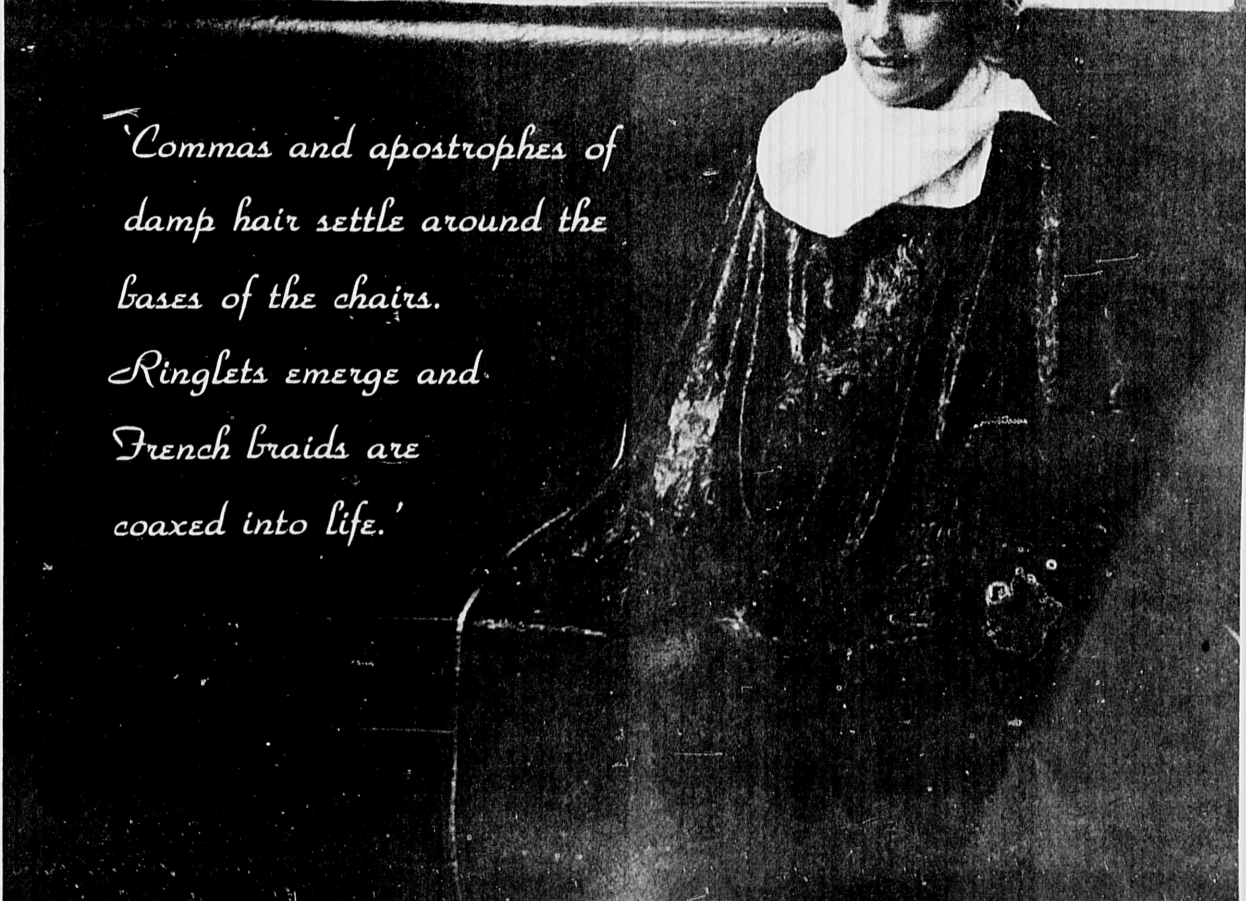

Cara McDonough, 10, of Royalston ave., gets the treatment from Europa hairstylist Mario Chiuaccariello.

Commas and apostrophes of damp hair settle around the bases of the chairs. Ringlets emerge and French braids are coaxed into life.

Jonathan Keay, of Royalston ave., loses some hair to stylist Ronaldo Manfre.

Cara McDonough waits for the magic to work.

submitted, and went to the building and compared them," he told fellow member Clarence Borggaard, "you would see they are totally different."

The reason behind that difference, Alexander explained, was that the "original" plans referred to by Tseckares were not the plans finally approved by the Board of Appeal.

Those final plans were the third set of plans submitted to the Board of Appeal (over a two year period), Alexander explained. Tseckares's "original" plans, what everybody thought they were getting, were the second set.

"They came to us with the third set of plans, saying they had made changes because they had acquired the Costa garage," said Alexander. "They said they were making changes one, two and three, and those were the ones we looked at."

"However, unbeknownst to us, they also made changes four, five and six," he continued. "And unless you went over the plans with a fine-tooth comb, you would never find those last changes."

The changes were noticed when the building went up. What the people at the meeting wanted to figure out was how to notice changes in plans before buildings go up.

Planning Board Chairman Marion Crandall came up with a few suggestion — the first being that sometime after the site plans were approved by the Board of Appeal, the Planning Board review the actual working plans to make sure those agreed with what the two boards thought they were getting.

The working drawings, she noted, had to be submitted to several town departments, such as the Department of Public Works and the Building Dept., during construction.

Either of those departments could forward the working drawings to the Planning Board, she said.

Alexander agreed that sometimes the working drawings, the plans used by the construction workers, didn't match the plans the Board of Appeal thought were being used.

"Some developers seem to have a different view of site plan review than does any of the people around this table," he said. "They see the plans they submit to us as a first draft."

"Then as they build, they feel free to move things around so the final product comes out generally looking like what was in the plans submitted to us," he said.

Randall noted that in light of recent case law, the town would have to be careful that the Planning Board's review of the working drawings wasn't a sort of second Board of Appeal hearing.

If there were any changes in the plans, he said, the plans would have to go back before the Board of Appeal, "so all parties could give evidence as to why the changes were made."

However, Randall did suggest a time for the review. The Building Commissioner, he explained, had to give two occupancy permits for every building.

One stating the structure met state building codes, and the second, town occupancy permit, issued when the building is complete.

"If the Building Commissioner brings the plans to you when they come up for the state occupancy permit, it will be fairly soon into construction," he said, "since the outside walls go up long before they're finished inside."

Aside from that one suggestion, most of the meeting was devoted to a long, spirited debate between Randall, Tseckares and Alexander over whether the Board of Appeal even had the right to judge architectural details.

Tseckares and Alexander maintained that the phrase in the zoning by-laws stating the Board of Appeal could consider if a building was "generally compatible with the surrounding neighborhood" meant they could consider architecture.

Randall even more adamantly maintained it did not.

"Compatibility has nothing to do with architecture," he said. "It means compatibility of the size of the building, the parking, the traffic and the landscape."

The debate went back and forth for three-quarters of an hour, until Crandall finally observed "We obviously have differences of opinion, and it's our opinion that we can control the look of a building."

"We should go on to discuss changes in policy," she said.

But the only other suggestion to come up at the meeting was made half-flippantly by Randall. "What you want is to stamp the cover of your zoning laws and say 'The plans you submit will be considered the final plans.'"

But the suggestion was seized on by the dozen around the table. "Do you think that would work? Would it be legal?" asked Tseckares.

Randall answered in the affirmative, and the meeting ended with the Crandall requesting the town counsel draw up the wording of the statement on the cover.

terms of redistributing the high demand time period for the water.

In the past there was a high demand for water during the day, but since the ban, some of that demand shifted to nighttime.

"We have not conserved a significant amount of water, but it has made it easier to us to operate the system," he said.

Warrington did note, however, that the ban was aimed at helping the MDC cope with their region-wide water demands.

Serratore said Winchester's reservoirs are in good condition now and that Winchester has enough water to last through the end of the year. The town pumped 250 million gallons of water into Spot Pond from May to July. Winchester pays $240 per million gallons of water.

But that does not mean there is no need to worry.

"There is no problem now but in the future we may run out of water if the MDC refuses to supply us with water," said Serratore. "If they get low, they'll cut off our supply and that's our concern. Whether that will happen for sure, I don't know but there is the possibility."

"In the long run it'll help everyone if people try to conserve as much as possible," he continued. "If we go through the same drought problems this year as we did last year, we could run into problems."

"We just ask for people's support at this point," he concluded.

All interested tenors, baritone, and bases are welcome to attend.

The first scheduled concert is at Trinity Church in Copley Square in November with a program of English Choral Music.

teams battled to 1-1 ties both times out.

"But they did lose their great goalie this year," Scanlon noted. "A lot of teams are facing re-building this year."

And if the schedule handed the Sachemettes a tough match for the team's season debut, it did provide the first seven games be at home.

"That means the last seven will have to be away games," noted Scanlon, "but it's not a bad schedule. We'll be a tough team by the time we go on the road."

Literature Group To Read O'Connor

The Winchester Literature Group will discuss Flannery O'Connor's book of short stories, "A Good Man Is Hard To Find" at the group's first meeting of the year tomorrow, at 7:30 p.m., in the home of Kathy Romer, 43 Glen rd. New members are welcome.

whether or not this would solve the vandalism problems.

"It's like locking your doors," he said. "If someone wants to break in, they will. The type of people who would commit vandalism would break down the fence."

McElhinney did, however, say that he was sure that if the vandalism could be prevented there would be fewer fires in the Fells.

"Most fires are caused by vandalism," he said. "Very seldom do they start by lightning. A lot of people also think it's a camping area and they light fires. Sometimes they are unattended and a gust of wind comes along and starts a fire.

No matter how they start, the incidence of fires is high in the Fells.

"We spend a considerable amount of time there," said McElhinney. "That deprives the rest of the town of our services. It takes quite a while to break down hoses there. Unfortunately many fires are set in areas far from the road where we can't easily reach them."

The fire apparatus is not designed for off highway work and McElhinney said they have had to do quite a few repairs on trucks after driving through the Fells.

He is submitting a request at fall Town Meeting for a four-wheel drive brush vehicle in next year's budget. This request has been submitted in the past, but has been denied.

Leutenant firefighter John Regan, representing the firefighters union, came before the Selectmen at their last meeting to show support for McElhinney's request for the vehicle and to speak out on the Fells situation.

"We feel cheated because the town is cheated by spending their money for improper patrolling," Regan said. McElhinney said they have had a large number of incidents in the past when all their equipment was tied up in the Fells while fires burned in town.

"When all our pumps are up there, then we have a delay in getting to a fire in town and the whole community is deprived," he said. "That is my main concern."

"People pay taxes to have a crew to fight town fires," he continued. "It's one thing if the crew is tied up with another fire in town, but when they're tied up with irresponsible acts of vandalism in the Fells, it's disheartening."

Can Booters Repeat 14 Win Seasons?

Tradition May Pull Girls Through Re-Building

Girls soccer coach Chris Scanlon is hoping Red Auerbach's formula will work for his Sachemettes.

The connection between basketball and soccer may seem a bit tenuous, but the Celts and the Sachemettes do have a few things in common. Like a winning tradition.

The Celts tradition doesn't need any explanation here (except the obligatory mention of "the championship flags hanging from the Garden rafters"). In these parts, neither does the Sachemettes' tradition.

In their first three seasons, the girl booters suffered nary a loss, and won the league title to boot.

It's the other part of the Celts tradition the Sachemettes are going to need this season. No matter what ever happened to the Celts personnel, Auerbach always managed to find a new star. When Russell left, Red found Cowens. Havlicek retires, Red convinces Larry Bird to come to Boston.

Well this season, Scanlon lost his versions of Russell and Cowens and Havlicek and Bird — all in one blow.

Scanlon lost seven starters this year, including his leading scorers — Ann Porell and Andrea deMars — and defensive ace Prudy Horne.

But Scanlon is confident that some "new and exciting talent", a handful of returning veterans, and the team's winning tradition can keep his team at the top of the standings.

"When you have that winning tradition, it seems to feed on itself," Scanlon said. "Of course, each year the odds are that much more against you repeating an undefeated season."

"But the girls have worked hard in practice, and they want to keep winning," he added.

And Scanlon noted that even if the girls had never played with the Sachemettes before, they weren't novices.

"The girls start playing soccer in grammar school, thanks to the Youth Soccer program. They really do a great job teaching them the game," he said.

Scanlon also has a core of outstanding veterans coming back from last year's 14-0-2 team. Junior Maria Montuori, an all-scholastic last year, will be back, along with Kim Donlon and Paula Papastathis. Goalie Julie Sullivan and half-back Ann Hitchcock will also provide some seasoning to the squad.

That still leaves a lot of holes to be filled, but Scanlon said he's got enough "outstanding sophmores and juniors" to fill up any roster.

"We even had two freshmen who made the team and may even start for us," added Scanlon, referring to right halfback Paula Russo and right wing Michele Powers.

Whether or not these new recruits can do the job well enough to keep up the tradition will become apparent in the first few games of the Sachemettes season.

"The first games are the most important, especially for a young team," said Scanlon. "You've got to get the momentum going. And a few wins will give the girls confidence."

Unfortunately for Winchester, the first games of the season will be against one of the toughest opponents — the Belmont Marauders.

"They'd be the toughest no matter when we played them in the season, never mind that it's the first game," said Scanlon.

Seniors Return To Boys Team

Soccer Coach Gene Bouley is absolutely crowing over the prospects for this year's boys soccer team.

Last year's Sachem booters, you may recall, finished the season with a 4-1-3 record, and went to the regional semifinals before being stopped by a tenacious Billerica defense, 1-0.

And this year, Bouley's got the heart, soul, head, arms and any other appendage of last year's winning team back. In fact, all but two of Bouley's prospective starters are seniors.

"Basically, we have the entire team back," said Bouley, without being able to resist a grin. "It's just about an all senior team."

Last year's soccer team was an offense-oriented operation, and Bouley noted that his most sure-footed booters will be back in the line-up this year.

Last year's league-leading scorer, Paul Williamson, will be back at center forward. Two other top-kickers for the team, Eric Lowenstein and David Suvak, will also be back on the roster.

Suvak and Lowenstein, however, will be moving back from the front line to fill what may be the only hole in this year's Sachems.

Bouley explained that his team lost three key full-backs to graduation last May. Brian Donnellon, Neil Frink and team Capt. Jim Fallon won't be back in a Sachem's uniform this fall — and that will hurt.

So Lowenstein and Suvak are going back to sweeper back and half-back, respectively. And Bouley's going to try something a little bit different this year, keeping an extra man back on defense.

Football Team May Go All The Way

Manny Marshall doesn't believe everything he reads in the papers.

Last Tuesday, The Boston Globe's schoolboy sports staff picked Winchester to take the Middlesex League Football football title this season.

It's hard to fault The Globe's pick. Last year, out of nowhere, the Sachems put together an 8-2 season, lead by Gary Errico and quarterback Richie Fennell. In fact, the only games the Sachems lost came when Errico was on the bench with an injury.

And to top off the season, the Sachems beat arch-rival Woburn in the annual Thanksgiving Day feud.

But to Marshall's way of thinking, all that is in the past. This is a whole new season — with quite a few new faces.

"We lost 27 seniors last year, and that's something people don't understand," said Marshall, sitting in his office before last Tuesday's practice session.

"I'm not bad-mouthing the players — we've got some very good athletes this season," he said. "But there's nothing like having played."

"Most of our players, although they're good, played either sophomore or J.V. football last year," he explained. "And there is a big, big difference between playing at that level and playing varsity."

Marshall may be playing down the talent of this year's squad, made up of 24 seniors and 35 juniors. He admits he doesn't want to put pressure on the kids, making them feel they have must win.

But once he starts talking about the individual talent on this year's team, it's hard to see where the Sachems can go wrong.

"We could be very strong defensively," said Marshall. "I don't think it's any one thing or position. We've just got a lot of good kids on defense."

Marshall is looking for four returning defensemen — defensive end Paul Manganero, tackle Tom Porell, linebacker Mark Micicche and cornerback Greg Kirk — to help stop the enemy offensives this year.

Asked whether his defensive squad will be tougher against the run or the pass, Marshall would only say "We'd better be strong against both."

Sachem fans may see a change in the offensive style of the team — away from the ball-control offense of last season to a passing game this season.

"We've got some good receivers and we can throw the ball well," said Marshall. "Ideally, we'd like to mix it up."

"I'd like to go out and run a lot, pass, do whatever we have to to score points," he added.

Last year's starting quarterback, Richie Fennell, will be back again to head the offensive squad.

He'll have a lot of capable hands to throw the ball to. Marshall notes at least a half dozen good receivers on the team.

"Jeff Stackpole can catch the ball, so can Steve and Robbie MacDonald," he said. "We've got Joe Donnellon — just a lot of good receivers."

The offensive backfield will be led by last year's starting fullback Steve Costello. Marshall's also looking for Mark Johnson, Will Hurley, Bill Ferry and Chuck Allen to grind out some yards for the Sachems.

"All the backs are doing a good job," Marshall said. "And we've got a good, back-up quarterback in Chris Cahill."

Protecting those backs, and attacking enemy backs this year will be a couple of pretty massive lines.

Both in the offensive and defensive pits, Marshall said the team has "good size."

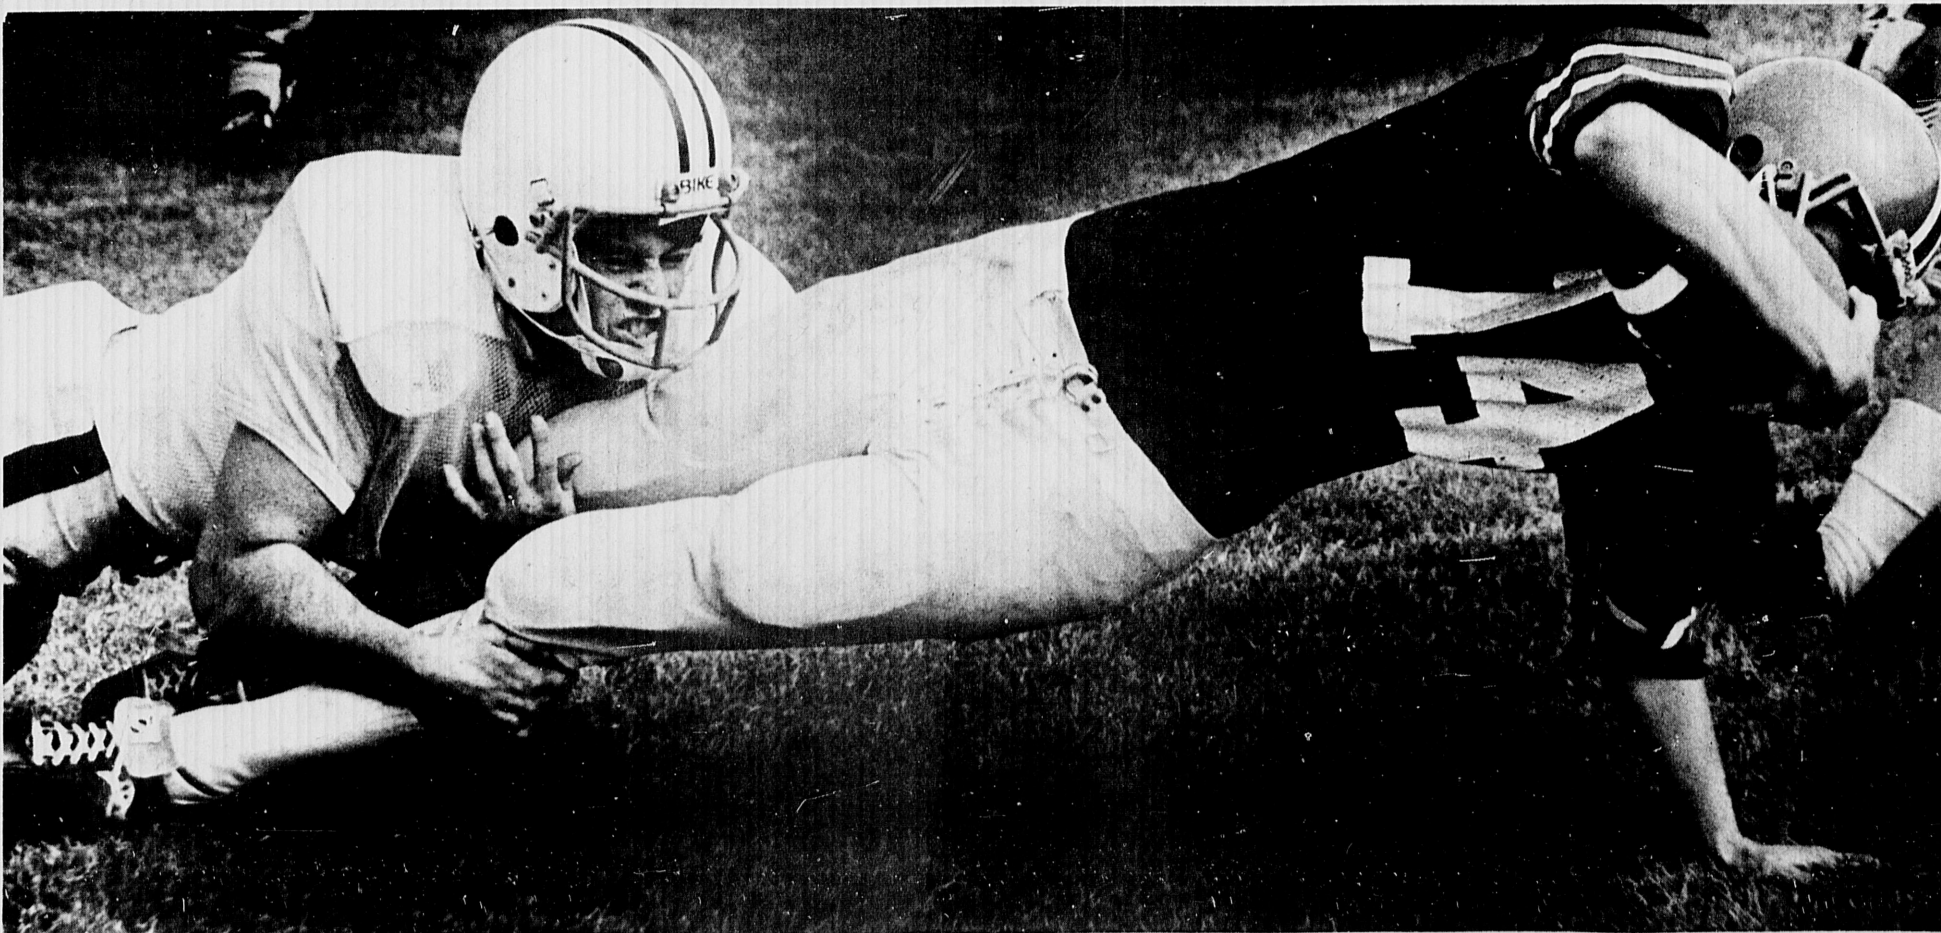

"We're big and we're not slow. I'll tell you that," he said. "These are some of the best lines we've had. Some years we had linemen down around 185, 195 pounds. But we've been blessed with some good sized kids this year."

But on the other hand, the lines exemplify a couple problems that run through the whole squad.

One, they're inexperienced. But they'll get over that in a few games. It's the other problem that has Marshall worried — the lack of depth.

"We need back-up people — we are

HOMEBUYER TAX BREAK

If a taxpayer sells his principal residence and buys another one for use as a principal residence from 18 months before to 18 months after the date of sale, the gain on the sale will not be currently taxed. This holds as long as the cost of the new residence equals or exceeds the selling price of the old.

If the cost of the new residence is less than the selling price of the old, the gain is taxed only to the extent of the difference.

Where the taxpayer builds, rather than buys, construction must be started from 18 months before to 18 months after the date of the sale and the new home occupied by two years after the sale. This way, the taxpayer gets full benefit from the tax provision.

Under the old rule, each 18-month period described above was only 12 months and the two-year occupancy requirement was only 18 months. This new rule extends both periods by six months.

★ Boys

"We've got different personnel this year, so we're going to try something different," the coach said. "But I don't see us having a problem with defense. 'There were five or six boys last year who were getting experience,' he explained. 'I feel the strength is there.' This year's defense will be backstopped by goalie Mark Steranka, who will share captain's duties with Williamson. In front of Steranka will be a full complement of senior defensemen. Bouley's pencilled in Chris Wagstrom at full-back, Lowenstein at sweeper, and Doug Oram, Al Chen and "three or four other promising players" according to Bouley, at stopper. The offense will be led by Williamson, along with seniors Scott Bown and Eric Paskarian at right wing, and the only two juniors among the starters, Michael Driscoll and Chris Guarnaccia, at left wing.

Bouley will get a chance to work the early bugs out of his newly created defense, thanks to this year's schedule. Every year, Winchester must play the other three perennial league-leaders — Belmont, Lexington and Wakefield — right in a row.

This year, the matches with those teams will be at the end of each half of the season, giving Winchester time to get ready for those games.

And if last year's crew can do that same job this year, the Sachems should be rolling by then.

Ball Five — By Susan Schneck

You Can't Judge A Cop By His Cover

When the Winchester Star softball team discovered we had been challenged by the Winchester Police Dept. two weeks ago, we were ecstatic. Let's face it. There are a few fellows on the force who look like a cooking (and eating) rank quite high among their hobbies, if not vocations.

Word travelled through The Star building faster than it travels through a grapevine. Newspeople are notorious bigmouths. Finally, The Star might have a chance to win a softball game.

We knew they would not dare steal the bases, yell offensive names to our pitcher or publicly spit on the ball.

As we warmed up on the West Side Field that Thursday evening, we all had visions of being superstars. Large victory headlines passed through our minds. So what if the police department dressed up in intimidating uniforms that out-Yanked the N.Y. Yankees.

So what if they all came to the game carrying their mits in athletic bags marked "Winchester Police." (By the way, that is a good inscription to have to ensure that no one will steal your sports stuff.)

Really, we were not even quaking in our shoes when they started calling each other "Jackrabbit James," "Fastball Fred," "Powerhouse Paul," "Collision Ken," and "Base-jumping John."

We knew they were using all those gimmicks to cover up for the fact that they were slower than us. They might have the weight over us, but we knew we had to be quicker.

Well, you can't judge a cop by his cover.

Maybe that is why they are so effective at catching criminals in Winchester. Those guys can really run.

Officer Dan McGee, for instance, ran so fast towards home plate that he could not stop and flew right over the fence to land on his back, dumbfounded.

To tell you the truth, although the score was a close 22-18, we at the Star, being the honest newsmen that we are, must admit that about half of our runs were made by errors on their part. But Lord help the cop who makes an error. Apparently mistakes do not go over too well at the Winchester Police Department. As each player approached the plate, he was reminded, rather loudly by his teammates, of the beer equivalents he owed for past errors. This reminder was followed by an offer for redemption if there was some good hitting.

Take Eric Benson for example. He owes his fellow teammates about a week's salary in beers for errors made on the field. And they didn't let him forget about his chances to redeem himself — especially when he was up at bat with bases loaded. Although he did hit a double, it probably would have been a home run if there were not so many comments from the peanut gallery.

And the back slapping that goes on when a good play is scored? No wonder Benson made so many errors in the field. If I had some guy like John Oliver who is as broad as he is at slapping me on the back after a good play, I'd fumble too. Then as if we were not surprised enough that day, our preconceptions regarding the pitcher, Lieutenant Joseph Perritano, were completely shattered.

What a fake-out he turned out to be. That big brute operated from the pitching mound like a ballerina. He was practically "on-pointe" when he released that beautiful arc. A splendid show of sportsmanship — enough to make you think he was a Harriet Hochter Ballet School grad.

With fleet-footed toughs like the Winchester police on patrol, every Winchester resident can sleep soundly.

Even with such an able bunch of cops on the force, however, there might not be much police news in the Star next week — after this article, they wouldn't talk to us if we had the best lead to a bank robbery. But we thought it was our duty to tell the story.

Besides, we would not want to be criticized for failing to print the story on the game we lost.

very thin," the coach said. "If we have any injuries we are going to have problems."

Marshall, for example, now has only three certain starters at tackle. And he can't forget how injuries hurt last year's team.

Errico, and we lose two ballgames." If the team can stay healthy, Marshall thinks they can get over their lack of experience at the varsity level.

"Unless I'm reading things wrong, we've got a lot of good people," he explained. "If we can get off to a good start and win a few ballgames, we'll do well."

There are two divisions: (1) competition shooting division which is a North-South Skirmish Association unit that competes in team matches with a full-sized muzzleloading cannon as well as with muskets, carbines and revolvers of the pre-1865 era. And (2) the "choulder and marching division" which takes part in parades, battle re-enactments, and authentic living history demonstrations. You can join either or both depending on your interests. Obituaries

Stephen Edgell

Stephen M. Edgell, 65, of Sheffield rd. west, died suddenly Aug. 31 in Weymouth's South Shore Hospital.

A member of a distinguished Rhode Island family that went back to Elder Brewster and Roger Williams, he was a grandson of the late U.S. senator from Rhode Island, Nelson W. Aldrich, advisor to four presidents and founder of the Federal Reserve Banking System.

Edgell graduated from the Rivers Country Day School and the Beacon School in Wellesley.

He served for four years in the U.S. Army in World War II, two of those years spent in Alaska, until the war ended.

Following that, he attended and graduated from the Progressive School of Photography, in New Haven, Conn., and had also studied sculpture with Frederick W. Allen, of Boston.

Edgell took hundreds of fine photographs of Boston's Old West End, for a history of that area being written by his wife, artist Claudia Kelly Edgell.

That work was temporarily put aside in 1971, when the Edgells became involved in working as volunteer lobbyists for animal welfare legislation at the Mass. State House, with well-known humanitarian, Dorothy Checchi O'Brien.

They were successful in regaining the 10-day holding period for lost dogs, and in making Massachusetts the first state to ban the use of decompression chambers for killing animals.

A lifelong lover of music and art, Edgell was with his family, a grand patron of the Civic Symphony Orchestra, of Boston; a charter member of the U.S.S. Constitution Museum and N.E. Aquarium, as well as the Colonial Afghan Hound Club.

He was a member of the Society for the Preservation of N.E. Antiquities, the Winchester Antiques Study Group, and the Museum of Fine Arts, to which the Edgells gave several gifts, notably, a rare John Tallman piano.

Mr. Edgell and his wife and son gave many rare antique books to the Boston Athenaeum and the Bostonian Society, and antique wallpaper-lined trunks to the S.P.N.E.A., for their collections.

The Edgells were directly responsible for saving the historic Sullivan County Court House, in Newport, N.H., from demolition, by enlisting the S.P.N.E.A.'s help. The building is now on the National Register of Historic Sites.

Mr. Edgell was a familiar figure at dog shows, showing their Afghan Hounds with his family, which gave the Best of Breed trophy each year at the Eastern Dog Club Show, as well as other top trophies in that breed, at that and other shows.

He leaves his wife, and son, Stephen M. Edgell, III, of Winchester; a sister, Stephanie Edgell, of Greenwich, Conn.; a sister, Mrs. George S. Franklin, of New York and several cousins, nieces and nephews.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. N. Stuart Campbell, of Greenwich, Conn., and the late Stephen M. Edgell, who died in 1920.

Funeral was held from the Lane Funeral Home on Sept. 3 followed by a funeral mass at St. Paul's Church, Cambridge. Burial was in Old Calvary Cemetery in Boston. Funeral arrangements were by Lane Funeral Home.

Jessie Nowell

Jessie V. (MacKinnon) Nowell, 83, of Eaton st., died Sept. 1 in the Winchester Nursing Home following a long illness.

Born in Ft. Hood, Nova Scotia, she lived in Winchester for 64 years, and worked as a cook in the School Dept. for 17 years.

Mrs. Nowell was a member of St. Mary's Church for many years, and a member of the St. Mary's Sodality. She was the widow of Winchester firefighter James L. Nowell.

She is survived by two sons, John F. Nowell of Winchester, and A. Joseph Nowell of Woburn; three daughters, Ann T. MacMillan, Margaret L. Kennedy and Marion A. Callahan, all of Winchester; two sisters, Mary MacKinnon of Winchester and Catherine McLellan of Randolph; a brother, Dougald MacKinnon of Nova Scotia; 39 grand children and 14 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the Lane Funeral Home on Friday, Sept. 4 at 9:15 a.m., followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery in Woburn. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Model Railroad Show

The North Shore Model Railroad Club will be holding its second annual show and open house on Saturday, Sept. 12 at the Wakefield Elks Hall on Bay State rd. in Wakefield.

The show will feature model railroad exhibits and dealer displays, as well as exciting railroad movies and how-to-do-it clinics on various aspects of the hobby. The club's own expansive model railroad, still under construction, will be open all day to visitors.

GOLDEN MEMORIES

When someone we held very dear departed and left us blue,
And we were engulfed by floods of tears

Here's what we often do;

We think of the many happy times
God let us call him our own,
And try not to think of how it is and all the aches we hold.

We try to control the flooding tears and accept what God decrees,
And that is why we value
all our golden memories.

Summer Season Comes To End At Boat Club

Bowers Boys Are Mass Midget Sail Champions

The team of Jimmy and Michael Bowers recently returned from the Wood Trophy Sailing Regatta (Aug. 25 and 26) as the Massachusetts Bay Midget Champions. Jimmy the skipper, is 12 and Michael is 11.

The regatta sailed on the Charles River in MIT Tech Dinghies, included 14 races in a wide range of weather and conditions. The first day, the midgets (sailors under fourteen) used storm sails because of the steady 20 knot winds with gusts to 30 knots. But flat calms alternated with feeble puffs on the second day, as the sea breeze often succeeded in cancelling out the weather system wind.

Jimmy and Michael opened the series impressively, leading the first race at every mark to win comfortably. Tim Collins of Duxbury nearly won the second race, but again the Bower boys prevailed, drawing on their lake sailing experience to capitalize on a wind shift close to the finish line.

Yet talent was deep in the fleet of twenty boats (one team for practically every yacht club in the Mass. Bay area), and teams from Cottage Park Yacht Club in Winthrop, Hull Yacht Club, Duxbury and Hingham all recorded high finishes.

At the end of the first day, and nine races, Jimmy and Michael were tied for first place with Collins of Duxbury and his crew, with most of the other clubs in contention.

Spectating on the second day was quite exciting, despite the light winds, as boats would do quite well for a while, then be passed, and then pass a lot of boats themselves. The Bower boys managed some terrible starts, and still finished no worse than fifth in any race. It was this consistency that earned them the championship. The team from Duxbury eliminated itself from contention by illegally hitting a starting mark and neglecting to round it.

The team from Hull did quite well, and might have won the regatta despite two bad finishes, if they could have done substantially better than the Winchester team in the last two races. But they did not, and Jimmy and Michael won the last race going away, having passed the Hull team on the first leg of the course.

Regattas, Swim Awards End Boat Club Summer

The Winchester Boat Club ended the summer with two regattas and the awarding of the Boat Club Swimming Awards. This weekend, the Boat Club will host the National 10's Senior Cup Regatta on the Upper Mystic Lake.

Charlie Hagedorn and crew Michael Bowers won the Snipe Boats Regatta, a two-day, five-race event held recently. Dave Lence and crew Dave Koepf took second, and David Sealise came in third.

Father and daughter team George and Amy Dillon won their event in the Snipe Regatta.

During the Labor Day weekend, the club held the long-standing Dillon Cup Regatta, a three-day National 10's race.

Jimmy Bowers Jr. won the regatta, followed by Charlie Price, WBC Commodore Jim Bowers, Pam Boerner, and Maarten Nordzij.

As for the swimming arm of the Boat Club, Tracey Caulfield won this year's award for overall sportsmanship and leadership.

The Most Valuable overall girl swimmer was Lyndsay Caulfield and the Most Valuable overall boy swimmer was Andy Laats.

The Most Valuable Girl swimmers in their respective age groups were Sarah O'Connor, Katie Coakley, Lyndsay Caulfield, Kerry McCarron and Elizabeth Porras. Most Valuable Boy swimmers were Brice Gaeta, Kevin Connolly, Jimmy Bowers, Andy Laats and Michael Guarnaccia.

Most Improved Boy swimmers were Jonathan White, Peter Cote, Andrew Sexeny, Matt Kennedy and Mark Tonaszuck. Most Improved Girl swimmers were Elizabeth Holt, Wendy Boerner, Julie Guranotta, Maura Dobbins, Jeanne O'Brien and Martha Coakley.

Eleven Boat Club swimmers broke club records this season.

In the eight-year-old and under division, Sarah O'Connor broke the girls butter and breast stroke records, Maura Riley took the girls back and free-stroke records, and Brice Gaeta holds the boys butter, back, breast and free-stroke records.

In the 10-and-under division, Joan Riley broke the girls butter, back, breast and free-stroke records, and Kevin Connolly took the back and breast-stroke records.

In the 12-and-under, Lyndsay Caulfield now holds the free, fly, I.M. and back-stroke records.

In the 14-and-under division, Kerry McCarron broke the girls breast-stroke record, and Matt Williams did the same for the boys. Andy Laats broke the fly, free and back-stroke records.

In the 17-and-under division, Elizabeth Porras took the free and fly-stroke marks, and Alex Laats holds the new breast and I.M. stroke records.

Cable TV Has Come To Town

They did it. Continental Cable promised they would bring cable television to Winchester by Sept. 15, and they made their deadline at least in one corner of Winchester.

Tuesday, 13 Arthur st. became the first home in Winchester to get their set hooked up and ready to receive 35 channels, four special movie channels, and local programming offered by Continental.

Robert O'Brien, 20, and his sister Judith, 23, the first two cable subscribers in the town, watched eagerly as installer Rick Pluff drilled a small hole in the baseboard to run the cable through.

Robert said he was looking forward to getting cable. "I want to watch the movies and Home Box Office," he said. The siblings have already decided how to settle disputes when one wants to watch "Airplane" and the other wants to see "Alien." They will flip a coin, Robert said.

The actual installation of the cable into the O'Brien home was a simple matter. Pluff drilled two holes in the inside and outside walls (they will be plugged once the cable is run, and no water, bugs or air will get through the holes, Pluff noted).

Then he ran a cable from the outside cable line on the telephone pole outside the O'Brien house, through the walls, and into a cable signal converter attached to the television set.

A few quick connections, a turn of the knob, and everything was ready to go. Meanwhile, Continental's staff is rushing to finish the construction of their Main st. studio, sell the cable service around town, and hook up the sets.

At the cable studio on Sept. 15, work men were finishing up the new ramp leading to the Continental's office area. Inside, much of the construction is finished.

Bare wallboard still needed a coat of paint, and wires hung from everywhere, awaiting a connection. But the major work—the raising of the studio's ceiling, the installation of plumbing, and the construction of the addition on the north side—was done.

Systems manager Steve Pollack said the work on the studio should be completed within ten days, and local programming will start soon after that. "Technically speaking, we can start the local access programming as soon as we open the studio," said Pollack.

But, Pollack added, although some local programming will start immediately, the bulk of it won't begin until local citizens are trained to use the equipment.

To that end, Continental is setting up a 14-week training course, free to Winchester citizens, to teach students how to use television studio equipment, man the studio control room, and generally produce their own shows.

"After that 14 weeks, and after we

TWO APPROACHES— There's more than one way to get into a tug-of-war. Rec. Programs Saved From Ax

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Fun and fitness-loving residents can breathe a sigh of relief. The period of indecision is over.

Once again, it's fun and games at the financially unstable Winchester Recreation Department.

The Finance Committee voted 14 to 1 Monday night to transfer $3,828 for fiscal year 1982 from the Reserve fund which contained $100,000, to the recreation budget.

This action allows the Recreation Dept. to begin registration for the fall season as planned on Saturday, Sept. 19.

Needless to say, Recreation Dept. Director Ken Cereghino was pleased with the decision and relieved to know the status of his Dept.—even if he only found out five days before registration begins.

"I'm very, very pleased," he said.

The recreation department once again found itself in a financial bind three weeks ago when the School Committee eliminated custodians at certain schools used by the Recreation Dept. for evening fall and winter programs. The School Dept. decided not to foot the bill anymore as part of the school budget reductions.

Custodial contracts do not permit programs to run without custodial service. The Rec. Dept. would have had to raise user fees to compensate for the additional costs.

But user fees were recently raised from what they cost in 1981, following a cut in the Rec. budget.

For example, adult volleyball was offered for free in 1981 and after the 1980 budget cut, the Rec. Dept. raised that activity to $8. If users had to compensate for custodial costs, volleyball would have cost $18.

Danceroics, a $25 activity would have gone up to $41 to cover custodial costs. The YMCA in Woburn charges $25 for the same course.

The Finance Committee decided to appropriate the money to the Rec. Dept. after debating for 30 minutes.

Strongly speaking in favor of the transfer, Finance Committee member Robert K. Quinn said, "This town has a $70,000 Rec. Dept. budget which is practically nothing. If the Police Chief, Fire Chief or Public Works Dept. needed a new piece of equipment we'd give it to them. This man (Cereghino) wants $3,800 out of a fund from which we reverted $3,000 back to the town last year and I'm willing to give it to him."

Condo Plan For Rangely Rd. Aired

By WILLIAM KLEINKNECHT

Boasting a new approach to condominium proposals in Winchester, a developer Monday presented the Planning Board with citizens' testimony to support his quest for the approval of a 17-unit complex on Rangely rd.

Representing Nicholas Fitzgerald, part owner of the proposed site for 23 years, Philip S. Singleton of The Crownshield Management Co. of Peabody told the board of his efforts to consult neighbors while planning four clusters of two-story townhouses on 79,000 square feet of land near the corner of Church st.

Singleton and Board Member Charles Tseckares claimed the discussion of building design with concerned citizens should be seen as a precedent in the future consideration of condominiums.

Board chairman Marion Crandall complimented Singleton, saying "This is the first thing to come before the town that is responsive to neighborhood concerns."

The chairman and other board members, however, questioned the wisdom of granting the project the proposed density of nearly nine units per acre, pointing out the current limit is six units per acre.

But Tseckares, who has been working with Singleton and who stepped down from the board when it discussed the project, claimed the limit should not be rigidly applied. He said building and topographical design can drastically improve the appearance of a complex and that a special permit could be issued for the high density.

At the same time Singleton indicated that a lower density would endanger the feasibility of his plans. He attributed the need for a large number of units to skyrocketing interest rates which show no sign of declining.

"A lot will depend on what happens in the financial markets," Singleton said. "If they continue in their present condition, there will be little or no flexibility."

While the chairman seemed adamant about keeping the units within six per acre, Board Member Clarence Borggaard said, "Nowadays, with the economics of the thing, to build single family homes is almost impossible. Public sentiment is in your favor." Borggaard lauded Singleton's ability to win the confidence of the neighbors, saying "They're a formidable group

Pigskins Shatter Peace And Windows

By JOHN WILPERS and SUSAN SCHNECK

With the first game of the 1981 football season only two days away, almost every man, woman and child in Sachemland is bursting with excitement and anticipation.

Almost everyone. Mrs. Mary C. Spencer, 16 Manchester rd. is definitely NOT looking forward to the pigskin kick off. Mrs. Spencer has had her fill of pigskins. Literally.

For the last fifteen years, the blasted things have been crashing through Mrs. Spencer's windows and back doors with disturbing regularity. Mrs. Spencer just happens to live right behind one of the Manchester field goal posts. Right where all the footballs kicked for points after touchdowns and field goals land. And not only have the Sachems been prolific at scoring touchdowns but also, and unfortunately for Mrs. Spencer, the 1981 WHS squad looks like it will do more scoring than most previous Sachem teams.

Last Saturday was the last straw. Winchester was playing a pre-season scrimmage against Billerica. At home. Mrs. Spencer had sat down for a quiet lunch in her dining room. "Suddenly, it was like a bomb went off in the living room," she recalled. Not a bomb, just another Sachem football sailing through her sliding glass doors.

So Mrs. Spencer put down her lunch and went into the livingroom to usher in the 1981 gridiron season in her own unique way. "I was down on my hands and knees sweeping up the glass and another ball comes crashing in, this time through the windows," she said. "I was covered with glass—you could see bits of it stuck to me and I could shake it out of my hair."

"I've had it," she said. And indeed she has.

Mrs. Spencer called the police and insisted that this time, for the first time, the town should repair the door and windows. The police contacted a school department maintenance official who repaired the damage later that afternoon.

That, however, is not enough for Mrs. Spencer. Not now.

"The whole point is that this will happen again and again during the football season unless the town makes some kind of arrangement," she said. "Why don't they erect a fence to protect my house? I've gotten nothing but the royal run-around."

And a lot of unpaid bills for window replacement. "This goes on every year but I've never had a window paid for once," Mrs. Spencer said. "Well, I'm not paying anymore."

It's not that she hasn't tried to get reimbursement. "I've sent bills to the town and they have sent them back," she said. And when she has called town officials to ask for help, she said she is constantly referred to other officials until she has given up out of frustration.

Now, she said, she is thinking of retaining an attorney.

But hope may soon be on the way. School Superintendent William MacDonald said that arrangements have been made to repair a hole in the fence by Spencer's home and to increase the height and width of the fence.

"My first contact with Mrs. Spencer was last Monday," he said. "I contacted Athletic Director Bill Collella who set up a meeting with Mr. Trefari from the Public Works Dept. and a fencing company. Bill told me the fencing will be increased by 6 feet in height and 30 feet in length, hopefully before this Saturday's football game. I think this response was rather quick and sympathetic."

In terms of monetary reimbursement possibilities, however, MacDonald was not as optimistic.

"I know of no way the school dept. can reimburse her, there just is no vehicle for us to do that," he said. "A personal opinion of mine though is that it would be rather hard for any department in town to assume 15 years of retroactive alleged damages."

Town Manager Tom Groux said that he last heard from Mrs. Spencer over a year ago and that he has tried to help her.

"We added more police patrols near her house since she contacted me," he said. "We've also changed some fence locks."

"I guess I'd be bothered too if I lived so close to a school playfield," he continued. "If a kid is a great good kicker, I'd like to give him a trophy but I wish he'd kick in the other direction. Unfortunately you need goal posts at both ends of the field."

Groux said the matter came up at the Selectmen's meeting Monday night and that he plans to work with the school athletic department on the possibilities of screening off that area.

"I don't doubt there is somewhat of a nuisance there and we'll try to minimize the problem as much as possible for Mrs. Spencer," he said.

As far as the possibilities of reimbursing Mrs. Spencer for any damages incurred over the years, Groux was doubtful.

"I haven't seen any bills for broken windows but I'm certain the Public Works Department couldn't accept any responsibility for footballs causing damage," he said. "I don't know if the school could but I plan to mention it to some people in the athletic department."

Gridirers, however, are not the only window busters. "I get golf balls through my windows," she said. "There are elderly people who go out at night and practice. I have pleaded with them to shoot in the other direction but they like to shoot toward the trees at my end of the field." Terrific.

And that's not all. "I've got a great collection of baseballs," she said. "And now I'm getting some lacrosse balls. Those things don't just break windows, either, they break shingles when they miss the windows."

Sometimes the intruders are human. "Two years ago, I had to cancel my Thanksgiving dinner because there were hundreds of people in my backyard and sitting on my roof to watch the Winchester-Woburn game."

"Those people had the gall to sit on my roof like they owned it and totally ignored me," she said. "They trampled a fence separating my lawn from my flowers and it cost me $250 to fix it."

"I almost lost my mind that day," she said.

"If that happens this Thanksgiving,

I'll go out and get a hose," she said. "But it's terrible that a person has to be pushed to this point."

"I've been told I've been too nice about not pushing the town for reimbursement or protection," she added. "Isn't that awful?"

Yes, and so is the outlook for the 1981 Sachem season, at least from the perspective at 16 Manchester rd. "I'm scared stiff we'll have a good team," Mrs. Spencer moaned.

Rogers Retires, But Vows To Return

Women threw flowers. Strong men broke down in tears. Children kissed his hand. And Mystery Photographer Noreen Murphy did cartwheels the length of Church st.

But — Noreen stopped in mid-cartwheel — the Mystery Photo desk hasn't seen the last of Richard Rogers. Like his hero, Muhammad Ali, Rogers vowed to return.

"I hope the next guy enjoys being champ, because I'm going to come back and take the crown," he promised. "I am the champ."

Four months ago, Richard Rogers was nothing but an ordinary guy, living on Chestnut st. and delivering fuel. Today, he's a superstar.

The saga of Richard Rogers began one day some fifteen correct Mystery Photo answers ago, when Rogers was driving his wife to work.

Clad in the regalia of a champion — a red, white and blue baseball cap, and a T-shirt, both inscribed with "Mystery Photo Champion" — the notorious puzzle-solver sits in a chair, draws heavily on a Lucky, and unfolds his tale.

"I found the first one by accident," he began. "I was driving up Ridge st. with my wife, Walda, when I saw it (the island at the intersection of Ridge and Hutchinson — the first Mystery Photo).

"I started shouting, 'That's it, That's it, That's that picture in The Star'."

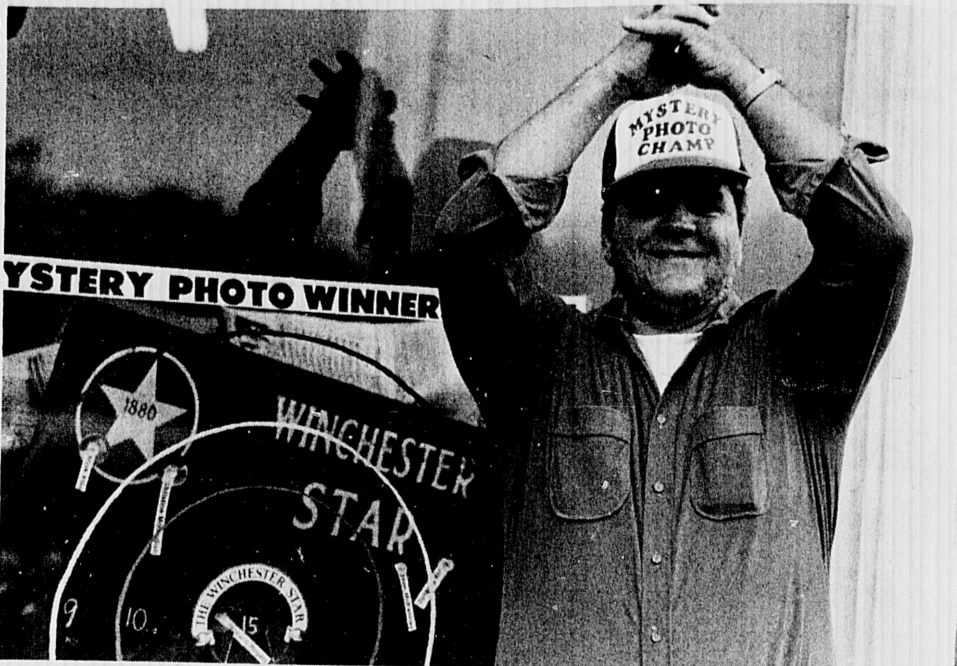

"Then I got the second one and it became an obsession. Letters started coming in, and I said 'I have to do it, I can't stop now.'"

Rogers was on a roll, one that was not destined to stop until the champion decided to stop it himself.

As Mystery Photo Champion, his life was no longer his own. Complete strangers stopped him on the street. Beautiful women with dark hair and trench coats offered bribes for the correct answer.

But Rogers wouldn't give in to temptation.

"People asked me for the answer to next week's photo, but I wouldn't give it to them," he said. Even the Police Eye Team, in the person of officer Daniel McGee, wasn't above asking Rogers for help.

Richard Rogers

"Many people think that I have an edge because I drive an oil truck around town," the champ complained. "But I think the police Eye Team has an edge on me. They have men in cars all over town."

"But my grandfather was a chief of police, and he would be proud of me making the police play second fiddle to me."

But the sleazy answer-mongers and the bitter rivalries were just one dark side of Richard Rogers' championship.

Rogers' Last Letter - See Page 8 season.

On the other side were his thousands of adoring fans, who sent letters of encouragement, cheered him as he walked down the street, and pointed him out to their children as a figure to emulate.

"I walk around proudly, wearing my hat. People yell, blow their horns, send me cards, ask me for answers — this is the biggest thing since Schlitz came out with pop-tops."

"When I go to the Elks or the Sons of Italy, I get free beers and I'm treated like a celebrity," he said, then shook his head in bewilderment.

"I don't know," he said. "People say it's lonely at the top, but I find it's just the opposite."

Looking back over his career as a Mystery Photo Champion, Rogers has only one regret — the trauma he put Mystery Photographer Noreen Murphy keep in top Mystery-Photo-spotting condition. He has taken a position as Mystery Photo Consultant to The Star, and he also plans to give away correct Mystery Photo answers to those who buy a full tank of Rogers fuel oil.

"I'll still be practicing on the side," he warned. "I feel I'll come back stronger than ever."

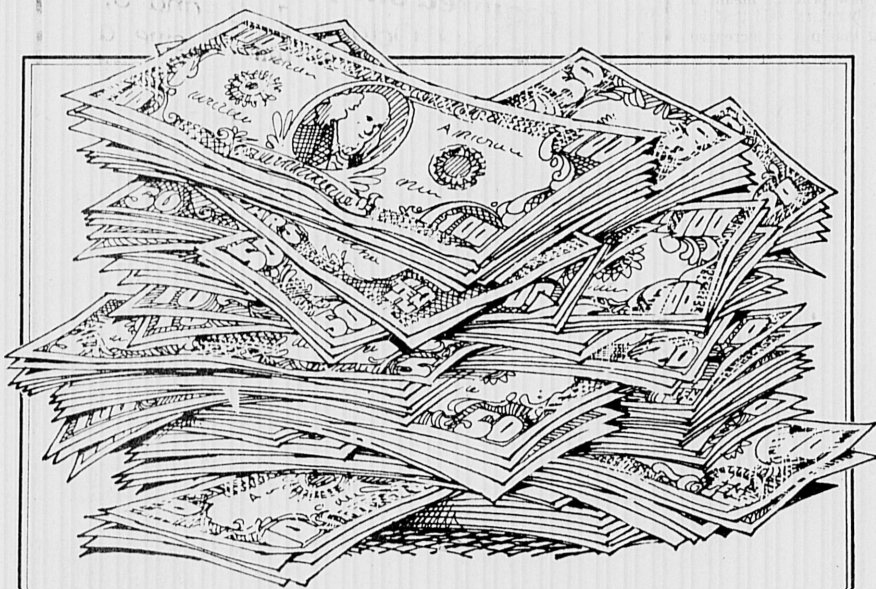

Rogers claims he will rest his puzzle-solving pupils until January, when the winter Mystery Photo season begins. Then he will make his triumphant return.

Rogers wants two things to happen before that return.

"I want to see another champ undefeated for 14 weeks," he said of his first wish. "I hope he gets 14 in a row, and then they don't deliver the The Star on Thursday."

Rogers' other wish will come true soon, if at all. "Right now I'm waiting for the Board of Selectmen to call and ask me to be Grand Marshall on Discover Winchester Day."

Goodbye champ. We bid you farewell.

Town Meeting Warrant Covers Anything And Everything

By DAVE LEECO

Zoning amendments will, as usual, dominate the Fall Town Meeting, but the warrant, which will close tomorrow, will cover everything from garbage collection to false alarm fines.

One prospective zoning article will not come up at this fall's Town Meeting. Robb and Chubb Whitten have decided to withdraw their article to rezone 67 acres of land near the Woburn line to a Planned Residential District.

The re-zoning would clear the way for the brothers to build their proposed 110-unit condominium project.

But Town Meeting members will be able to decide the fate of another condo project.

One of the zoning articles would open up 12 acres of industrial land in North Winchester so Continental Wingate, a Boston-based firm, can build 85 condominiums on the site along the Aberjona River.

The land is now owned by local attorney Larry Murray and Henry Quill, who will be working with Continental Wingate on the development. Estimated price for the condos is $85-$100,000.

And if the Town Meeting members get tired of talking about condos, they can always debate apartments. The League of Women Voters has brought their accessory apartment article back to Town Meeting.

The article would allow owners of single-family homes to build a small apartment in their homes. The league brought a similar article before the Spring Town Meeting, but it was ruled out-of-order by Moderator John Sullivan because of last minute changes.

Garbage collection will also make a re-appearance at Town Meeting, as member Michael Connolly has submitted an article to restore that service. Garbage collection was eliminated at the special December Town Meeting, after being cut and resurrected at previous Town Meetings.

Possibly the most important zoning article would give increased power to the Zoning Board of Appeals, allowing it to grant use variances.

Having this power would allow the board to, for example, allow a business in a residential zone, or an apartment in a business zone if the project warranted special treatment.

The board had the power to grant such variances until 1973.

Not being able to grant such a variance recently stopped American Alarm's move to a Woburn site off Cross St.

The driveway to the land, located in Winchester, was on residential property. But when the board could grant use variances, they allowed the driveway to be used for access to the Woburn industrial site, provided traffic be restricted to the hours between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Since American Alarm needed to use the driveway around the clock, and the Board of Appeal could no longer change the use variance, the alarm company's moving plans were shot.

Two proposed by-law changes — one to allow the police department to tow cars, the other to set up fines for false alarms — could lead to some debate.

The towing by-law would allow police to authorize towing of cars. Currently, only the Public Works Director can authorize a tow, and only if the parked car is blocking snow plows.

If the by-law passes, the police chief can authorize towing, not only if the car blocks plows, but if it is blocking driveways, hospital or school entrances or fire plugs.

The false alarm by-law would set up a series of fines for homeowners or businesses which repeatedly turn in false burglar or fire alarms. The selectmen asked the Government Regulations Committee to draft such a by-law after Police Chief John McHugh informed them several months ago that his department received over 800 false alarms last year.

But it is apparently only false alarms the town dislikes, as Fire Chief Robert McElhinney has submitted an article which would call for the mandatory installation of smoke detectors in every home.

Two articles, submitted by the selectmen, would change the way the comptroller and the town counsel are paid.

The articles would basically give the Board of Selectmen the authority to set the salaries for the comptroller and the counsel, without going through the Personnel Board, as is now the case.

Yet another article would keep the town in the business of giving out and collecting on parking tickets.

A new state law has taken the job of processing tickets from the courts, and given it to the towns — if they want it.

The town would have to pay the cost of collecting the tickets, which is now covered by the courts. However, if the town chooses not to accept the authority, it can no longer hand out tickets.

Other zoning articles would include two submitted by the Planning Board, allowing Planned Residential Districts in industrial and residential districts, and giving the fire chief the authority to waive fire lane requirements for downtown center businesses.

One last article of note — a motion to name Lockeland Field after Babe Mullen, the former Parks Dept. head for the town.

Bright Lights Darken Day

By DAVE LEECO

It seemed like a bright idea at the time. But when Grove St. residents heard the town was considering putting new, brighter lights along their street, it darkened their day.

The neighborhood foresaw the brighter lights bringing more traffic, and more speeders down a street that residents say has too many speeders already.

Board of Selectmen's office Monday night, bringing a neighborhood petition against the new lights.

And the selectmen were convinced. After listening to the residents for a half-hour, they voted unanimously not to install the new lights, which would have been 3.5 times as bright as the existing lights.

Selectmen Michael Saraco summed up the position of the board when he told the group "it has been the policy of the town over the years to listen to what the people in the neighborhood want. I'm listening now."

And what the people in the neighborhood didn't want was the new lights, which had been recommended by the Traffic Advisory Committee to decrease the chance of accidents along the road.

But Christiane Romero, of 45 Grove St., explained that even though there had been two major accidents, one fatal, on the street in the past two years, the problem wasn't due to lack of lighting.

"Our problem is speeding," she said. "And if you make the street lighter, the speeding will not diminish, it will increase. A brighter street will make people speed up even more."

Charles Reinhardt, of 5 Grove St., told the selectmen that now, in his home, "we can hear the cars as they pick up speed going from Symmes corner down Grove St., and we get our share of bottles thrown on our lawn."

The new lights, he continued, would bring more traffic down the street and add to the noise, the speed and the bottles.

"I'm concerned about the loss of safety just because of the increase in sheer numbers of people who use Grove St. as a speedway," Reinhardt said. "Many people in the community use the street as a corridor on their way to Medford, or Cambridge, and that's fine," he said. "But by putting in street lights, you're going to make this a more attractive corridor to do the speeding in."

Reinhardt noted that most commuters would use the street during the day, when the lights wouldn't even be on. It was the night speeders who would benefit from the increased luminescence.

Of the dozen people at the meeting, only Mary Looney, of 48 Grove St., supported the brighter lights. She felt the lack of lights added to the speeding problem, and that brighter lights would cut down on the speeders.

"I know when I was young I sped down Grove St. just because it was such a rural road," she said. "We thought because it was dark, no one would see us."

Looney added that she felt increased lighting would also cut down on the number of burglaries in the neighborhood.

"The more lights, the safer the street," she said. "It's a high-crime area — I've been broken into twice."

However, Selectman Wade Welch, noting that his law practice meant a familiarity with burglars, said that he knew of nothing that proved increased

3 To Grand Jury On Armed Robbery Pollution Test Underway In Mystic Lakes

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Armed robbery charges against three Medford residents were bound over to the Middlesex Grand Jury Tuesday by Woburn District Court Judge Francis Cullen. The three had been arrested July 28 by Winchester police in connection with the robbery of a Priscilla In. woman.

Cullen found probable cause to charge William Moschella, 21, Karen L. McCrann, 25, and Marcia E. Dalto, 32, with armed robbery. Dalto was also charged with assault and battery by means of a dangerous weapon.

On July 28, the Priscilla In. woman had called Winchester police to report that she had been robbed while waiting at the bus stop on the corner of S. Gateway and Main st. near the Medford line.

Police Lt. John Frongillo and officer Richard Fisher rushed to the scene. They said the woman told them she had been approached by a woman who displayed a knife and said, "I'm going to kill you."

The Priscilla In. woman said her gold chain was grabbed by the attacker and broken off.

The Winchester woman told police that she then struggled with her attacker over her purse, but broke away and ran home to call the police.

The Priscilla In. woman also told police she had seen a blue van turn down S. Gateway moments before the attack. Frongillo and Fisher searched the area. They questioned Moschella, who was sitting at the bus stop. After several questions, Frongillo demanded some identification and Moschella produced the registration for a blue Chevrolet van.

★ Lights

lighting led to a decrease in crime.

"It takes a good B&E (breaking and entering) man only 15 seconds to enter a house," said Welch. "He's in so quickly that street lighting is never going to help stop him."

Welch also shot down the only other argument for the new street lights — that brighter lights would increase safety.

"I don't believe any lights, whether they be brighter street lights or TOPICS lights, will increase the safety of moving Frongillo and Fisher sent a call out over the radio looking for the van. The call was heard by a Medford Auxiliary policeman with a scanner in his car.

The Medford cop radioed back that he had spotted a blue van on Marchant rd. Moschella was placed under arrest. The two women were later placed under arrest as they were pulling out of a dead-end street in a van. Fisher said he blocked the street with his cruiser and arrested them.

vehicles," he said.

"Besides, I know that at the other end of Grove st., there's a liquor store. Street lights aren't going to make any difference — the kids are still going down Grove st.," he added.

Arlene Denton, of 43 Grove st., agreed lights would do nothing to cut down on the speeding.

"They must learn to respect themselves, they must be taught not to speed," she said. "Lighting isn't going to make one bit of difference."

Police Log

A 20-year-old Middlesex st. man was arrested, tried in Woburn District Court and sentenced to six months in the County House of Correction — all on Monday. Police were called to a break-in in progress on Canterbury rd. at 11 a.m. Monday.

When officer John Alford arrived at the scene, he was told by a 17-year-old resident of the house that he had come home and found the door open, and then saw a young man run out of the house and head down York rd.

Alford radioed the description of the youth to the station. The description was heard by officer Richard Fisher.

Fisher, on his way to the scene, saw a youth fitting the description run across the rotary at Symmes corner and down Bacon st.

Fisher chased the suspect to Winslow rd., caught him and held him until Alford, Inspector William Nash and officer James Grey arrived.

The suspect was taken to the station, booked and searched. Police took several pieces of jewelry as evidence.

At 3:45, the Middlesex rd. resident pleaded guilty at his arraignment in Woburn District Court, and was sentenced to six months at the Billerica House of Correction.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 9

Police arrested a 17-year-old Main st. youth for operating a motor vehicle under the influence and without a license.

Police said they saw a car heading down Church st. on the wrong side of the road. They followed it, saw it weave in and out, and stopped it.

The 17-year-old was taken into protective custody.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 10

A Viking rd. resident reported that some jewelry was missing from her home. Police reported no signs of forced entry.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 11

A Berkshire dr. home was broken into. Police reported that when they arrived, they found a garage window had been forced open and a kitchen window was opened and a 10-ft. ladder leaning below.

$2000 worth of Hummel statues were missing, along with pieces of both men's and women's jewelry.

A Cabot st. resident reported that she noticed 12 sterling silver place settings were missing from a hutch in her dining room. There was no sign of a break-in, according to police.

A Church st. resident reported a missing suitcase filled with sterling. Police reported there was no sign of a break-in.

A Main st. house was broken into by removing a plywood sheet from the entrance of the building. A number of electric tools were missing.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 12

A Pepper Hill dr. home was broken into, after a burglar opened a laundry room window by reaching through the dryer vent. A large amount of silver and jewelry were reported missing.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 13

A Pepper Hill dr. home was broken into through a garage window. Jewelry was reported missing.

Police arrested a Dothan st. resident for operating under the influence.

On their way to investigate a house, break, police heard a crash and discovered a vehicle which had struck a stone wall on Pepper Hill dr. and then driven off down the street.

Police followed a trail of leaking fluid to a car. They arrested the operator for driving under the influence, leaving the scene of an accident and operating an uninsured and unregistered car.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 15

A Harvard st. resident went to Winchester Hospital after reporting she had been stabbed.

The woman received five stitches at the hospital. The woman's husband was arrested for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

A 21-year-old Holland st. resident was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol and possession of a class D substance.

Police arrested the man after the car he was driving struck a Cross st. house, glanced off an Edison pole, and ran over a sign post.

The man was taken to Winchester Hospital for treatment of a head injury, but he refused treatment, according to police.

Mystery Photo

Well, Mystery Photo fans, the summer season has drawn to an end. Richard Rogers, has, with his fifteenth correct answer become the Mystery Photo Summer Champion.

That, of course, means we're starting from scratch with the Mystery Photo above. Anyone wanting to even come close to Rogers' record must start by getting this one correct.

If you can, fill out the form below and send it to Mystery Photo, The Winchester Star, 3 Church st.

We at the Mystery Photo desk neglected to identify the Mystery Photo of two weeks ago. It was, as many of you guessed, a lamp on Winchester terr., near the College Marketing Group. Last week's photo was of the Sachem on the chuckwagon at Manchester Field. Those who knew that one are:

Gov't By The Cup

Three cheers. The Finance Committee is back after a long summer recess.

Now some of you may not think the FinCom is exciting stuff. As a matter of fact, the usual reaction to a FinCom meeting is that same reaction that the "Farm News" gets on television at 5 a.m. A yawn.

But few realize that Charlie Began, the FinCom's secretary for the past 16-odd years, makes the best coffee in Town Hall.

Charlie has this old-fashioned coffee urn, the kind with a spigot on the bottom, and he swears he hasn't let soap touch the inside of the urn for 16 years.

The coffee that comes out of that urn is dark, scented, earthy-tasting heaven in a cup.

And when you're covering a meeting that will run until 11 p.m., and then have to write up the meeting, you appreciate a good cup of coffee.

So, in appreciation, I'd like to give Charlie Began's coffee recognition as "The Best Of" Town Hall coffee. It gets four cups in the ratings system.

There is other coffee floating around the town government, of course — some good, some awful.

Planning Board coffee, made by Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia, isn't bad. In fact it runs a close second to the FinCom's. A special added touch is the mugs. In most town offices, you get the basic styrofoam cups, but downstairs at the Planning Board, you get real ceramic mugs. Three cups.

Selectmen's coffee is not much more than average. Mr. Coffee machine, styrofoam cups — the basic conservative coffee. One and one-half cups.

Finally, there is the School Committee's coffee. I've had western coffee (on the range all day). I've had campers coffee, where you just dump the grounds in a pot of boiling water, then strain the coffee with your teeth. But I have never had coffee so bad as that served at the School Committee meetings.

First, it's instant, which is two strikes in any coffee-critics book. But the worst thing is the water, heated in a pot which leaves the water tasting like machine oil. The dregs — No cups.

The most tragic thing about it is that it's a pot just like Charlie Began's.

However, you do get some sort of coffee at the School Committee meetings, and that has to count for something. Town Government often frightens people. I've seen people come before the Board of Selectmen white-faced with fear. Why? It's just Ed O'Connell and a bunch of neighbors.

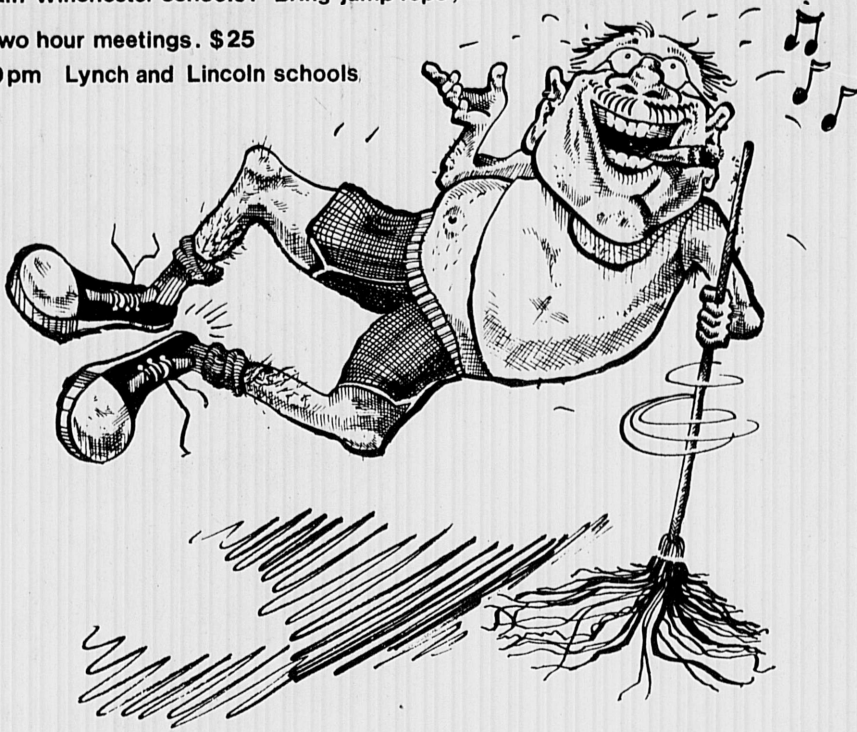

That's why I like the coffee at the meetings. It takes away the official barriers. Instead of the omnipotent government facing the ant-like resident, the whole affair is just a few friends, sitting around having coffee, and trying to figure out what to do about Winchester.

Energy House Tour Will Give Ideas To Stave Off Winter

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

September is the beginning of cooler weather and higher fuel bills. As citizens of the northeast, all of us are victims of the high cost of imported fuel, but we can do something about it.

In an effort to serve the public with the information and demonstration of a multitude of energy saving options, the Winchester League of Women Voters is pleased to invite the public to its first Energy Exhibit and Home Tour.

The new, partially solar Winchester Savings Bank will open its doors at noon on Sunday, Sept. 20 where one may visit with thirteen area companies dealing in solar units, fuel economy units, window treatments, solar home additions, multi-use heating stoves, audit services etc., and pick up a brochure-ticket ($4 each) to seven Winchester homes.

Homes on view include two innovative new structures using passive and active technologies, a Mass-Save Audit home, and four diverse retrofitted homes employing dual-fuel furnaces, solar hot water, window treatments, heating stoves and the latest fuel economy units.

The League is most grateful to the Winchester Public Library for its comprehensive display of self-help literature regarding conservation, and to the Winchester Savings Bank for their hospitality, provision of display space and attendance of bank personnel and appropriate financing and tax deduction information.

A Second Great Chinese Dinner Found

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Over 50 years ago, H. H. Kung, Chiang Ki Shek's brother-in-law, brought his very skilled chef from Shanghai to the Oberlin Shansi Memorial School in Taiku, Shansi, China, and gave a series of Chinese feasts.

I was lucky enough to attend one of them. I've always remembered that dinner as a high point of my childhood. But now I have eaten another memorable Chinese dinner.

Never have I had a better dinner than the special birthday dinner for my husband, which was served last night at the "Chinese Gourmet" in Belmont, just across from Peck & Peck's.

It is our hope that this opportunity to talk to the experts and see fuel economy measures in action, will prove beneficial to all through lower energy costs in 1981-82.

Sincerely,
Judie Muggia, President
LWV-Winchester

Each dish was flawless. The platter of appetizers and fruit were a feast for our eyes as well as delightful to eat. The whole fish and Peking duck were perfect, and the lobster, Chinese-style, was the best I have ever eaten.

Mr. Shao, who owns the "Chinese Gourmet," is a resident of Winchester, and often teaches cooking classes, as well as giving lessons in Chinese. He is to be commended for the excellence of his restaurant, which has only been open for four months. It is well worth the gas to go over to Belmont for dinner.

Sincerely,
Peggy Ashenden

Return Garbage Collection To Town

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I have submitted a second taxpayer's petition today for a fall town meeting warrant article asking for garbage collection as a municipal function of the town.

You will note that today's petition makes provision for the town to share the cost of this service with the recipients of the service. The previous petition for garbage collection provided for the service to be subsidized entirely by fees to be charged to the customers.

It will also be noted that both petitions are written in such a way that such service could be provided either by municipal (DPW) collection or provided by private contractors.

I look forward to a thorough and lively discussion of this subject at the fall town meeting.

Sincerely,
Michael M. Connolly

Mystery Photo Champ Calls It Quits

Dear Noreen:

The time has come for the Muhammad Ali, Babe Ruth, Elvis Presley of the Mystery Photo to step down — the undefeated and undisputed champ. I want to give someone else a taste of the medias abuse that comes with being champ, although I know in your heart there will only be one champ. (me) This will be a big let down for my many fans but who knows, maybe I'll take up the Star Crossword Puzzle.

Because of me, you have had a lot of sleepless nights and psychiatric care not to mention the agony of defeat. Chin up kid, better health awaits you. (You did stump a lot of the rookies.)

It will be tough trying to restrain myself from mailing in my answers but I'll just have to go cold turkey. Either that or start a mystery photo anonymous with meetings every Thursday.

Well so long, I have to shuffle off to Fenway.

Dried Lawns Mean

Water Shortage Is Taken Seriously

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It does my heart good to see so many dried up lawns throughout the town. It shows that there are plenty of people who take the water shortage seriously.

The sad part about the water problem is that there is no alternative to water as there is to oil. Once the water is gone, that's it. It's really scary. And as we know, all life on this earth needs water for survival. Can there ever be a substitute for water?

No doubt the rains will come pouring down — we hope! but we still use more water each year than nature provides. This means we all need to work at conserving our water use in whatever way we can. If we don't start practicing restraint now, we'll really be in bad shape.

Sincerely,
Barbara Cunningham

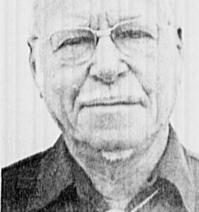

On The Street

The Board of Selectmen recently asked citizens to pay their property tax bills voluntarily this fall, because the town will be late in sending out tax bills. The tax billing will be delayed because the town's re-assessment is late. The town decided to ask for voluntary payments to avoid any financial problems which might arise from late payments. If the town has to borrow money, it will have to pay interest rates.

The Winchester Star this week asked people downtown their opinions on the whole idea of voluntary tax payments. The Star then asked people whether or not they planned on complying with this plan.

Clarence Borggaard

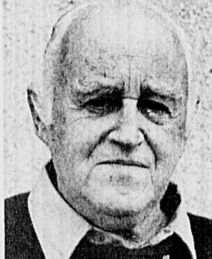

Retired Lawyer, Franklin rd.

"I think it's a good idea because it's every citizen's duty to do what he or she can to support the community. It's not the fault of the town — it's circumstance. It's not the assessors' fault, the rules of the game were changed for them and they haven't caught up yet. I think each citizen should do what he or she voluntarily can to keep the tax rate down. I'm planning to pay mine."

Paul Myron

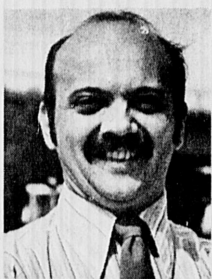

Retired, Ox Pat Pasture South

"I'm not going to give them my money until I have to. If they're stupid enough to let the thing go this far, it's their own fault. I don't want to lose the interest. Why don't they have this stuff ready on time like they should?"

Frank LaSalle

Winchester Real Estate Broker

"I think every citizen should pay his fair share, which is at minimum last year's bill or 80 percent of it, and let the town bill them the rest when they've had their assessment. Why should the town have to go to take out loans with 22 percent interest. The people will have to pay their taxes anyway. If I lived here, you better believe I'd pay my taxes voluntarily."

Pat Hitchcock

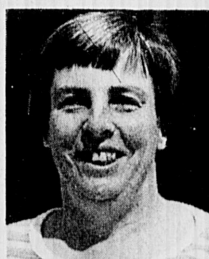

School Librarian, Wildwood st.

"I have mixed emotions about it. It's probably necessary to avoid the interest charges and so that we can take tax deductions from our income taxes. But they're not really sure if this is legal. I don't want to pay voluntarily and have them not deduct it from my bill. I probably will pay. It goes against the grain to pay something voluntarily but I don't know what choice the town has. I think after the initial shock and horror of the idea wears off, the people will pay."

Nancy Boyle

Nurse's Aide, Main st.

"I think that the voluntary taxes are a good idea. It makes a lot of sense because it'll save the town money. I should think people will want to pay their taxes and get it over with. I guess they'll pay based on last year's bill. Even a partial payment will save the town money. I plan on paying mine. I have to pay it anyway."

Discover Winchester Day Promises Something For Everyone

By SUSAN SCHNECK

There seems to be no stopping the Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

At this point, they have thrown in everything but the kitchen sink for Discover Winchester Day Sept. 19.

The number of booths, exhibits, and sideshows are increasing at a pace even too quick for Chamber President Robert Nickerson's able bank accountants to record.

There will be enough variety and activity Saturday to please people of every stripe imaginable.

To date, 69 booths are scheduled to tantalize taste buds, satiate curiosity seekers and entertain everyone. This is a larger booth turnout than anyone expected.

"The amount of non-profit groups, retailers and artists interested is really impressive," said Chamber Executive Director Rita E. Spence. "We were afraid we'd have to do more promotional work."

From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 19, the downtown area seems to be the place to be.

For people who tend to be suspicious or just curious, the Cambridgeport Savings Bank will have a machine to test whether or not dollar bills are real.

The Winchester Star will display an antique printing press and print people's names on a P.T. Barnum circus poster. The Star staff, dressed in the appropriate old-fashioned garb of course, will also explain what goes on behind the scenes at the newspaper.

Also in the printing vein, Winchester Litho. will demonstrate an electric printing press.

Townies and whoever else is discovering Winchester at the time can munch on some old fashioned popcorn from the Winchester Savings Bank as they walk down the streets to visit the WCOZ van. The van will be broadcasting live on public radio 92.5 F.M. and giving away all sorts of prizes. Clearly the Chamber has outdone itself.

Food lovers are in for a treat besides popcorn munching there will be a whole assortment of food to taste. Brighams will have a booth in front of the store selling candy and giving away decals to the kids.

Pisces Pantry has promised to prepare some tempting seafood specialties and Winchester Health Foods will have nourishing munchies to sample and buy. The health food store will also be giving out information.

No one can accuse Winchester of being parochial at this event as there will be a specialty food booth and a Mexican food booth.

Baskin Robbins will have someone traveling the streets armed with cold ice cream.

Winchester seems to have been looking out right and left for this day and John Morello of Brighams just can't get over the town's good fortune in obtaining the world-famous coca cola robot. This walking computer is electronically controlled from a van and can walk in a crowd without bumping into people. It can also carry on a conversation as long as the questions are fairly simple. The robot could probably never guess the mystery photo but it does great with weather related inquiries.

"We were very fortunate to get the robot," Morello said. "We just picked the right day and it happened to be in this area of the country at the time."

Residents should be aware, however, that the robot will only show up if the weather is dry. The weather, surprisingly, does not seem to present a problem. This again is lucky since there is not a rain date for Discover Winchester Day. Forecasts are even promising sunshine. Either someone up there loves Winchester or someone down here is bribing the weathermen.

The raffle promises to make Sept. 19 a very lucky day for at least three people and has attracted quite a bit of interest already.

According to Jack Childs of Henderson's Stationers, the tickets for it are selling out like crazy. Of course Childs declined to disclose exactly what he does to customers once he has them inside his store, but it is conceivable that the prizes are enough of an enticement.

Raffle winners will receive a Brunswick pool table valued at $1,020, a bicycle valued at $170 and an a.m.-f.m. cassette player valued at about $175.

Raffle tickets can be purchased at most downtown stores and banks and will be available at the big day.

The conglomeration of prizes are being auctioned off by none other than the self-acclaimed, world famous auctioneer, Al Ruggles of Winchester Sports.

Among the many items auctioned off will be pearl stud earrings, a compact rug shampooer, all sorts of clothing, tote bags, ceiling paint, a shrimp dish, candy, a clothes hamper, gift certificates from many stores, a heating pad, and a knitting bag.

And we must hand it to Joan Blank of Joken's Card Gallery for coming up with a truly unique auction idea. She is giving away two parties. One is a children's party for 12 including hats, favors, balloons, etc. and the other is a Miss Piggy party for adults with posters, tablecloths and literally "the works."

Blank, who has been coordinating the auction part of the day is still accepting offers and said she is very pleased with the reception from the merchants.

"Of all the people I asked I only got three no's and two of them were reluctant," she said. "We've even received donations from people who are not chamber members."

There will be even more items I'm sure.

This is not an average kinky-dink town day. Ruggles is not standing in the street like an average guy auctioning off the goods. Mahoney's Rocky Ledge has loaned a flat bed truck — complete with decorations — so that Ruggles can stand on top and his voice will resound loud and clear through the streets of Winchester.

There will be antique cars to view and a six-foot tall cookie to converse with. Something for everyone.

It really is quite amazing how many volunteers the chamber has managed to recruit. And especially for the not so popular clean-up job. In addition to directing traffic, the Jaycees have volunteered to clean up afterwards and you can bet they are thanking their lucky stars that the old fashioned theme wasn't carried to the point where the police are riding horses.

People looking for some good entertainment are also in luck. Along with many other attractions that too will be in abundance on Saturday.

The Winchester Public Library will have Elizabeth Palazzi playing the guitar and at 9 a.m. Word has it she is worth waking up early for. At 12:30 the Harriet Hoctor Ballet School will have a variety of performances. First they will demonstrate a mini ballet class to show what really goes on in that mirrored studio. Then several of her prize pupils from the school will perform on the concrete streets.

There will be a performance to Music Box Waltz by Shostakovich and choreographed by Mary Vasek, school director. Then a group of eight and nine-year-old ballerinas will dance. As a Grande Finale, there will be a performance to Arthur Fiedler's Stars and Stripes.

The Red Neck Revival Band will follow the ballet performance at 1:30. Childs said Winchester was very lucky to have this popular country western band perform for free. Childs also likes to stick with a good thing so once again the Sweet Adelines singing group will perform. They were here two years ago at the last town day.

"Things are going very smoothly," Childs said. "It'll be an exciting time. The people will have some fun and discover Winchester."

Jazz Date Changed To Oct. 16

The new Black Eagle Jazz Band will perform at McCall Junior High School on Oct. 16. The band was supposed to kick off Discover Winchester Day with a concert Friday night, Sept. 18.

But a conflict in scheduling caused the band to cancel. Originally, the Winchester Chamber of Commerce had agreed to pay the band about $2200.00 for the Sept. 18 performance.

To compensate for advertising costs and other inconveniences the cancellation may have caused the Chamber and the town, the band has now agreed to perform for about $1500.00.

The band has toured the United States and Europe and is very popular for its Dixieland type of jazz.

The New Black Eagle Jazz Band has received top reviews in all places where it has performed and the Chamber is very happy the event could be rescheduled.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased at the Chamber and other downtown stores.

A program has been planned that will feature Elizabeth Palazzi singing and playing her guitar from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Ruth McDowell will demonstrate the art of making flowers from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. As both artists are well known in Winchester, it is expected that there will be many in attendance.

A candy guess for children through the sixth grade will be held all day. The winner will be notified on the following Monday.

Among other exhibits at the library booth will be the electric pencil engraver part of the Massachusetts crime watch prevention program, oral history tapes of Winchester with earphones for listening, and the Friends of the Library sign-up sheet. Travel Along with

MAVIS

Guesthouses vary in size and degree of formality depending on where you are. This is true in England and the rest of Europe as well as right here in the United States. But wherever, they are inexpensive, especially so, if an extended stay is planned. Guesthouses offer the opportunity of getting to know local people more intimately. Of course, you will get to know the surroundings well, too, since no "hotel" type services are offered. Many travel agents have special agreements with guesthouses overseas.

Airlines today have a confusing array of fares and our staff at McGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE, 14 Eaton Ave., Woburn, 935-0600 is familiar with the very latest. We will gladly help you plan your trip to take advantage of the fares with the most value. You'll be pleased with our efficiency and integrity. Our office is open Mon. - Fri. 9-5, Sat. and evenings by appt.

TRAVEL TIP:
Your travel agent is invaluable in helping you plan and make advance arrangements for any trip. Can you interpret all of today's competitive air fares yourself?

Office of the Town Manager Town of Winchester, Massachusetts 01890 SEWER WORK NOTICE

Residents of Winchester are advised that portions of the sewer system will be smoke tested during the period Sept. 26 to Nov. 21.

Smoke testing will help locate those defects which allow rainwater to enter the sanitary sewer system instead of the storm drain system. Identification and elimination of these defects will result in savings to taxpayers and will make the Town eligible for approximately 90% funding by Federal and State agencies for the Town's ongoing sewer improvement program.

The Contractor (Eastern Pipe Services, Inc.) will be pumping white smoke into sewer manholes at selected streets and will be observing the surrounding area for signs of leakage. Residents who observe smoke leaking into or around their homes should not be alarmed.

THE SMOKE IS NON-TOXIC AND NON-STAINING, and ventilation of your home will result in quick dissipation of the smoke.

Smoke should not enter your premises unless there is a defect in the plumbing of your home. Any such defect is a potential safety and health hazard for the residents and should be corrected as soon as possible. Residents are requested to notify the contractor, who will be in the vicinity of their homes during the tests, so that the cause of such leakage may be evaluated.

Residents within the locations where the smoke testing will take place will receive a notice similar to this one attached to their door one day prior to the testing.

For general information and concerns, direct your calls to the Town of Winchester, Engineering Department, at 729-2444.

Your cooperation is requested during this important project in order to fulfill the Town's commitment to the State and Federal regulatory agencies, to protect our environment, and to operate our sanitary sewer services at lower costs.

'Everyone thought we were a bunch of crazies!'

Aviation Pioneer Albree

By SUSAN SCHNECK

At the age of 93, George Norman Albree can still vividly recall that day in 1916 when the United States Army gave him the orders to build two aircrafts.

When the Army captain handed Albree those orders, the captain was giving Albree the chance to make aviation history. Less than one year later, Albree became the first man to sell monoplanes to the U.S. government.

Albree's contracts were two of 366 (364 were for biplanes), the Army made to obtain an aerial fleet to fight the Germans in World War I. At the time, the entire U.S. "fleet" consisted of two planes — both of which had been declared unfit for flight.

"I was practically living in Washington at the time trying to get orders," Albree said in an interview last week. "It was highly competitive and I think they just gave them to me to get rid of me."

Sitting straight in his chair, the tall, angular Albree inhales deeply from his cigar, releases the smoke and gazes into the space in front of him, recalling the incident as if it occurred yesterday.

"I can still remember when Capt. V.E. Clark handed me the orders," he said. "The State Dept., the War Dept. and the Navy Dept. were all in one old building in those days, near the White House."

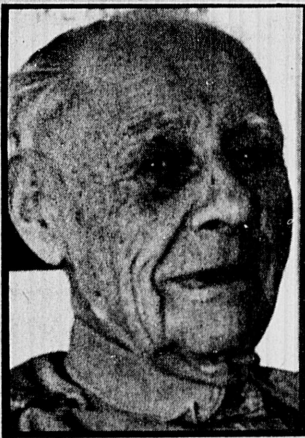

"By golly, I remember coming back to Boston that night in a Pullman sleeper and I said to myself, 'Ye Gods, how will I ever build them?'" he continued, smiling at the recollection.

Albree designed and built the Albree Scout 116 and the Albree Scout 117 monoplanes and delivered them to the Army in 1917. He was paid $20,000.

Only 64 of the 366 planes ordered were ever delivered. Most of the manufacturers under contract could not build the planes and asked to be released from the contract.

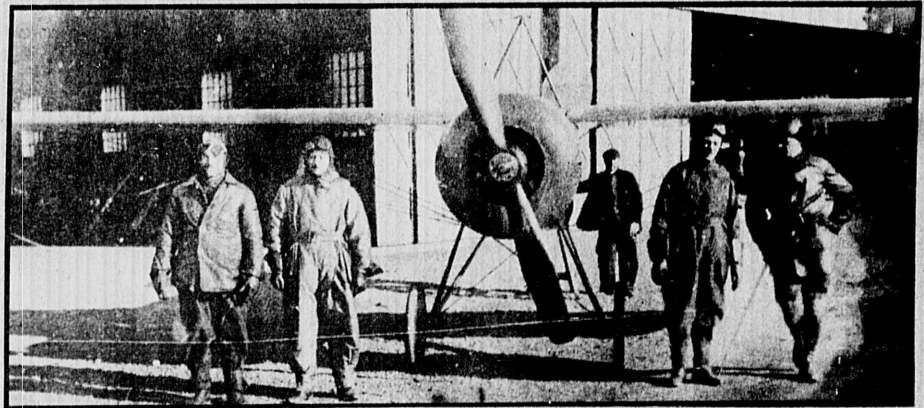

"Flying wasn't easy in those days," Albree said throwing back his head, laughing. "There was only one aircraft factory around then. All the rest were shops like mine."

Albree's shop was in the loft

G. Norman Albree

'I delivered the first monoplane to the United States government.'

of a boatshop on Paradise rd. in Swampscott. On Tuesday, Sept. 15, the Swampscott Historical Society honored Albree (who lived in Swampscott for 15 years) by placing a plaque on his former shop, now a garage to someone's home.

The plaque reads: "Here in this building in 1916, the first monoplane purchased by the U.S. government was designed and constructed by G. Norman Albree."

At the beginning of the century, most of the planes built were double-winged airplanes called biplanes. The first plane the Wright brothers flew at Kitty Hawk was a biplane.

"I delivered the first monoplane to the United States government," Albree stated, shaking his white-haired head matter-of-factly.

And Albree claims yet another historical distinction.

"I claim to be the only one involved in aviation at that time never sued by the Wrights," he said. Then, looking smug with his sharp blue eyes twinkling, he said, "And do you know why? Because I used an entirely different principle. I used the rudder to offset the torque of the propeller. All the steering was done by the ailerons (part of the back of the wings)." The Wright Brothers used their rudder for steering.

All five of the aircraft Albree built had some other unique features. He built the first aircraft to have its wings at zero degrees, with no curvature.

"All of my planes had the letter U on them," he explained.

"I coined a word, unicamber or one curve. My planes had flat undersurfaces and the top surface was curved."

Albree's first plane, one of three different designs he developed, took seven months to build. Made of wood and steel, it weighed in at about 1,000 pounds, including the pilot.

The plane's nine-cylinder Gnome engine was much lighter than the 12-cylinder models commonly used at the time. The whole craft was so light that an entire wing could be lifted by one person. To give the fragile wings stability, Albree fastened wires to the top and bottom of the plane. The top wires supported the wings when the plane was on the ground and the bottom wires kept them from being torn off while the plane was in flight.

"My idea was to glide through the air," Albree said. "I knew it could be done because of hundreds of tests I'd done."

"But everyone thought we were a bunch of crazies," he continued. "I'm telling you, we were nuts."

Born in Boston in 1888, the tenacious Albree said his interest in flying came from watching birds. "It was the birds that got me started," he said. "I used to watch gulls."

By 1903, he was working on plane drawings and inquiring into other people's ideas about monoplanes. He attended Union College, Amherst College and Dartmouth College but his interest in planes made him a less than dedicated student and he never graduated.

"I got in with a classmate of mine who was also interested in flight and we began to work together," he said. Then, bursting into laughter, Albree recalled, "We built the craziest contraptions you ever saw."

His first successful plane, the Albree Scout, was designed and built in 1912. It flew for the first time in 1914.

Albree scoffs at the idea of his being brave to fly the early planes.

"Brave?" he asks, surprised. "I guess so more or less, at least that's what people said. But we never paid them much attention."

Clad in a flannel shirt and khaki slacks, Albree sits in a chair and explains that inventing designs for planes required only imagination.

"Looking at planes back then the younger generation would say, 'Ye gods, is that a plane?'" he said. "I want them to know what it was like."

"Planes back then operated just like kites — by a gale of wind," he said. "There was an engine and a man lying down and that's the way we flew in those days. It was quite a while before we were able to sit up. That's what flying was like in those days."

As if aviators in those days did not have enough working against them, the government applied very severe safety tests to the planes.

As a result of a sand loading test, the Albree Scout 116 was bulldozed into the ground. Albree has no idea what happened to the 117.

But he is sure that the government decided they had no use for monoplanes, although planes today are all single-winged.

Albree said he feels that the government wasn't interested in his planes because they were only interested in biplanes at the time. They were pushing a plane called the DeHavilland DH 4, a biplane which used a Liberty engine.

"Word came down from the powers that be saying 'Get rid of Albree and his damn monoplane,'" he stated, his weathered face turning cloudy. "With all that I've done for aviation, you can't find any mention of me in the history books. The people who built the Liberty engine got unspeakably wealthy from it and they weren't going to have Albree interfere."

Now, however, only monoplanes are used.

Albree gave up flying in 1918 at the age of 30 after an Army test pilot was killed in one of his planes.

Albree had taken the 118 U2 to New York to demonstrate it to the French Mission as they were interested in looking at monoplanes. Albree's plane had been flown successfully by the Frenchmen many times. On Dec. 24, 1918, a pilot named Mumford received permission to fly the plane.

"I came onto the field that day, saw the engine running and started walking towards the plane when it took off," Albree said. "The plane climbed at an amazing speed to about a thousand feet, leveled off and went into a gentle turn of 90 degrees. It flew on for a couple of hundred feet and suddenly nosedived into the ground."

It was at this point that Albree gave up his flying career.

Albree believes this incident gave the Army a reason to further mistrust the single-wing design and points out that the Army did not purchase another monoplane until ten years later.

Albree went into the insurance business and was married in 1927. He has two children. He lived at 7 Stratford rd. until 1979 when a fire destroyed his house.

"I was sleeping at the time and when I woke up there was smoke down within six to seven feet of the floor," he said. "I crouched down and got out. I don't know to this day how I ever did."

Albree lost many of his papers and files in the fire. What remains of them today were recovered after the fire by town archivist Susan Keats who has filled many files in the Archives with background on the Albree

If you are thinking about installing a solar energy system, now is the time to think of an SPI* maintenance free silicone system. As the price of fossil fuel continues to spiral upward you can actually reduce your water heating costs by 50-70% while receiving a combined Federal and State tax credit of 61%. Therefore, a first year return of 61% is realized in your investment in tax credits alone. In addition, the IRS says that you can realize this tax break immediately on your next paycheck by increasing the number of withholding allowances on your W-4 form. The immediate tax break, coupled with savings from a solar system will actually pay the installments if you choose to finance the system. For a free solar analysis and estimate, call the solar professionals at McCabe's Solar Co.

Workshop Sharpens Skills

Winchester Drama Workshop works toward more effective communication as actors or as persons with self-examination as well as outward expression.

Both veterans of McCall's South Pacific and newcomers to the stage are invited on this adventure together in a series of improvisation workshops opening on Sept. 23, from 3 to 5 p.m. in the Social Studies Open Area of the High School.

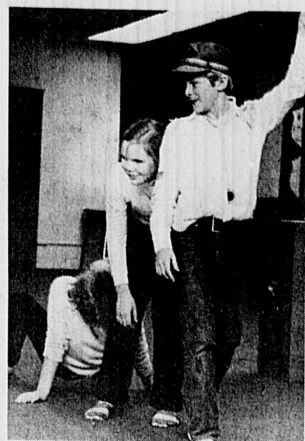

Co-sponsored by the Recreation Department and the Winchester Drama Workshop, the series is financed in part by the Winchester Rotary Club so that participants need pay only $10 for the ten sessions. If this amount prevents any individuals from participating, they may apply to the Recreation Office for tuition assistance.

The group will work together on Wednesday afternoons for 10 weeks on body tune-up with yoga exercises and relaxation; sensory awareness exercises; basic movement patterns; the silent language of Mime; theater games to evoke spontaneity; and finally, improvised scenes. The series will culminate in a Demonstration on Thursday, Dec. 2, open to everyone interested in the expressive arts in education.

Workshop leader Paulett Taggart recently returned from the Omega Institute for Holistic Studies where she worked with Theater Workshop Boston in metacreative improvisation and with Suzanne Benton on Mask and Ritual as a contemporary approach to myth and meaning.

Registration for the new Junior High group, which will be limited in size, will open Saturday, Sept. 19 at the Recreation Office at the rear of the Town Hall. Further information on the Drama Workshop is available from Paulett Taggart, 17 Ridgfield rd.

Musicians Can Audition

Auditions for high school instrumentalists and vocalists, to join The Greater Bostonians 1982 season will begin Sept. 20. The famed orchestra and chorus, featuring the top music talent from area high schools has entertained thousands on television and in concert for more than 10 years.

The 1982 concert season will begin in April and will again be highlighted by an evening performance in Boston's Symphony Hall on Tuesday, April 20.

Auditions are scheduled in a number of localities and are open to high school instrumentalists including strings, and vocalists. Selection to The Greater Bostonians is considered "all star" status and many former members have gone on to outstanding careers in music.

Those selected will rehearse at Northeastern University, Sunday afternoons from October until April.

With the 1982 season the young performers become a special project of Horizons for Youth. A not-for-profit organization, Horizons for Youth has provided over 60,000 young people of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts with a wide variety of program services.

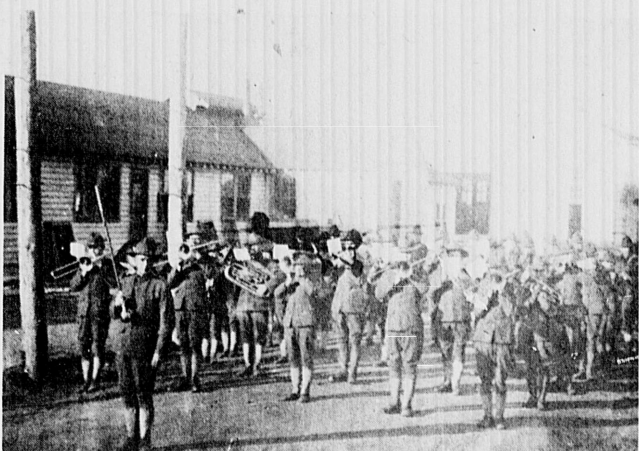

Auditions will be held at Northeastern University Sunday Sept. 20 and 27 from 1 to 5 p.m.; Wakefield High School Tuesday Sept. 22; Weymouth South High School Wednesday Sept. 23; Westwood High School and Belmont High School Thursday Sept. 24; and Chelmsford High School Wednesday Sept. 30, all from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Further information may be obtained by calling Horizons for Youth, Lakeview St., Sharon.

family. Keats saved them from being destroyed when the house was being closed. Many documents are blackened and burned around the edges.

Albree, who lives alone, still keeps active at 93. He is a ballistics expert and has developed a number of guns and sights for other models.

Although he says he should be in a wheelchair, the sharp-witted Albree constantly jumps up from his chair to display documents backing up all his statements.

He says he must keep pushing himself and moving around whenever he can. "That's what keeps me going," he noted.

Albree says he enjoys many aspects of life at 93 but does not enjoy outliving all his friends.

"It's terrible," he says, shaking his head from side to side. "They keep dropping like autumn leaves."

Most people who played leading roles in early aviation history are no longer around to tell the story.

But here in Winchester, we have one of the original aviation pioneers — a sprightly man who now watches the space shuttle (a monoplane) forge into new aviation frontiers, frontiers which Albree helped open.

League Is Path To Discovering Issues

Joining the Winchester League of Women Voters can be a way to find out what is going on in town, and to work on important issues affecting the town and the state.

This year, the league will be looking into casino gambling in Massachusetts, an after school program for the junior high, health care, housing in Winchester, the Aberjona River and toxic waste.

Among the studies undertaken by the league last year were establishing the need for after-school elementary programs and for housing in Winchester.

All those 18 years and older (men are members too) may attend two get-togethers scheduled over the next month.

The first will be on Wednesday, Sept. 23 at 9:30 a.m. in the home of Francine Lee, 67 High st. The second is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 21 at 8 p.m. at the home of Alice Madio, 68 High st.

GO SACHEMS! — There was plenty to cheer about last Saturday as the WHS football squad squashed Billerica 40-14 in the last pre-season scrimmage.

Sachems Open Season Saturday

Billerica Thrashed 40-14 In Final Preseason Warm-Up

All through the pre-season, football coach Manny Marshall worried that his team was thin. He looked at his squad, saw a strong first team, and no one one to back them up.

Until Saturday.

Last weekend, Marshall's Sachems stomped Billerica, 40-14. And the score didn't please the team's field general so much as the fact that the win showed the team had depth.

"There were some guys that we had questions on, whether they could start," Marshall said Monday, as he put his team through drills, getting ready for Saturday's non-league opener against Somerville.

"But after they way they played Saturday, we're not afraid to play them," he said. "I don't want to start naming kids, because the I might forget somebody. Everyone played well."

Both the first and second teams played well in the Billerica-Winchester contest.

First-string quarterback Richie Fennell hit for two touchdown passes, one to receiver Tony Celli and the other to back Steve Costello.

Costello, along with Chuck Allard and Bill Ferry, showed what could be a fine Sachems running game this year.

Costello pulled off an 80-yard run for a touchdown in the first quarter, and Allard set up a touchdown in the fourth quarter with a 70-yard scramble.

Chris Rogers showed he can make that necessary short yardage with two short touchdown dives, the first coming after Allard's long sprint.

But it was the defense, led by tri-captain Paul Manganaro, which won the game. They only gave up two touchdowns — one early in the first quarter, the other late in the fourth. In between, the defensive squad covered Billerica like a blanket.

The second team, coming in in the fourth, was no less tough. Led by Chris Cahill, they toted up two touchdowns.

Hopefully, the Sachem victory over Billerica will give the team the momentum to plow through Somerville at Manchester field Saturday afternoon (game time: 1:15).

Marshall's nervous going into this first game of the season. — "The first game always scares me," he observed.

"A lot of strange things can happen."

After Saturday's contest, Marshall will know for sure if his team is going places — like the Middlesex League Championship.

"The regular season is always different from the scrimmages, no matter how well you play," he said. If mistakes are going to plague the team, they'll show up. If the team is going to keep winning like it did against Billerica, that will show up too.

Marshall says he wants this win against Somerville. First, because "you don't get a second chance. If you want to win the championship in this league, you've got to go undefeated."

Second, a regular season win will calm the coach's fears over the inexperience of a Sachem team gutted by the graduation of 27 seniors last year.

Against Billerica, the inexperience showed as the team was hit with a slew of penalties. "The only thing that killed us

Season Previews:

Field Hockey Squad Hopes To Reach .500

Coach Pat Ryser is just hoping her team can go .500 this year.

Her hapless field hockey team is coming off a 4-13 season last year. None of her defensemen are coming back this year. Of the four seniors returning to the team, only two played last year.

But there is always hope in Sachemland. Ryser has a handful of fine players, like Martha Doherty and co-capt. Sheila Connolly.

She's also got a new goalie, Lisa Wiley, who has looked very good in the pre-season warm ups. But Ryser is still looking for the defensemen to go in front of Wiley.

It is tough, she explained, for the field hockey team to attract players, with girls soccer — probably the most successful and prestigious team at the high school level — going at the same time.

"The kids during junior high played field hockey all the time," said Ryser. "But once they get to high school, they all go for soccer."

"I'm struggling just to get enough players to field a team, and that makes it hard to run a program," she added.

But that's not to take away from those girls who do go out for field hockey. Ryser reports the team is working hard to surpass last year.

"The girls we have are really up for the season," she said. "I'm hoping to do pretty well this year. At least we're going to break .500."

Cross Country Teams To Benefit From 1980

The boy's cross-country team will reap the benefits of a re-building year last season — one in which the team finished 3-6, but also one in which a lot of harriers cut their teeth.

The girls cross-country team will reap the benefit of having Laurie Glynn.

Glynn will lead a team that certainly has a chance to repeat last season's march, or run, to the Middlesex League championship.

As a freshman last year, Glynn won every league race she ran in, and with a year's worth of experience (she ran for the Sachems last spring), this year she can hardly do less.

But Glynn won't have to do it alone. Coach Joe Cantillon noted he's got several good runners coming back, like senior Eileen Conly, and juniors Martha Davis and Sandy Jordan.

Cantillon even has another freshmen top runner — Beth Nowell.

On the distaff side, the boys cross-country team is sure to improve from its disheartening showing last season. Cantillon feels he's got "a good group returning this year", one that can help win some meets for the Sachems.

With five runners — Pat Kenedy, Joe Callahan, Hugh Murray, Peter Quine and Barry Surchis — coming in with varsity experience, Cantillon says he's "really hoping we have a strong nucleus this year."

Both teams' first meets are on Sept. 25 against Stoneham.

TOWN TENNIS TOURNEY ACTION — The Winchester Town Tennis Tournament opened last weekend at the Packer courts with action in all categories. Players competed in the doubles, singles, mixed doubles and senior men's singles. Action continues this weekend with the finals to come Sunday. Swim Team To Face Tough New Opponents

Here you are, swim coach Vin Palumbo, and you're sitting pretty.

The girls swim team went 12-1 last season, and you've got a team this year that is "as strong as last years". You've got a shot at winning the Middlesex League title.

Except there is no more Middlesex League.

So many teams dropped out of the league, due to cuts from Proposition 2.5, that the girls swim league was abolished, Palumbo explained Tuesday.

A new league was created, and this season Winchester will have to go up against some tough opponents they would have normally avoided. Teams like Acton-Boxborough, which won the Eastern Mass. Championship last year.

"Last year, there were maybe four or five meets where I could put my poorest women in and still win," said Palumbo. "I'm not going to be doing that this year."

Still, Palumbo is looking forward to a "real good, competitive season".

"We've got depth," he said. "But about half the meets are toss-ups. We could win all of them or we could blow five. It's going to be a real competitive season."

Palumbo has a good, solid team this year, an equal combination of experienced veterans and talented rookies.

The divers are a good example. Palumbo will welcome back last year's number one diver, Michelle Bowen, who the coach said could be the best diver in the league this season.

And he'll also have Tracy Simpson, a senior trying out for the team for the first time. Palumbo feels Simpson has the potential to be a "real good diver".

Palumbo has five other veterans returning to the water this year — P.K. Porter, Charol Schnell, Cheryl Powers, Lynn Van Ummersen and last year's most valuable swimmer, Ann McCann.

Palumbo's also looking to three promising rookies — Debbie Twitchell, "a quality swimmer" Gail Minutoli, who started on the team last year, pulled a shoulder muscle and was out for the season and Hannah Riley, a "sophomore who's doing a good job for us."

Palumbo said he's pleased with the talent and the spirit on this years team.

"They have to have spirit to get up for practice at 4:30 in the morning," the coach said laughing. "But I tell them to be at the pool by 4:55, and they're there by quarter to five."

The season starts for the Sachem swimmers next Tuesday, against Haverhill. Palumbo predicted his team would finish the season with at least a 7-5 record, adding "I know we can win ten meets."

"I've been coaching the boys for 13 years, and the girls for eight," he said. "I know that if I have four quality swimmers, the team can go a long way. This year, I've got at least seven or eight quality swimmers."

"Unfortunately, it's the same in Acton-Boxboro, the same in Lexington..."

Soccer Team Faces Final Exam

By JOHN WILPERS

It will be like having a final exam on the first day of school.

Tomorrow, the Winchester and Belmont girls soccer teams clash in what both coaches are calling one of the biggest, toughest matches of the year. It is the opening game for the Sachems; only the second match of the year for the Lady Marauders.

"I'd rather have it some other way, that's for sure," said Belmont coach Dick Howick, who lost his All Scholastic goalie and nine other players to graduation. "We have a fairly young team and it will be a real challenge."

"Not to say we will be slouches this year," he added quickly. "We will be reasonably strong but we will have our hands full with Winchester."

The feeling is mutual in Sachemland. Belmont will be one of our toughest matches," said coach Chris Scanlon. "We lost seven starters, so it is a rebuilding year in a sense. We have a lot of talented kids but they're got to fill some pretty big shoes."

Like the shoes of champions. The Sachems have been Middlesex League champs for the past three years, as long as the girls at WHS have been playing soccer.

Nonetheless, Belmont has been a persistent thorn in the champs' side. "Belmont is the only team we didn't beat last year," admitted Scanlon. "They tied us twice." And on the junior varsity level last year, the Winchester JV lost only to Belmont in overtime and the Belmont JV lost only to Winchester, also in overtime.

So it's grudge match time tomorrow, a game to settle things and set the tone for the 1981 season.

'If you win your first game against a good team, it gets you off to a good start.'

"There are pros and cons to having a tough game first," said Scanlon. "The momentum from your first game means a lot. If you win your first game against a good team, it gets you off to a good start and tells you a lot about your team. It's a good barometer."

But what if the barometer reads 29 degrees and falling? "It still gives you an accurate reading," said Scanlon.

In preparing for the game, the two coaches are taking dramatically different approaches.

In Belmont, coach Howick is finding his team's pulse and drilling on one style. "At our level, it's not advisable to go through dramatic changes for one game or another," he said. "We find a style that fits our team and we play it with only minor adjustments game to game."

"If you practice hard, you'll have good games," he added.

Over in Winchester, Scanlon has been running his team through the basic standard soccer style "to gauge the development of the players." But on Monday, he introduced a different system. "We will use a three-man line instead of the standard four-man line," he said. "Then we will add a feeder halfback who will become a deep striker."

Four days to learn a completely new system? "There are some risks involved in going with something new," said

Scanlon. "But we plan our attack around our players and we have some very outstanding players."

Scanlon is not worried at all about his defense, especially with the addition of one player from the front line. "My defense will be able to react to whatever offense he (Howick) sets up once we see it," Scanlon said. "But with fewer people up front, we will have to work hard at cracking their defense and scoring points."

Scanlon is banking on attrition to wear down Howick's troops. "Without question, we have the best depth in the league," he said. "We have people on our bench who could start on most teams so I won't hesitate to make substitutions and wear them (Belmont) down."

Howick, who is also beginning to reap the benefits of a very strong town recreation soccer program, is deep in talent as well. So deep that early this week he had not yet determined his starting line-up. "We'll play our first game against Weston (Wed.) and see what happens," he said.

In case talent and depth aren't enough for the Sachems, Scanlon hopes that two other factors might help him out: tradition and the home field advantage. "Not only are we playing at home," he said, "But we've also never lost at home in three years."

And that is quite a record. One that Howick's Marauders would love to break.

was a lot of stupid penalties," Marshall said.

At Monday's workout, Marshall exhorted his team to watch for just those kind of mistakes against Somerville.

"We've got to cut down on the mistakes you made Saturday — you, know, the hands," he said as he set up the offensive and defensive squads for a drill.

Marshall said he scouted Somerville Saturday, in their game against East Boston.

"They didn't show us much," he said. "But then they didn't use too many formations."

Marshall did pick up a few clues to the Somerville game, however, as he spent part of Monday afternoon testing his defense against the wishbone. "That's what they ran last week against E. Boston," he told the troops.

Coach Henry Knowlton said that he feels the Sachems can beat Somerville. "We can match them in size — there aren't many teams bigger than we are," he said.

But Marshall doesn't want to make predictions. "Too many things can happen in that first game," he cautioned.

Seventy Young Swingers Participate In Winchester Junior Tennis Tourney

By PRISCILLA SAMOHOFF

The Winchester Junior Tennis Tournament ended last weekend with more than 70 girls and boys having competed for the championships. It was a wonderful week of tennis in all ways. The weather was beautiful, as were the participants. Fine tennis and sportsmanship was displayed throughout the event.

Auxiliary Of Youth Hockey Meets

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Winchester Youth Hockey will meet on Thursday, Sept. 24, at 7:45 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William Coppins, 3 Thornton rd.

At this meeting, and all others, the board welcomes all interested women who would like to air an opinion or help on our programs, such as the in-house league, pictures, travel teams, raffle and the annual fund raising dance.

Last year the auxiliary under the leadership of Patricia Winn raised sufficient funds to help replace used goalie equipment for the in-house league.

The WHYLA also presented patches for all participants of the program and arranged a final party for the In-House Program at their last session. Besides receiving patches, participants also received trophies and pictures.

An annual "Sportsmanship" Award to be presented to a graduating high school hockey team player was also initiated.

The tournament organizers expressed their appreciation to all the players, parents and friends who helped make the event a great success. A special thanks went to Stephanie Houllahan — It could not have gone as well without her. Thanks also goes to: The Winchester Recreation Dept. for providing the trophies; the Winchester Tennis Assn. for new balls; Norman Doucette Jr., of the DPW for keeping the courts in good shape; and Whit Gray for his support throughout the tournament.

The results:

Girls singles — 15 and under: Sheila Gray over Terry Elio.

Boys singles — 15 and under: Paul Sughrie over Marco Cosentino.

Girls doubles — 15 and under: Sheila Gray and Kathy Gray over Terry Elio and Paula Ricciardelli.

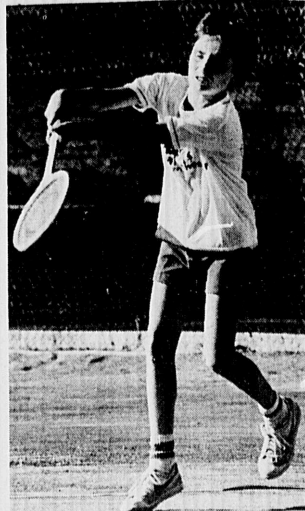

Boys doubles — 15 and under: Paul Sughrie and Marco Cosentino over S. Herlihy and Scott Gediman.

Girls singles — 12 and under: Karen McCall over Linda McCall.

Boys singles — 12 and under: Jay Houllahan over Joe Palumbo.

Girls doubles — 12 and under: Linda McCall and Karen McCall over Kathy Furey and Kristen Rothman.

Boys doubles — 12 and under: Joe Palumbo and Scott Herlihy over Guy Pollino and Jay Houllahan.

WIN SOME, LOSE SOME — Scott Herlihy, above, who won the Winchester Junior Tennis Tournament boys 12-and-under doubles with partner Joseph Palumbo, lost in the singles competition to — you guessed it — Joseph Palumbo.

Recorder Lessons Given At Adult Ed

Voice and recorder lessons will be offered privately and in small groups through the Adult Education program at Winchester High School, beginning the week of Sept. 28.

According to voice teacher Eileen Moremen, learning to sing in a relaxed, comfortable way is fun for beginners, members of a choir, or solo singers.

Moremen graduated from the Eastman School of Music, earned a masters degree in music from the University of Michigan, and is currently a member of the New England Baroque Ensemble. Her lessons are open to high school students and adults, and she offers a choice of styles of music, such as early music, folk, or American musical theater.

Mary H. Waldo, recorder teacher, enjoys working with beginners and experienced players using all styles of recorders. She has an undergraduate degree in music education and received her masters degree in the performance of early music from New England Conservatory. Last year she was a recorder coach for the Boston Chapter of the American Recorder Society.

Waldo will also be teaching recorder in the afternoon at McCall Junior High School, where her lessons are open to students of elementary school age and older.

Admission is on a first come first served basis. The first session will begin Oct. 5. For further information and registration information, contact Anne Edgerly, 44 Green St., Woburn.

Cleaning Steam Irons

A steam iron that's accumulated scorch or a melted synthetic fabric can be an annoying problem, especially if you need the iron immediately.

One method is to put a thin layer of salt between two pieces of wax paper then iron over the paper with a cold iron. The sole plate will get enough abrasion to clean it but the wax paper will keep it from getting scratched.

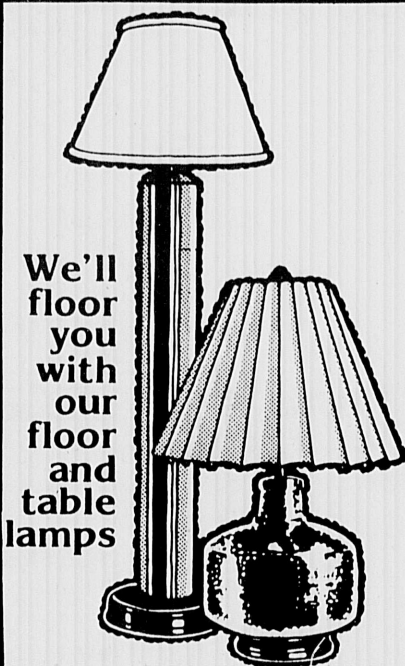

Vinegar and water combined in equal parts and applied with a sponge or soft cloth will remove some build-up, too.

CAR CARE CORNER

While each and every unit that makes up the complete motor vehicle is extremely important in the overall design and functioning of the automobile, the engine is perhaps the most interesting, but the least understood. It is the heart of the car. Without apparent reason, a perfectly running engine may change instantly to a rough, powerless mass of metal. Of course, there's always a reason for an engine acting like that — a very definite reason. It is the job of an expert mechanic to determine the reason and remedy it.

Keep your automotive investment in top shape with professional mechanical care from 128 MAZDA-OLDS. Our own body shop is on the premises. We do all Warranty Work. SIGNS AND MUSHROOMS

In the spring, "for-sale" signs pop up like mushrooms after the rain. Many prospective sellers wait until the tulips bloom thinking that their homes will bring a better price in a lush setting.

Spring is not necessarily the best time to sell your house. Perhaps you do not realize that large companies inform their employees of transfers shortly after the first of the year. Consequently, we see many transferees, (some of our finest buyers) before the bloom of spring. Although these people come early in the year, they will gladly wait until the school year ends to make their move to the area.

During the months between notification and the actual move, the buyer is most anxious for the security of an established address in his new town.

If you are thinking of selling your house, we will be happy to give you all the fix-it-up advice you need, if any.

Don't wait for the grass to grow under your feet.

have as many people as possible educated in the use of the equipment, that's when we expect the local programming channel to take off," Pollack said.

But until the townspeople are ready to take over the controls, Pollack said, "we'll do the best we can with the staff we have."

As far as selling that local access channel, along with the other 34 channels, to subscribers, Pollack said he expects the marketing to take another 12 to 15 weeks.

Pollack said the first homes to receive cable will be in North Winchester, between Salem st. and Russell rd. in one direction, and Farrow st. and Loring ave. in the other.

After that, Pollack wants to keep the marketing plan flexible, so areas with underground cable ties can be hooked up before winter sets in.

Six salesmen are out on the streets now, selling cable to likely subscribers, followed closely by a pair of installers.

Once the cable is run to the television sets, programs will be broadcast over the sets immediately, Pollack said.

Continental's satellite receiving station, located at the town transfer station, began receiving signals last week.

Continental is offering a wide choice of channels and packages to their subscribers. Subscribers can choose a 14-channel package, or a 34-channel (which could soon be a 52 channel) package. On top of that, they can choose from four special movie channels — HBO, Cinemax, Showtime and Home Theatre Network.

Television stations from Boston, Providence, New York City, Atlanta and Chicago will be carried on the cable, as well as special channels such as Nickelodeon, Cable News Network, Family Health Service and the Winchester Channel.

★ Rec. Dept.

When the last fiscal year ended there was $30,000 left in the surplus funds and it went back to the town.

"We passed a recreation program last year and we thought we had given him enough money to run it," said Finance Committee member Robert Ericson. "We committed ourselves and I think we need to support it. I believe we owe Mr. Cereghino the support of the program we voted in."

Normally, a request to the Finance Committee to reallocate funds would go to subcommittee to be investigated and then the subcommittee chairperson would report back with a recommendation.

However, this particular request was treated as a special case since registration begins this Saturday. Cereghino had asked for an answer as quickly as possible so he could make any necessary changes before that time.

Casting the only opposing vote to the transfer, Finance Committee member Harry Chetani said he was opposed to supporting other people's recreation.

"Will you support everyone's recreation," he asked "Where do you stop? I play golf. Will you support that?"

Quinn answered that the Rec. program participants still pay user fees.

Although Singleton has yet to contact all of the neighbors, those present at Monday's meeting were sympathetic. Robert Keete whose land at 10 Rangeley rd. is adjacent to the site, described the project as "far less objectionable" than other construction sites in Winchester. He said, "Generally, I have no objection."

The plan displayed before the board provides for varying "set-back" distances, depending on whether a particular cluster of townhouses is adjacent to a commercial building, the railroad tracks, the nearby town parking lot, or one of the handful of single family homes. While certain set-backs are a distance of only 25 feet, no single family lot falls within 40 feet of the complex.

Keete expressed his fear that traffic would become unreasonable on Rangeley rd., a concern that Singleton dismissed. The developer claimed the buildings would be designed to attract a "mixed bag" of residents, including commuters and retirees who will not contribute to peak traffic situations. Moreover, Singleton added, the complex would only cover a short stretch of the road.

Monday's discussion was informal and certain aspects of the plan—including the actual design of the buildings—still must be ironed out.

Singleton acknowledged Tuesday that grade complications could mandate the construction of a three-story building, with others reduced to a single story.

"There is a great deal of latitude on what the units will look like," Singleton said later. "All we intended to do at the meeting was to explore the concept and I was most encouraged by the initial reaction of the board."

Although Fitzgerald and his partners in Waterfield Associates were reportedly interested in bringing the matter before the November Town Meeting, the discussions have been extended at the request of Singleton and the Planning Board. Action on the proposal is expected to be taken at the May Town Meeting or at a special session.

In other action, the board heard the proposal of Robert Nickerson, president of Winchester Savings Bank, to extend the parking facilities of the Washington st. branch into an adjacent vacant lot. Nickerson described the current arrangement as a dangerous situation that would be exacerbated in the event the bank decided to expand, which is not unrealistic and would require no rezoning.

The board noted Nickerson's proposal, but took no specification.

Also discussed at Monday's meeting was the language of a by-law requiring fire lanes for all buildings within the commercial district. A bone of contention, however, was a clause granting the fire chief the right to waive the fire lane requirement where it is unnecessary.

before this summer."

Cereghino said that in the 2½ years that he has been in the Recreation Dept., he has never been able to schedule the same program twice. "We had one opportunity to do that with the preschoolers, but now we found that the same facility is not available. We had to really sit here and laugh for some comic relief."

If he had not received the funds Monday night Cereghino had planned to run the programs until funds were depleted and request money at the fall Town Meeting. Now he says he will not go to Town Meeting until Spring.

Although he is getting used to upheavals in his department, Cereghino said he thinks the town should look at some long-range planning to improve the situation.

"In many communities, people look at things such as Recreation Dept. services, school services and library services separately," he said. "No one looks at it like a community should. If you look at the activities, many of them travel along similar paths."

"At some point it would make a great deal of sense to put these all under one umbrella," he continued. "Everybody doesn't need to have their own bailiwick."

Energy House Tour Sept. 20

The League of Women Voters of Winchester invites the public to participate in an Energy House Tour and Exhibit on Sept. 20 from noon to 4 p.m. starting at the Winchester Savings Bank on Main st.

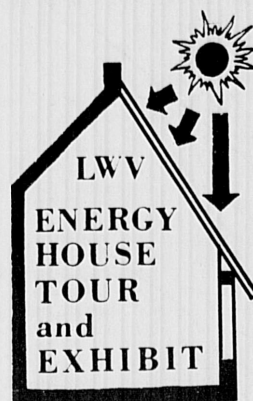

Living in the Northeast means low temperatures and high fuel costs; costs which can be substantially reduced through careful, cost-effective application of modern technologies.

Hosted by the League in the new, partially solar Savings Bank at 661 Main st., exhibitors will include area companies offering advice and technology in auditing, heating stoves, solar construction, insulation, window treatments and furnace efficiency technology.

Homes on the tour include a Mass-Save audit house, two new and innovative active and passive solar designs, and four diverse retrofitted homes employing a wide variety of money-saving conservation methods.

The bank will open at noon, Sept. 20, and visitors may pick up their $4 brochure ticket to the exhibition hall and the home tour. Banking personnel will also be on hand to discuss financing and tax benefits of the various technologies. Reserve tickets will be held at the door for only $3. Checks may be made out to the LWV-Winchester and sent to Francine Lee, 67 High st. Tickets at the door on the day of the tour and exhibit will be $4.

Instrument Lessons Open Next Week

The Voluntary Taxpayers:

They Don't Have To Pay — But They Do

Winchester's long-time citizens were the first to rescue the town from its tax-bill blues by paying their fall taxes voluntarily.

"I figured it was the least I could do for my town," said Fredrick

Deminico, who paid his taxes on Sept. 1. "Some people might say 'Let the town go down the incinerator,' but I feel differently."

"I've lived in this town for 20 years and I raised two sons here," Deminico, a Chardon rd. resident, continued. "I knew the town was hanging on the ropes with money problems and I heard that this paying early was something people could do."

Since the Board of Selectmen asked citizens to pay their taxes voluntarily to help out until revaluation-delayed tax bills go out at the end of the year, 47 homeowners have sent in their taxes.

According to the records in the Town Collector's office, about $40,000 in early tax payments have been received by the town so far.

Collector Carol Thomas noted that

The Downtown Shuffle

One-Or-Two Things To Switch Sides

By DAVE LEECO

One-or-Two Things, the Mt. Vernon st. convenience store, will offer one or two surprises when the store moves across the street in November.

One-or-Two's owner, Berg Keshian, said last week that his new store will have 50 percent more room than the old store next to Randall's Restaurant — and a few new features as well.

"We're going to have a deli, which is going to be something different," Keshian said as he supervised the crew of carpenters renovating his new store in the former Richardson's Market.

"We're also going to be open earlier in the morning — at 6:30 instead of 7," he continued. "The need is obviously there. I come in early in the morning, and there are people downtown who would like a cup of coffee, or a newspaper."

There will also be a few surprises when the new store opens, Keshian said, adding that "I don't want to tip my hand as to what they might be — it's a surprise."

According to Lee Whittenberg, who is helping Keshian plan the marketing of the new store, almost every facet of the store will be expanded.

"We're going to expand in all five major items — there will be more dairy products, groceries and notions like pins and needles. The small vegetable section will be slightly expanded, and we'll have more books, magazines and newspapers."

"We're looking into a lot of things, actually," Whittenberg added.

Right now, a half-dozen electricians, carpenters, plumbers and laborers are at work in the new store, renovating the interior under Keshian's direction.

Keshian is contracting the work himself. He is in the new store every day, walking around with crowbars in his hand, ordering a drop ceiling here, and more lights there.

"I'm taking a personal interest in this thing," said Keshian. "To me, it's not

Purity Move Held Up By Material Delays

The reconstruction of what's left of the old Finast Supermarket — which is now about half of one side and a bit of the roof — will have to wait until Purity Supreme's construction crews receive needed materials.

Purity Supreme is renovating the old Finast building, with the help of a $1.7 million loan through the CARD program, and plans to move the contents of its Shore rd. store there.

According to Jack Murphy, Purity's information director, the date of that move is still uncertain.

"We really can't set a timetable, because we're waiting for materials to come in from around the country," Murphy said.

"As you can see, we're expanding on three sides, and there's really not much left of the old building," he continued. "We have ordered quite a bit of material."

Once the necessary building materials arrive, Murphy said, then Purity's engineers will "really take a look at the floor plan, and decide what they are going to do with the building."

Murphy noted that Purity officials had been working closely with Economic Development Coordinator John Connery on the design of the building.

"The town officials have really done a super job working with us," Murphy said. "I've worked in a lot of towns, and there aren't many others that have delivered what they promised so smoothly, and on time."

Although, according to Murphy, plans are not finalized, Connery has given a general idea of what the building will become, once the walls go back up.

The building will be facing Skillings rd. when reconstructed, instead of Main st. as the Finast did.

Randall's May Expand Next Door

Winchester's diners may not have to wait in line much longer to get a table for dinner at Randall's Restaurant.

With One-or-Two Things ready to move across Mt. Vernon st. in November, Randall's owner John Drougas is thinking of expanding his restaurant, providing more tables for the hungry patrons.

"Drougas, who owns the building housing One-or-Two and Randall's, noted that he had not made a final decision on the expansion, but he was looking into the possibility."

"I'm not sure what I'm going to do yet, but you can say I'm considering expanding," said Drougas.

"Everything is still up in the air right now," he added. "I think that maybe I'm going to expand, but you know, things may change."

Drougas said he is looking at "three or four different plans" for the expansion, but has not yet decided which plan, if any, he will go with.

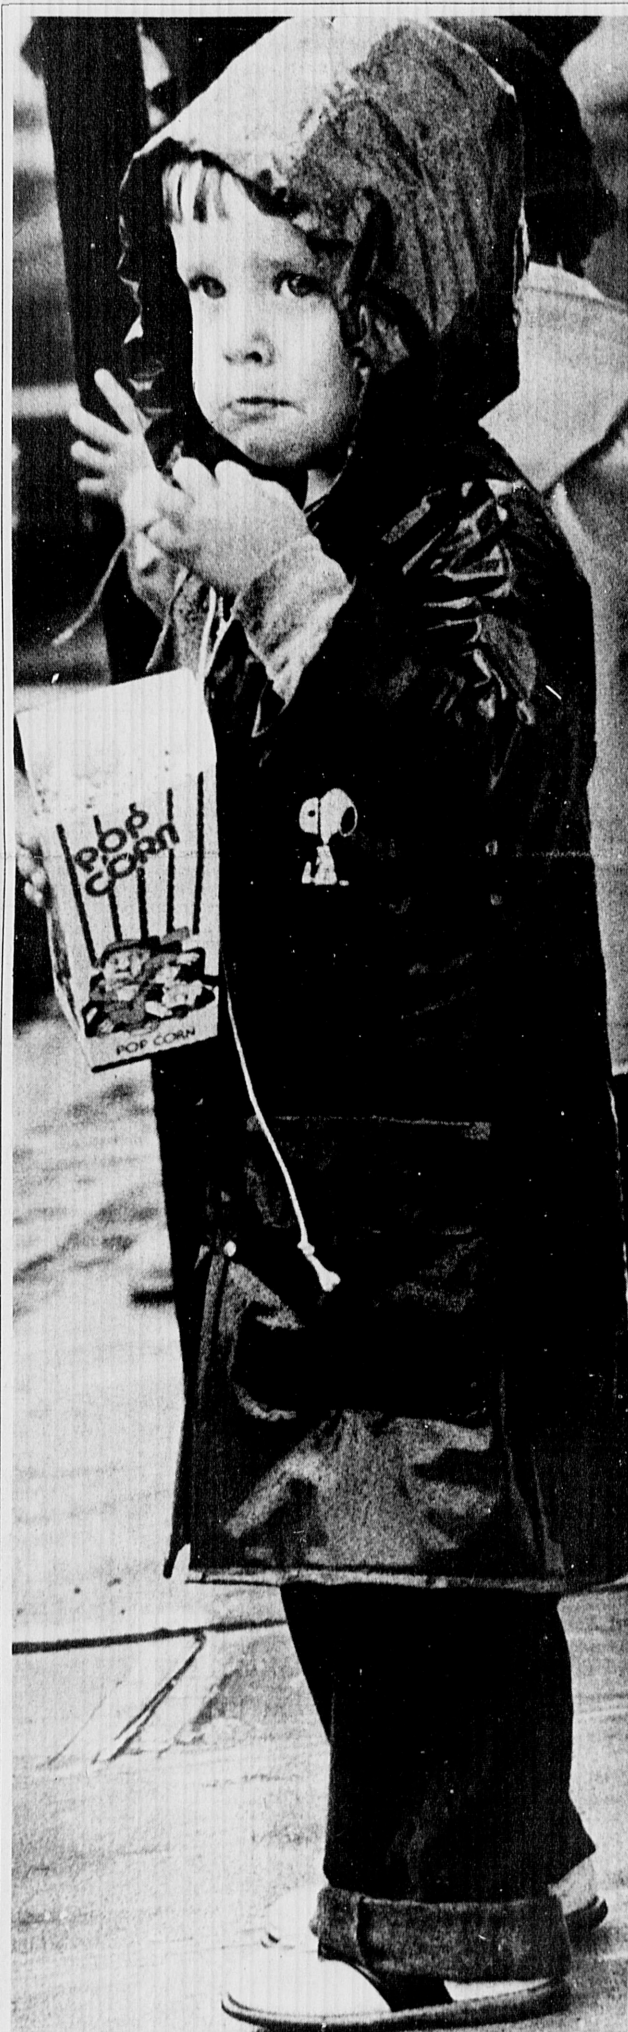

Economic Development Coordinator John Connery said his office, and the Economic Development Committee, would be glad to offer Drougas any help he needs in planning the expansion.

"We want to work as much as possible with Mr. Drougas," said Connery. "He's the only full-menu, sit-down restaurant in the downtown, and we want to be sure we keep him there."

Connery said he and Daniel LaGatta, the head of the Economic Development Committee, have already met with Drougas to discuss the expansion, and added that the restaurant owner "was very cooperative."

"We told him that anything he needs help on, we're willing to give it to him," said Connery. "If it means working with town officials to get (Drougas) the permits, we'll do it. If it means design assistance, we're going to help him there too."

"Having a restaurant like his is a valuable ingredient to have downtown — we need him there," added Connery.

Railroad To Woburn May Be Abandoned

By DAVE LEECO

The Boston and Maine Railroad is moving to abandon the Woburn loop, opening up the possibility of expansion to the Main st. area.

According to a memo from Winchester Economic Development Coordinator John Connery to Woburn Community Development Coordinator James Winnegar, the B&M has hired an attorney to speed the abandonment through the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The memo was included in Monday's correspondence to the Board of Selectmen.

The memo states that the B&M's lawyer, Sidney Weinberg of Boston, will file for abandonment within the next four to six weeks.

Since the MBTA stopped running commuter trains along the Woburn loop, which runs from Winchester to Woburn center, only the B&M runs trains along the line. According to the memo, that amounts to only two trains a year.

If the line is abandoned, the memo continues, the "next step would be to request a sale of the property from the MBTA to Woburn and Winchester."

And that, according to Connery, "would put the biggest piece of real estate left downtown up for sale."

Connery said that if the town acquires the land, the Board of Selectmen will have to decide how it is to be parcelled out.

"They will have to take the lead in this," said Connery. "But I would assume most of the land would be added to the land owned by the present abutments."

"Of course, they may decide to hold such and such a piece of property for town use," he added. "The key thing is the town will acquire control over how the land is developed."

According to the memo, the town could acquire that control within a very few short time. The line, it states, could be abandoned by Oct. 1982, and the sale of the land to the town would take another six to eight months.

The B&M will have to go through a long procedure before the line is developed and the land is sold to Winchester, according to the memo.

First, the Interstate Commerce Commission would have to approve the abandonment. Then the federal Urban Mass Transit Administration must approve the sale of the land to the towns.

In the meantime, the B&M is petitioning the state Department of Public Utilities to close the automatic gates and flashers along the line.

Trains would then be required to stop at crossings, and crew members with flags would have to block the crossing.

If the DPU approves the petition, the memo suggests, the B&M will have a stronger case for abandonment.

The few Woburn businesses which now use the line to carry freight would be given time to find new ways to haul their products, according to the memo. Connery said there may be trains running along the line two years after the line is abandoned.

Pigskins vs. Windows, Part II

Balls Hit Screens But Face Net Next

By DAVE LEECO

The first two point-after attempts made at Saturday's football game were knocked down by a defending tree. The fourth kick was wide to the left, but the third attempt headed true — right into Mrs. Mary Spencer's window.

At least no windows were broken Saturday, as the third kick only dented the screen. And to be fair to the Winchester School Department, they did try to stop the footballs.

After the Sept. 12 football game, when two errant kicks obliterated the glass in the back door of Mrs. Spencer's Manchester rd. home, which is . . . unfortunately located 30 feet away from the goalposts, town workers built a fence to stop the footballs.

The workers added another six-foot section of fence onto the existing eight-foot-high chain-link barrier, hoping to stop the footballs which have been plaguing Mrs. Spencer for the last 15 Sachem seasons.

It didn't work. If not for the tree, every kick made at the Manchester rd.

end of Knowlton Stadium would have sailed right over the now 14-foot fence.

However, Athletic Director William Colella was at Saturday's contest against Somerville, and he ordered another section of fence be added to the superstructure.

So on Monday, workmen set two four-foot posts on top of the fence, and tied a tennis net between the two. Mrs. Spencer thinks that should do the job.

"The new fence should keep a certain number of balls from coming over, and that will be a relief," she said Monday night, inspecting the 18-foot-high contraption.

"It will be nice to have just an occasional broken window, instead of one or two every game," she observed.

Now Mrs. Spencer can relax and enjoy the Sachem games from her sunporch — until Thanksgiving. For every time Winchester and Woburn hold their annual contest in Knowlton Stadium, Mrs. Spencer's yard turns into a grandstand.

"Two years ago, the last time they played here, it was the final game to decide who would win the Middlesex League title," she recalled. "They were expecting everyone in town to show up, but they actually got twice what they expected."

"My bedroom is right up there," she said, pointing to a window that overlooked the roof of the sunporch. "When I got up at nine, the first thing I did was pull up the shade."

"I looked out and saw people all over the roof. I saw them, they saw me, and here I was in my nightgown!"

Not only were people sitting on Mrs. Spencer's roof, they were standing three-deep behind the fence in her yard, sitting on her porch and porch rail (which broke under the combined weight), and climbing the trees on the property.

"I looked up at the tree, and there were people sitting in all the branches," she said. "They looked like pigeons."

Spencer was planning a big Thanksgiving dinner, but instead of stuffing the turkey, she spent the whole morning trying to chase Sachem fans off her house.

"They took my ladder, and set it up against the wall," she said. "There were guys sitting on every rung, like it was some kind of bench. Naturally, the ladder broke. We just flung it away."

As the game wore on, spectators began to climb on a picket fence in the rear of Mrs. Spencer's property.

"People were standing on the fence, leaning back and forth on it, and the next thing I know the fence went clump," Mrs. Spencer said. "It cost me $250 to get the fence fixed."

Some misguided football fan even brought a motorcycle into Mrs. Spencer's yard — uprooting the bricks in her patio and crushing plants in the process.

"I finally called the police, and the man on the desk told me the football game was almost over, and I should be patient," she said. "The police just gave up trying to move people. It was pretty

Well, it's the start of a brand-new Mystery Photo season. And with champion Richard Rogers retiring, almost anybody could come in and win the pair of Bruins tickets the Mystery Photo desk is offering the season champ.

Of course, the competition for those tickets is hot and heavy. With one season of practice under their belts, experts like Mark Ellis and Jay Barbuto have a good chance to take the crown.

Christine Mooradian and Ellen

McKenney are also good bets, as they have missed very few since first entering the Mystery Photo Winners Circle. And there is a relative newcomer, Bex Wankowicz, who claims she will be the one to get those tickets.

Meanwhile, Mystery Photographer Noreen Murphy has thrown away her nun's habit, kicked her fixer-sniffing habit, and gotten into the habit of taking nearly impossible-to-find Mystery Photos.

She swears no one will have a chance of beating her every time this season, as Rogers did during the summer. She's going to have some expert help this season, as Rogers has consented to become an occasional Mystery Photo consultant.

Unfortunately for Noreen, her fine promises echoed hollowly this week, as 17 puzzle solvers were able to spot last week's Mystery Photo at the Packer Tennis Courts.

And those sharp-eyed Mystery Photo buffs are:

Just a couple of short notes. First, Noreen had a near fit when she saw Robyn and Chris Rogers on the list. Just the Rogers name throws her into a panic.

However, the Mystery Photo Shrink was able to convince out our distraught shutter-bug that these were different Rogerses, since the address was different.

Second, the Mystery Photo Panel of Judges is now examining whether it is proper for teams such as the Eye and the Engineers to compete against single participants. Look for a ruling within the next few weeks.

And the Mystery Photo now has a Mystery Contestant, the elusive "Zebra," with its correct answer this week, the Zebra writes "My identity is to remain secret until after that 14th and final week, when my friend R. Rogers will have to face me head-to-head."

"He's been avoiding me for years, but now he has no choice but to take the challenge in January." Strong stuff.

Meanwhile, see if you can find the location of this week's Mystery Photo. If you do, send in the form below to Mystery Photo, The Winchester Star, 3 Church st. Good Luck.

MDC Water Committee Won't Make TM

By WILLIAM KLEINKNECHT

An advisory committee investigating whether Winchester should hook into the Metropolitan District Commission's proposed Bear Hill water facility told the Board of Selectmen Monday that a determination would not be reached in time for the November Town Meeting.

Ernest A. Phillips, chairman of the MDC Water Pipe Study Committee, said in the absence of water use projections, cost quotations and other vital information any recommendation would be premature. He said, "It's too early to make a decision."

While stressing that the selectmen are looking toward the committee for a strong advisory role, Chairman Edward O'Connell expressed satisfaction with the careful consideration of the proposal. "I am pleased," the chairman said, "that you have not come forward with any hasty decision."

The Bear Hill facility, cited as a means to eliminate treatment and pumping costs associated with Winchester's current practice of drawing water from the MDC's Spot Pond, was recently approved for construction and has been a source of controversy.

Many residents, fearful over the prospect of all three of Winchester's reservoirs being deactivated — a situation that had actually been proposed in the past — vehemently opposed involvement with the facility. These individuals cited total reliance on the MDC as an unnecessary dilemma.

But Selectmen and committee members alike sought Monday to clear the air of such concerns. Said Phillips, "There would never be much of a thought for doing away with the reservoirs." O'Connell added that those who had "expressed indignation" were doing so unnecessarily.

According to Phillips, if use of the Bear Hill facility were deemed feasible, it would simply be a way to draw essentially the same amount of water from the MDC, but from a source where cleanliness and pressure is already present. The amount of water drawn from Winchester's naturally filled reservoirs in Middlesex Fells — estimated by Phillips to be 50 percent of the town's annual consumption of 966 million gallons — would not be expected to change.

To secure against the possibility of a drought that would deplete reservoir water levels, Phillips urged Town Manager Thomas Groux to present the MDC with a request for more water from the pumping station on the Arlington border. The station, which already supplies water to those areas of Winchester that lie west of Cambridge St., could supply the east side of the street by simply opening valves, according to Phillips.

Such a development, however, is precluded by a standing agreement between Winchester and the MDC, which restricts the amount of water drawn from the facility. The valves are only opened under extraordinary circumstances, as exemplified by a period last year when Spot Pond was drained for purposes of renovation.

Groux said Tuesday if a permanent arrangement could be made "we would very definitely consider it." He added his doubt, however, that the MDC would accede to their request.

Phillips stressed the importance of opening the valves on a consistent basis. "It would be a prudent thing to do for the future," he said. "It's nice to talk about water when you have a lot of it."

POWER FROM THE SUN — Dr. Martin Zombeck of Fletcher St. inspects the plants in his solar greenhouse, one of two he has built into his 65-year-old Dutch Colonial home. Zombeck's house was featured during Sunday's League of Women Voters Energy House Tour. Zombeck's home was particularly interesting, since he built the two greenhouses into an existing building.

$928,875 Swanton St. Bridge Contract Awarded

The construction of a new Swanton Street Bridge moved closer to reality this week when the Mass. Department of Public Works planned to award a $928,875 contract to the Sutton Corporation of Acton, low bidder on the project, according to Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr. who has been working to expedite the bridge replacement.

Saltmarsh said the Sutton bid was about $18,000 higher than the original DPW estimate for the costs of replacing the bridge, rated the 94th worst out of 5,000 bridges in the state — A dubious distinction which will be removed with the demolition of the old structure.

Scheduled for completion by the end of October 1982, the bridge will be a single-span, buttressed, prestressed concrete, deck beam bridge with bituminous concrete wearing surface.

It will measure 34 feet in width on the roadway, and will have a five-foot, curbed, concrete sidewalk on the north and a 7.5 foot sidewalk with wheelchair ramps on the south. The approach will be improved by the widening and reconstruction of Main Street, and new traffic signals will be installed at the Main Street intersection.

Saltmarsh said that sodding and planting would further improve the appearance of this area that has long been considered a blight on the landscape of the town.

"We were fortunate to get the go-ahead for this construction before federal cutbacks made it too expensive for the state to subsidize," Saltmarsh said. "The entire project will be funded from the Special Bridge Replacement Funds, which means the federal government will cover 80 percent of the costs and the state the remaining 20 percent."

Explorer Post Plans Fall Activities

The Explorer Post 505 is a club with a specialization in high adventure. As a high adventure post, it goes on many day and weekend trips throughout the year; those mainly concerned with the outdoors.

The post frequently goes mountain climbing, hiking, camping, and backpacking, along with the other activities of skiing, skating, canoeing, sailing and biking.

Although it is affiliated with the Boy Scouts, the post is a co-ed group of 14-20 year olds with concerns of a different nature from the Boy Scouts. We concentrate on activities and high adventure.

Within the post is a group of officers who do most of the planning and organizing of trips and events. All members can take part in the planning and are not required to go on trips.

One can go on as many or as few as one wishes. Along with the officers there are advisors who must be over 20 years of age, who help to plan trips and advise

Meagan Is Not Just An Ordinary Dog

By SUSAN SCHNECK

It is morning and time for school in the Keating household on 5 Nathaniel rd. The alarm clock goes off next to sleeping 16-year-old Kerry, but the noise is not meant to wake him up and it doesn't.

Instead, Kerry's dog, Meagan wakes up. Meagan's ears perk up and she jumps up and licks Kerry's hand until he awakes.

Kerry has been deaf since birth. Until a few weeks ago, his mother, Jean, woke him up for school.

Now this is the job of Meagan, Kerry's new hearing ear dog.

Meagan also is trained to answer the door for Kerry and get him when his mother calls his name.

Kerry recently completed his schooling period at the Hearing Ear Dog Center in Jefferson, where he purchased Meagan.

It costs $1,400 to train a dog to do this kind of work. The Dog Center requires that the dog's owner pay $150 towards the dog and then works with the staff at the Center to locate a sponsor to pay the balance.

But in Kerry's case, his sponsor, the Winchester Kiwanis Club, found him. In fact the Kiwanis Club told the Keatings about the Dog Center in the first place.

And it seems as if the dog has changed Kiwanis President Rocco J. Ferraina's life as much as it will change Kerry's life.

"Am I ever hooked on this project," said Ferraina. "All the Kiwanis guys in the club are very proud to have had the opportunity to help someone out."

When his Presidency is over next month, Ferraina plans to continue the hearing ear dog project he started.

Ferraina is so pleased with the Center and the success between Meagan and Kerry that he just sent the Center $100 to become a lifetime member.

Ferraina hopes to travel around to other organizations with Kerry and Meagan to demonstrate the success of hearing ear dogs and stimulate other organizations to sponsor hearing impaired people.

Kerry just completed two weeks of training at the Center where he was totally responsible for Meagan's training and well-being. Kerry learned training sounds, grooming, first aid and discipline.

Before Kerry arrived, Meagan underwent a four-month training schedule which focused on basic dog obedience, sound work and town socialization. The dogs are trained by deaf people. "It's unbelievable to watch," said Ferraina. "It's just super fantastic." Kerry and Meagan are now an effective working team.

"Since Kerry's been home, we've just worked on getting Meagan used to the house," Jean Keating said. "Now, Kerry will be in charge of all her training."

She asks Kerry in sign language what he plans to teach Meagan next.

"The smoke alarm," Kerry answers, smiling as he strokes Meagan affectionately.

Ferraina first learned of hearing ear dogs when he first became Kiwanis president in October of 1980. He was attending an incoming presidents meeting and received a brochure about hearing ear dogs.

"I read the brochure and it hit me in the back of the head — I said, this is what I want for my major emphasis," he said. "When I'm President I want to help someone who's deaf. This way we could do something to really help a person."

But Ferraina soon learned that it would take a lot more than burning desire and enthusiasm to get this idea working.

Raising the money was not the problem. The Kiwanis club held three separate fundraisers and raised $1300.

"Every single guy pitched in," Ferraina said proudly. "And their wives helped out an awful lot too."

Surprisingly, the hardest part for the Kiwanis Club was finding a recipient for a hearing ear dog.

"In trying to look for a recipient, I just about gave up," Ferraina said. "I was willing to give the dog to anybody who needed it, but we looked all over and couldn't find anyone. I was ready to throw in the towel."

Kerry's mother had read an article in The Winchester Star and she learned that the Kiwanis Club was looking for an eligible recipient for a hearing ear dog. She called up Ferraina.

I ran down to her house as quickly as I could because I didn't want to lose her," Ferraina said.

It has been a series of successes ever since.

Meagan can be identified around town by her yellow harness and Kerry by his proud smile.

"It's great to see this," Ferraina said. "It brings new life to the deaf people. I'm not going to give this up even when I'm not president."

"My head is high in the clouds and I'm so proud we could do this," he concluded.

New Store Should Clean Up

There's a new face on the downtown Winchester storefront.

Superior Vacuum, which came to town a couple of weeks ago, will be a very welcomed addition to the business center as it is one of a kind in Winchester.

That is precisely the reason why Ron and Sandy Ketchen of Wakefield decided to open their shop here.

"I just felt there was a definite need for a store like this in Winchester," Ron Ketchen said. "We're the only shop in town offering this kind of service."

That "kind of service" virtually runs the gamut as far as vacuum cleaner stores go.

"We're a retail store that sells parts and attachments to every type of vacuum

During the late 1950's and early 1960's, Ketchen played baseball for the L.A. Dodgers.

He became involved in the vacuum business 25 years ago working for Electrolux.

"I realized that there was a definite need for other types of vacuums and found there was a real market for repairs," he said.

"This isn't a new start, merely a new approach," he continued. "I want to build a nice retail store and treat people well."

He said he is very pleased to be carrying out his career plans in Winchester.

"I'm very excited about the downtown revitalization project," he said. "I think it's fantastic. I'm super optimistic."

Superior Vacuum carries Hoover, Eureka, Filter Queen, Compact, Hoky, Royal, Regina, Pullman and RB Electrolux.

Ketchen does not think he has to worry about a market for his product.

"Everyone has a vacuum in Winchester and they break down constantly," he said. "I'd like people to stop in, browse and discover us."

St. Agnes Band And Color Guard Recruits Members

St. Agnes Band and Color Guard of Arlington are now conducting recruitment of new members from grades 4 through 8 in Arlington and surrounding communities.

No previous musical training is required, and St. Agnes Band will furnish individual and group teaching sessions in instruments. The band has already marched in numerous eastern Massachusetts parades this past summer and is planning a school year program of concerts prior to its entry into CYO band competitions next summer.

Youngsters interested in learning more about St. Agnes Band and Color Guard should contact Edward Denon, music director, at St. Agnes School, 51 Medford st., Arlington, on Sept. 25 or Sept. 28 from 5 to 7 p.m. or Oct. 2 at 7 p.m., or telephone Michael Hager, band coordinator, 5 Emerson rd.

Scout Troop 507 Extends Welcome

Scout Troop 507, Winchester's oldest scouting organization, will welcome new members at its regular Monday evening meeting at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church at 7:15 p.m.

Any young man between the ages of 11 and 18 or who has completed the fifth grade is eligible to join explained Peter Olivieri, scoutmaster.

"The troop will continue its tradition of monthly weekend trips which provide scouts an opportunity to enjoy the adventure of camping while learning the skills needed to live outdoors in all seasons," Olivieri said.

An annual troop highlight is a January "Polar bear" campout followed by a spring weekend canoe trip and the final year-end outing which this year was held at Martha's Vineyard.

Weekly meetings give the boys a chance to learn first aid, map reading, cooking, computers, electricity and a wide variety of skills

Gubernatorial Candidate Card Talks At Another Card's Home

State Rep. Andrew H. Card Jr. (R-Holbrook), the House Assistant Republican Whip, spoke with prominent local residents recently at the Hutchinson rd. home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Card.

Rep. Card is seriously considering making a challenge for Governor in 1982. The two Cards are not related, however. Dr. Card's son (whose name is also Andy) is working on Rep. Card's camaign. Rep. Card spoke about a lack of effective political leadership in Massachusetts. He stated, "The Legislature, more often than not, acts selfishly and wanders aimlessly, with no direction from the Governor. As a result, there is very little (public) confidence in state government."

He has been named one of the ten outstanding legislators in Massachusetts on the market," Ketchen said. "We also have commercial accounts with a lot of national companies."

And the list goes on. Superior vacuum will service any vacuum cleaner as well as sell new ones. Ketchen said he will do the repair work 24 hours a day with free pick up and delivery.

"We'll even loan the people a vacuum cleaner to tide them over until theirs is fixed," Ketchen said.

Ketchen also claimed that he will undersell any store carrying his products.

"I will beat anyone's business prices because I need the business," he said. "We're a firm believer in service and price around here."

"Basically, we're trying to solve everyone's problems around here as far as cleaning goes," he continued. "We'll even sell rebuilt equipment for people who are really shopping."

Since Superior opened up Ketchen said he has had his hands full. And a good part of that time was spent receiving compliments.

"The response from this town has been terrific," he said. "They all keep saying, 'This is great — it's just what this town needs. Now I know where to go.'"

Ketchen has been canvassing Winchester on foot since he opened, trying to meet all the merchants. He has big plans for this town.

"I want to be able to service the entire town of Winchester," he said. "Both the residents and the businesses."

He is a man of talent as well as ambition.

CLEANING UP IN A NEW BUSINESS — The downtown's newest store, Superior Vacuum, offers a complete line of vacuums for sale, and will service any vacuum that just doesn't have that old pick-up.

Actor Readies Wellesley Club For Bard

Veteran actor Henry Woronicz dazzled the Winchester Wellesley Club members when he relaxed in an easy chair while reciting such well known speeches as "the seven ages of man" from Shakespeare. With Associate General Manager Charles Marz, Woronicz attended a wine preview of the Oct. 15 Wellesley Club Benefit.

They represented the national touring company of the Boston Shakespeare Company which will present a variety of selections from their current season at "The Best of Boston Theater," the title of Wellesley members' benefit.

The program which begins at 10:30 a.m. will include vaudeville, song and dance, magic tricks, comedy, a mime piece, a reading especially dramatized by voice and "singing," and light moments from the most famous of Shakespeare's women.

At the benefit preview party hosted by Mollie Lisberger, members received tickets and an enticing glimpse of the talents to be presented. This year on Oct. 15 we will again serve our famous buffet luncheon with wine and coffee and dessert and there will be tables for all to gather with friends.

This year's reprise of our traditional fall presentation will again be at the Parish of the Epiphany, Hadley Hall and tickets must be purchased in advance. Chairman of tickets is Ann McGovern.

Jenks Holds Lecture Series

All Was Not Lost In The Rain

There couldn't have been a more depressed and miserable looking person in Winchester Saturday than Chamber of Commerce Executive V.P. Rita Spence.

At 10 a.m. on what was supposed to be Discover Winchester Day, few of those who were supposed to be giving out trinkets, selling food, showing off merchandise and meeting the people of Winchester had shown up.

Main st. was even more deserted than usual, since the police had closed the street off. Tables that should have been surrounded by festive discoverers were turned over on their sides, to protect them from the rain.

This was supposed to be the big Winchester promotion, the event to kick off revitalization and make Winchesterites proud of their downtown.

Spence and Jack Childs of Henderson's Stationers, among others, had worked frantically for the last several weeks lining up performers, assigning booths, and planning schedules to make the day come off.

But at 10 a.m., it looked like all that would go down the tubes.

But although the rain kept away many of the prospective sightseers, and most of the performers, the people and merchants of Winchester showed they wouldn't be put off by a bit of rain.

Everytime the rain stopped, even for a few minutes, people would flock onto Main st., hoping for a glimpse of the promised goodies.

Pisces Pantry owner John

Frongillo noted that he was swamped for the short period the rain stopped. "I really didn't think I could keep up with the lines," he said Tuesday. "I was starting to get worried."

Granted, the crowds died down quickly once the rain started again. But in a way, Discover Winchester Day was a success.

Not an immediate success. A lot of merchants, especially those planning to sell food, lost a good chunk of change on the event.

But the day did prove you could get the people of Winchester interested, even eager to come downtown, get together with their neighbors, and have a good time.

People will come downtown if there is something to come down for. And that bodes well for the hazy future of Winchester's center.

Letters To The Editor

Winchester Police Compassionate In Caring For Autistic Boy

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My husband and I want to share with the community our impressions surrounding the experiences of Gerry Flaherty, the 17-year old autistic young man, discovered Sept. 13 at the Winchester Boat Club by the Winchester police.

As parents of an autistic son, we cannot praise or commend highly enough the compassionate and caring way in which Lt. Piggott and his staff proceeded to tend to Gerry's needs. It is reassuring and heartwarming to discover that we have men of such sensitivity and calibre overseeing the safety of the citizens in our town.

We also wish to point out that Mrs. Margot Holtzman of Pond st., a speech pathologist and saint, whom we awakened from a sound sleep did much to allay Gerry's fears and agitation.

Furthermore, the efforts of Gerald Kramer of Wellesley and his untiring concern were the elements which finally succeeded in placing Gerry.

It is fortunate that this incident ended happily. But it could easily have ended tragically had it not been for the prompt and tireless efforts of the Winchester police.

Sincerely,
Barbara and Steve Miliaras

Silver-Haired Legislator Extends Her Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To the voters, 60 years of age and over, in the Fourth Middlesex District which comprises the towns of Arlington, Lexington, Winchester, and Woburn I wish to express my thanks and appreciation for electing me as your senator to the Silver-Haired Legislature.

I will do my very best to represent you, keep you informed, and get you involved in the legislative process. After the training session is over, I plan to come to some of your meetings to tell you what I am doing, as your spokesman; also, to get input from you.

Actually we were all winners in this election, because we have generated interest and awareness of the special needs we have as elders in our society of the 80s.

Thank you for coming out on that rainy day.

Storyhour-Loving Resident Makes Plea

Dear Editor,

Would you believe that I'm only 5 years old and already I am "too old" for storyhour?

Couldn't we give the children's public library some more money so all of us could go to storyhour? I like books and I'd like to hear Mrs. Twitchell tell stories

P.S. My sister is 3 years old and she can't go to storyhour because she is too young.

A Suggestion Which Could Save Money For Everyone

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter has been sent to David Stockman, Budget Director, The White House:

I have a money-saving suggestion. The nation-wide CETA Program will soon be closing its doors. Like many other nonprofit service agencies, we had contracts with out local CETA offices (Medford and Newton) and we obtained needed equipment through these contracts.

Now, the CETA offices are recalling all the office equipment that was purchased with federal dollars. They are removing desks, typewriters, tables and chairs from our office soon. This equipment will be collected in warehouses and, eventually, we are told, auctioned off.

We are not given the option of purchasing this equipment from CETA. Therefore, we will have to replace this equipment at full cost, immediately, in order to continue to function.

I suggest that your office immediately issue authority to local CETA offices to sell this equipment (at a cost allowing for depreciation) to non-profit groups who are now using it. This would save the federal government the moving and storage charges, minimize disruption at many agencies, and, most importantly, allow us to save our limited dollars for purchase of needed human services rather than spend it on replacement equipment.

I am sure that, on a national scale, this simple change in procedure could free up several million dollars for needed services.

I will appreciate your reply.
Sincerely yours,
John Paul Marosy
Executive Director
Minuteman Home Care Corp.

A Plea To Save County Agriculture Before It Is Too Late

TO THE EDITOR:

The death of agriculture in Middlesex County looms closer everyday. The Committee on Counties has capriciously decided to reduce Middlesex County Extension Service personnel by 70 percent, a far greater blow than in any other county.

In a state already 85 percent dependent on imported food, can we afford to deprive farmers and gardeners of expert advisors? When so few of our children live on farms, is it wise to decimate the urban and rural program of 4H? With home canning and freezing on the increase, should we cut homemakers off from home economists?

What kind of a mess are we in when Beacon Hill doorkeepers are funded before agricultural experts, 4H leaders or home economists?

As a farmer, I know from personal experience that the Extension Service is vitally important.

If you enjoy fresh tomatoes and native corn-on-the-cob, if you'd like to grow a back yard garden and preserve the fruits of your labor, if you think boys and girls should learn about plants and animals, then write your State Senator and Representative today. Urge them to restore full funding to Middlesex County Extension Service.

Sincerely,
David W. Flagg
President
Middlesex County Farm Bureau

Leftover Oil Creates Fire Hazards

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Homeowners who convert their heating systems from oil to gas should be aware of the fact that the Gas Company is not responsible for the removal of the oil tank or any leftover oil in the tank.

The Fire Department is concerned that the unused oil left in the tank may eventually be a hazard. There is a program that enables residents to donate their unused oil to needy families.

The "Robert F. Kennedy Memorial" has a program "Home Oil Transfer Program" which enables residents to donate their unused oil to needy families. The foundation will remove the oil at no cost to the donor and provide the donor with an income tax deduction because the fuel is a charitable contribution.

Persons wishing to donate oil should call the R.F.K. Memorial directly at (617) 227-2320 or the Winchester Fire Department at 729-1801.

On The Street

Cable television has finally come to Winchester. The first household to get cable was hooked up last week. By December of this year, everyone in Winchester who decides to sign up for cable will have it.

This week The Winchester Star went downtown to ask people whether or not they planned to subscribe to cable television, and the reasons for their choice.

Doris Lombardi

Physical Therapist,
W. Chardon rd.

"We won't be getting cable television, mostly because of the initial cost. For the amount we watch television, it wouldn't justify the cost. Sesame Street isn't on cable, so we really don't need it for that purpose."

Dan Pearson

Retired, York rd.

"I don't believe I should have to pay for it. I think it's a gimmick to get people to pay for television in the long run. I only watch television for the news anyway - what I don't get from the paper I see on TV."

Betsy Callahan

Housewife, Hutchinson rd.

"We certainly will subscribe. We like the movies but we don't like to go to them. Our interest will be broad, we'll get better movies sooner. I'm looking forward to it, because I don't like to stay up until midnight to see a prime-time movie."

Marilyn Mueller

Student, Ridgefield rd.

"I'm not sure if my family will get it, but I won't be upset if they don't, because I don't have time to watch television with school and track."

John O'Brien

Corporate Treasurer,
Cambridge st.

"I would get it because you could be part of town government from home. You'll be able to know what's going on downtown."

Mid-Year Rally Fails To Materialize

One of the stock market historians' most reliable seasonal phenomena, "The Mid-Year Rally," failed to materialize this year — for only the sixth time since 1954. According to the 1981 Stock Trader's Almanac, the period of the last few days of June through the July 4th Summer Rally. The lowest Dow Jones close in May or June this year occurred on May 11 when the DJIA closed at 963.44. At this writing, the Dow is hovering around 845 and there is only one week left in September.

"All the pieces are falling into place for an intermediate market low occurring in late September," says John Connallon, Senior Market Analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds. "The Institutional Block Trading Ratio remains oversold which means that institutions have been selling heavily. Normally, this precedes a market bottom. Also, the market has dropped about 175 points since April 27, and there is major support in the 780 area.

So, it now looks like 1981 will be a unique year — a year when there is no "Mid-Year Rally" or "Summer Rally." But if one technical analyst is correct, the last three months of 1981 may produce better days for stocks.

But what about the "Summer Rally"? In order that a summer rally occur, the high Dow Jones Industrial Average close in July, August or September must exceed the lowest Dow Jones close in May or June. Since 1946, there has been a "Summer Rally," however small, every year. For example, in 1974, the year of the smallest rally, the DJIA hit 806.24 on July 1, only 1.4 percent higher than the low of 795.37 on May 29 that year. Last year, however, the Dow hit 973.57 on Sept. 22, 21 percent above the May 12 low of 805.20.

This year, for the first time in the Post-World War II Era, we will not see a

Town Gets One Last Chance

The residents of Winchester will get a second chance. Many of the festivities planned for Discover Winchester Day last Saturday had to be cancelled because of heavy rains.

But do not despair.

On Oct. 16 The New Black Eagle Jazz Band will perform and along with them will be some of the cancelled events.

Opening up the concert will be a ballet performance by The Harriet Hoctor Ballet School of Thompson st.

School Director Mary Vassel had planned to lead some of her eight and nine-year-old pupils and some of her adults to a variety of music. They were going to dance outside on the street.

"The girls were really looking forward to their performance and they were so disappointed that it had to be cancelled," she said. "They're really happy they can perform on Oct. 16."

Many residents were disappointed also, according to Chamber Executive Director Rita Spence.

"We're very glad they can perform on that day," she said.

Cancellation of the auction was also a great disappointment. And no wonder with the slew of items donated by Winchester merchants.

But the Chamber has also thought of a way to make amends for the auction's cancellation. A silent auction will be conducted the night of the concert, which will be held at McCall Junior High. Concert-goers may place bids for the items and the highest bidder receives the merchandise.

You haven't heard the last of Discover Winchester Day.

WINNERS—Sachem Mike Carr of Pickering street was kidnapped by Chamber Executive Director Rita Spence, Artie Bennos of Simms Jewelers and Jack Childs of Henderson's Stationers to pick the winning raffle tickets. The chamber members needed an impartial person and decided all football players are honest. So the protesting Carr was sidetracked while enroute to a scrimmage at Manchester Field. Three people in particular are very glad Carr was kidnapped. Elizabeth Rogers of 1015 road won a Brunswick pool table valued at $1020. Dan Mahoney of Skillings road won a bicycle valued at $170 and L. A. Landry of Sylvester street won an a.m.-f.m. cassette deck. (Staff Photo by Susan Schneck)

Math Anxiety: Overcome It At Adult Ed

Steve and Diane Boettcher will be offering a new course called "Overcoming Math Anxiety" in the Winchester Adult Education Program this fall. The sessions are designed for those who, when called upon to do some math, develop sweaty palms, rapid heartbeats, or blank minds.

Math educators have known for a long time that intelligent and otherwise successful people will often go to great lengths to avoid working with numbers.

Several years ago math anxiety clinics were established at a number of universities to study and deal with the problem of math avoidance.

Using materials developed at these clinics, this six week workshop, lead by a mathematician and a counselor, will deal both with developing math skills and with exploring related attitudes and feelings.

In a comfortable and supportive atmosphere participants will realize new confidence and competence when working with numbers.

Town Discovered Good Time Despite The Rain

By SUSAN SCHNECK

Approximately 250 residents braved the elements Saturday afternoon and discovered that some Winchester merchants are diehards.

Discover Winchester Day took place despite the cold, rainy gloom. Only a fraction of the scheduled exhibits were set up. But they were a hardy fraction at that.

With no rain date, Chamber of Commerce organizers said that they had invested too much time and preparation in the event to simply cancel it. Regardless of the weather.

"Sixty booths opened up the day at 10 a.m.," said Chamber Executive Director Rita Spence. "By late afternoon, twenty were still hanging in there."

"They stuck in there like good troopers," she continued.

The merchants weren't the only diehards.

"The coke robot couldn't make it here because of the rain, but we people can't be replaced," said Kathleen Green of Yale st. "We can come with or without the rain." And over 200 residents did.

Bad weather seems to bring people closer together and the clusters of rain-soaked residents huddling under the few awnings downtown were testimony to that.

"I thank the good Lord for awnings," said Jane Lefavour, Asst. Treasurer and Personnel director at the Winchester Savings Bank.

The turnout was quite large considering the weather and the merchants were determined to make the best of the day.

"We're having a very up day," said Lefavour.

Cheerily, she smiled at each resident and passed out free hot popcorn and rainhats to grateful event-goers.

Artie Bennos of Simms Jeweler was another dogged optimist. "No one is upset or anything," he said. "Just soggy."

Looking at the bright side, Lefavour said, "We're all getting to know each other a little better."

Unfortunately for the Chamber of Commerce, most of the people who got to know each other a little better already knew each other quite well. The event was designed to get other people to know the town and each other.

"So many people have done a lot of work on this and it's too bad," said Ann Rebello, casting stormy looks at the sky. "The purpose of this is exposure to the town but the only people here are the town locals. Our biggest problem is that we don't have a large enough clientele."

"I hope in other years we'll have a rain date," she added. "There should have been one for today."

That sentiment was shared by virtually everyone discovering Winchester last weekend.

"I'm disappointed with the weather," said Keith Story, of the Newcomers Club. "Perhaps there should have been a rain day."

Spence said there was no feasible way there could have been a rain date with all the people involved.

"Too many vendors could not come back the second week and we had made too many arrangements, she said. "There was no way we could have rescheduled the bands and other entertainment. And then if it rained again, what would we do? Most other towns don't schedule rain dates for their town day."

But the rain seemed to bring out the best in some people. It gave Winchester Realty an opportunity to display their humor.

The Winchester Realty had a picture display of the housing market called yesterday, today and tomorrow. The Archives loaned sketches of old homes for the Yesterday aspect, pen and ink drawings of houses made up the Today part and pictures of condominiums illustrated the future.

Before their sign got soaked, it read "Winchester: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow. It was quickly changed to "Discover Winchester in the Rain."

Four-year-old Courtney Lacey of Trinity rd. was enjoying the popcorn and the whole spirit of the day. But she had really come to see the ballerinas from the Harriet Hoctor Ballet School and was quite disappointed to learn they could not perform in the rain.

"I'll hold an umbrella for them when they come out," she shouted hopefully. It was not a total let-down for entertainment seekers, however, as some merchants proved to be quite amusing.

Dorothy and Richard Santos, of the Winton Club and Cabot st. residents, came decked out in the costumes they plan to wear for their new show, "Bravo Broadway" in January.

Any people who don't know Henry Simonds, local historian, would have thought he was the mayor of Winchester, the way he outfitted himself for the occasion.

Simonds was selling old maps and stationery for the Winchester Historical Society.

Although Simonds said it was a shame that it rained Saturday, he was looking forward to another opportunity to display his wares at the Jaycee Flea Market this weekend.

"I hope it's a good day then," he said. Two popular spots Saturday were the Pisces Pantry seafood booth lading out steamy clam chowder and the Italian food booth in front of A&R Decorating.

A little bit of the North End was set up in front of Ann Rebello's store and Rebello's son and sister were frying up hot sausages, steak tips and meatballs.

"I figures this would be a draw," Rebello said. It was. Especially for the Winchester police who could not seem to resist the pungent Italian smells filling the air.

Rebello's son Greg seemed to enjoy his new role as chef. Heaping sausages onto rolls, he cried, "Oh yeah, are these popular?"

Greg wasn't the only chef grinning. Sandy Fitzgerald, a salesman who resides on Dunster ln., seemed to have discovered a new career on Discover Winchester Day.

Fitzgerald had prepared 600 little eggrolls filled with an assortment of food ranging from vegetables to cheese. He had spent all day Friday preparing the little morsels and his labor seemed to be paying off.

"I always loved to cook and this thing encouraged me," he said. "I thought it would be fun to see if someone buys something I make."

"I've been so successful, I'm ready for business," he continued, laughing. "I'm going to quit my job."

Tom Flannagan from Ann Blackham Realtors was also a popular fellow Saturday. He had a big jar of jellybeans and little kids and very big kids were anxiously striving to guess the exact number of beans in the jar. The winner received all the beans.

Seven-year-old Susan Meserve, of Cabot st., said she did not think she had guessed the correct amount but if she did she plans to "eat every single one."

Thirteen-year-old Jimmy Hennelly of Hemingway st. must have had some jellybean stomach-ache experience before as he said he'd eat some and share the rest with his friends. "These jelly beans are an eye catcher," said Flannagan. "I had 200 guesses by 1 p.m."

One undaunted discoverer roaming the closed off streets while she munched popcorn was Nancy Warnock, a longtime Winchester resident who recently moved to Maine.

"It's a shame they couldn't have had a nicer day," she said between mouthfuls. "But I'm enjoying it anyway. Someone just handed me a nice box of popcorn and surprisingly there are a goodly number of people here. If it was a nice weekend it would have been jammed."

Spence was quite proud of the merchants who kept the day alive.

"The retail group put in a lot of effort and despite the rain, spirits weren't dampened," she said. "I appreciate that they stuck in there like good troopers."

"In some ways I consider it a real success," she continued. "The retail group now knows they can hold a successful event."

Spence said there would not be any reimbursement for people who had booths and could not make it because of rain. "They knew there was no rain date," she said.

Whether or not the Chamber lost any money from the low attendance has not yet been determined, but Spence said she thinks they just about broke even.

But one resident said he liked the rain the best.

"It's fun to get wet, said thirteen-year-old Nicky Geannaris of Prince ave., as he sloshed through the puddles.

Rainy Weather Does Not Stop Tennis Tourney

Although the weather did not cooperate completely for the final weekend of the annual Fall Tennis Tournament, the tourney was completed this weekend.

Rain on Saturday necessitated the use of the indoor courts for nine matches at the quarter and semi-final level. Despite Saturday's heavy rainfall, the Packer outdoor courts were ready Sunday morning for the remainder of the semi-final matches.

The six final matches were played under partly sunny skies in a good strong breeze.

The women's singles and senior men's singles were the first final events played in a long afternoon of hotly contested and well-played matches.

In the women's singles, Calista Force, runner-up last year and top seed this year, defeated second-seed Pirhy Samoiloff. In the senior men's singles, Jack Corf defeated Fred Julian.

Women's doubles was won for the second year in a row by the mother-and-daughter team of Lynn and Vicky Robinson. They defeated Arlene Estabrook and Marilyn Lane.

The men's singles saw dark horse

Peter Toland, a newcomer to Winchester, lose to Glenn Clotti, a member of the Winchester High School tennis team.

Both the mixed doubles and men's doubles events took three sets before the top seeds in both events were defeated.

In mixed doubles, Karen Martin and Tom Dunn lost to Vicky Robinson and Leo Lauretano. In men's doubles, Parker Gray and Neil Hurley were defeated by Vandy French and Chris Scanlon.

This makes the third year in a row these two teams have met in the finals.

Lynch Begins Second Year As Elementary School

Lynch School began its second year as an elementary school last Wednesday.

Principal Andrew Allen welcomed new and returning parents, with a brief talk about the school, schedules, plans for the year, as well as a tour for "first time" Lynch parents.

Members of the Parents' Association were on hand to serve coffee and donuts.

Couples Look Back On Long Years Together

Mary And Andrew Saraco Owe 60-Year Marriage To Trust

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO

When 15-year-old Maria Arcuri met 27-year-old Andrew Saraco in early 1921, she never dreamed that she'd marry him within a year. Now, 60 years later, she says with a smile, "Everything's been all right so far."

The Saracos met through a friend who had known Andrew in Winchester before World War I and served with him overseas. Upon their return to the United States, Andrew's friend stopped to see his friend in Easton, Pa. This man was Mary Arcuri's father.

Andrew liked Pennsylvania (and Mary) and took up residence in Easton. A few months later he asked for Mary's hand in marriage. Coincidentally, about this time, Mr. Arcuri's health was failing and he was advised to go back to Italy for the change of climate.

Mary's parents told her that the only way that she could stay in America was to marry Andrew. She did. Today, looking back, Mary says she might not have been married at 15 if she could stay in America, but says she doesn't regret her choice now.

The Saracos have two children, five grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren. Their 60th anniversary was celebrated on Sept. 15 with their family at the Cafe Escadrille in Woburn. Their life together chronicles several decades, and encompasses events such as the Depression and World War II.

The couple has lived in Winchester since 1923, when they returned so that Andrew could find work more easily. Mary tells of her loneliness, of being 16-years-old with one small child and another on the way, and of not knowing a soul in town. But she found the town-people friendly and willing to help her when she was in need.

Andrew was also a great help to Mary as she was growing up. She credits him with teaching her how to cook and keep house, "things he learned in the Army." While she kept house and raised their children, Andrew worked at the Winchester Country Club, for the Town of Winchester and at Winchester Brick.

They raised two children, Michael and Frank, who both now reside in Winchester, as do most of their families. Although Mary would have liked to have had more children, she is happy to have been able to have her two sons.

Both Andrew and Mary are proud of the fact that none of their children or grandchildren have ever been in trouble. "We've never had the police at the door for any of our children," Mary said. Andrew jokingly added that they have police officers in the family.

When Mary says, "I thank God," she means for more than her health or her children. God has been a significant part of Andrew's and her life, especially during trying times like the Depression and World War II.

During the Depression, Mary "wondered how people with more children managed," because they would often not have enough meat for four people. "We always had enough to eat, even if it wasn't meat," she said.

Mary first went to work during World

Mary and Andrew Saraco

War II, not for the money, but to keep busy. "I was making myself sick worrying about both my sons, and I couldn't hear from them, she said. "But when you go to work and meet other people like you who are worried too, and you talk about your sons, it's easier to cope."

In 60 years, Mary and Andrew say they've never had a serious argument or thought of separating. As for advice they'd give couples being married today, Mary said, "marriage is what you make of it." Andrew said, "You have to overlook a lot of things and you've got to trust one another."

Rose And Anthony Marabella Will Celebrate 65th Anniversary

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO

Rose Marano was only 14 when Anthony Marabella first spied her walking to the Chapin School in Winchester.

He said "Hello."

She said "Go to Hell."

A year later they were married and they will be celebrating 65 years of marriage on Sept. 26 at the Sons of Italy Hall.

Rose said that the backbone of their marriage can be summed up in one sentence — "he's been a good worker and I've been a good cook." Together they've raised eight children and have 24 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Their marriage was arranged by Anthony and Rose's mother, without Rose's consent. But, she points out, that's the way things were done in those days. "He came to my house one Sunday afternoon, and before he left, I was engaged," Anthony was 21 at the time.

She had her first child at 16, and had several children in a row only a short time apart. She became a "family mother," who never went to work until her youngest child was 14 years old.

Rose became the first cleaning woman to work in Winchester Hospital when one of her sons went to college. As she puts it, "I had a son in college and not a cent in the bank."

Their son finished college and became a teacher, making his parents very proud. Rose said she is proud of all her children. "We've never had any trouble with our children, and I was their discipline." She believes that the "wait 'til your father gets home" attitude that mothers use today is not good for children. "They have to be afraid of you (their mother) too."

She had to be most of the discipline in her house because her husband was working three jobs most of the time that her children were growing up. Some of his jobs included making cement blocks by hand for houses on Silvestro avenue. "He made every block in front of every house on that street," Rose said.

Living through the Depression was difficult with so many children, but Rose said that they just made smaller portions of everything for everybody. "My husband and I wouldn't have meat, we'd give what we could get to the children," she said.

In spite of living through the Depression and World War II, the Marabellas have had a good life, she said. "We've just raised our children with love and understanding." And the rest of the Maranos and Marabellas have stayed out of her marriage, too, Rose commented.

"I never had an in-law problem," she said, "family interference is what breaks up marriages." Rose and Anthony have also made an effort not to interfere in their children's lives and marriages. They have been supportive when asked to help, but have never "butted in" on their children's affairs.

Rose is proud that her children who still live in the Winchester area still come to visit her every day. She feels that they "accepted what I could offer them," and appreciated the discipline that she used with them.

Anthony and Rose now live in a senior citizens' apartment building on Westley st., and Rose wouldn't have it any other way. "We'd rather be independent," than live with any of their children she declared. Her children coming to visit her every day is enough for her.

Although their apartment is small (one bedroom, a kitchen-living area and pantry), she said "if I won the lottery I wouldn't move."

They have lived in Winchester all their lives, mainly on Chestnut, Harvard and Oak streets, not far from where they live now.

One of Rose's few regrets now is that "I've been married 65 years and never went on a vacation." "But," she adds, "I don't care." She said that if she had one thing she could change, "I'd see that I got a better time."

Rose remembers getting the first radio, television and washing machine in the house and the ease that they brought to her life. She doesn't regret having had so many children, because "you appreciate children later (in life)," and, finds herself hard pressed to imagine life without the company of her children.

As for advice for new marrieds, she stresses love and understanding each other, and says "marriage takes two." She and her husband have never had a major argument or disagreement, she said. Her general reflection on the 65 years she's been married and the children she's raised is, "I'm proud of it."

COMING TO TOWN — The touring cast of the Boston Shakespeare Company will perform at the Winchester Wellesley Club's Benefit for the Winchester Scholarship Foundation and Wellesley College. Sachems Annihilate Somerville

By DAVE LEECO

Nothing the Somerville Highlanders tried Saturday against the Sachems football squad seemed to work.

Take, for example, the last play of the first half. Somerville was in a fourth down, 11-yards-to-go situation, having missed two passes and lost a yard on a run to the middle. They were on their own ten-yard line.

With only eight seconds to go, Somerville tried a trick play. Quarterback Peter Caspariello faked the punt, threw the ball — and the pass was intercepted by Chris Cahill.

Cahill ran the ball back for the Sachem's fifth touchdown of the half, bringing the score to an overwhelming 34-6 when the gun ended the half.

That's the way it went for the Highlanders all day. They tried to run to the left, and guys like Tom Porell and Chuck Allard were there to stop the run.

They tried the pass, and Steve MacDonald or one of his cohorts was there to knock it down.

Meanwhile, the Sachem offense kept rolling up points. Everything was going for the Sachems, unlike their opponents.

The running game was particularly awesome. Steve Costello ran inside, outside, and upside-down on his way to an 108-yard rushing afternoon.

Mark Johnson (54 yards), Bill Ferry (22) and Chuck Allard (27 in the fourth quarter alone) ate up the ground when the Sachems needed it.

Winchester's two quarterbacks, starter Rich Fennell and Cahill, proved the Sachems could score via airmail as well as they could on the ground. Fennell and receiver Jeff Stackpole hooked up for the first touchdown of the game when Fennell found Stackpole in the middle of two defenders right next to the goal-line flag.

And in the second quarter, Cahill threw up a bomb, hit Tony Celli with a 67-yard pass, and Celli ran the last 25-odd yards for the TD.

It was that way all afternoon, as Winchester rolled on to a 40-6 victory.

"I thought the kids did a real good job today," said coach Manny Marshall after the game. "We really burnt them when they tried to throw. There were two interceptions (Cahill's and one by tri-captain Mark Micicche, both in the second quarter).

"One of those interception got us a touchdown, and the other set up another," noted Marshall.

Score two TD's for the defense, and credit them with stopping just about all of Somerville's offensive game plan.

The defense held Somerville to only 123 yards total offense, only 20 of which came on the ground. Even more telling are the first down stats — the hapless Highlanders had but five.

And when your offense is rolling up 361 yards (225 rushing and 136 in the air), and 15 first downs, there's no way the team can lose.

The Sachems controlled the ballgame from the very start. Granted, they didn't get far on the first set of downs, but Cahill's 42-yard punt started the Highlanders way back at their own 18.

The Sachem defense stopped Somerville cold after only four downs — two run attempts by Somerville's Joe Gaspar were stopped at the line, and a short pass from quarterback Caspariello missed. The Somerville punt put Winchester at its own 40.

Then came the first hint of the massacre that was to come. Three charges through the middle from Costello and Ferry picked up a first down. The Sachem's kept moving downfield on runs through the middle, pitch-outs and short passes until it was fourth down on the Somerville 22-yard line.

Winchester went for the broke, and Fennell hit Jeff Stackpole on the five yard line.

Great field position — except for that little yellow flag lying on the field. The Sachems were hit with an illegal motion penalty and the ball went back to the 32 yard line, forcing the Sachems to punt.

Penalties hurt the Sachems all afternoon — by the time the game was over, Winchester had accumulated 50 yards in penalties. Not that it slowed them down any.

The defense let Somerville pick up all of three yards, and Winchester found itself after the punt with the ball on their own 40.

On second-and-four, Greg Kirk grabbed a screen on the left side, ran crossfield, dodging tacklers all the way, and ended up on the 18.

Fennell followed up with a beauty of a pass, drilled between two Highlanders, to Jeff Stackpole who was heading to the goal-line flag. Stackpole's momentum carried him over the goal line, and the Sachems were up, after Costello's successful punt, 7-0.

Somerville was determined to get the TD back. Gaspar hauled in the kick-off at the 18 and ran it back to the 39. Caspariello followed that up with a beautiful 20-yard pass to Tim Harrington, giving the Highlanders first-and-ten at the Winchester 40.

That's as far as the drive got. Winchester's defensive backfield was all over the Highlander's receivers, thwarting three pass attempts.

Then Steve MacDonald, coming out of nowhere to intercept the ball at the Winchester 18, setting up the second Sachem touchdown of the day.

The Sachem's got this one with their running game — the only pass of the drive, to a wide-open Tom Gibbons, was called back on a 15-yard clipping penalty.

But the runners had enough to make up for the penalty. Costello, on a pitch-out to the right side, ran for 17 yards, putting the Sachem's on the Somerville 48.

Johnson followed that up with a 26-yard scramble, again to the right, bringing the Sachems to the 22. It was then Ferry's turn, and he took the ball on a hand-off and brought it to the 10-yard line.

First and goal to go. Fennell hands the ball to Costello, who heads right for the sidelines, gingerly sidesteps a few Highlanders, and brings it in for the second Sachem TD.

The next Sachem TD came quickly — in fact, after only three downs. Somerville was in a third-and-17 situation, after Winchester's Bill MacMillan bull-dozed his way through the Somerville line.

Stoneham Next

No Overconfidence

The Sachems aren't letting Saturday's overwhelming win over Somerville make them too cocky about their next game against Stoneham.

"Stoneham has a tough team — we always have a tough game against them," said tri-captain Paul Manganaro, sitting in the locker room after Saturday's contest.

"We've got to get better every week," Manganaro continued. "We've got to polish up on the mental mistakes, like the penalties we made today. That just gives the other team the advantage."

Coach Manny Marshall said Monday that his scouting report on Stoneham wasn't much help in judging next Saturday's opponents, since Stoneham had played a scrimmage, and not a game, two days before.

"But Stoneham is always a tough game for us," Marshall noted. "It's their opening day, so that will get them up for the game. And they're close towns, so there's a little bit of rivalry there."

In the few days of practice before the Sachems travel up Forest st. to Stoneham for the meeting, the team members will be working hard.

"We know we have to win every game, and we know every game is going to be tougher than the last," said guard John Polcari, who is recovering from a pre-season collarbone injury, but should be back within the next two weeks.

"We learned that last season," added Manganaro.

Girls' Soccer Squad Destroys Two Foes

By JOHN WILPERS

It was billed as one of the toughest matches of the season for both teams.

Both coaches were worried. Both predicted a close game.

It was no contest. Winchester, the defending Middlesex girls' soccer champions, simply took control of the field. End to end, sideline to sideline.

Within two minutes, the Sachettes who haven't lost at home in three years, had already scored one goal. Belmont's first goal didn't come until the middle of the fourth quarter against Winchester's second and third string defense. By then, it was too little too late. The final, 5-1.

As good as the Belmont game was, the Arlington game was even better — if you were a Winchester fan. One statistic tells the story. This time all 32 Sachettes got to play, including the third string goalie. The final in the second match of the season: 7-1. In just eight quarters, the Sachettes have now scored 12 goals to their opponents' 2.

After destroying Belmont, the toughest team in the league for Winchester now appears to be tomorrow's opponent: Lexington.

"They (Lexington) beat Arlington 3-0 but didn't score until the second half," said Scanlon. "They also beat Chelmsford 6-4, which tells me they've got some scoring punch but when someone like Chelmsford scores four on you, there might be defensive problems."

Scanlon is actually getting worried about success. "When you start putting away teams 5-1 and 7-1, the players start to think things are easy," he said. "We can't let them believe that."

"I want to heap praise on Winchester," sighed Belmont coach Dick Howick. "They are excellent." Asked to name the outstanding Sachette players, Howick laughed and replied: "Pick one."

Howick certainly had a chance to take a good look at all of the Sachettes. Winchester coach Chris Scanlon played all but one of his 32 players. "I just didn't have time to get our third string goalie in," said Scanlon.

"We were looking for a tough game,"

'We didn't let Belmont touch the ball. Without the ball, they can't do much damage.'

said Scanlon. "The score doesn't look like a tough game and it isn't hiding anything but that's only because we played the best opening game in the history of our club."

"We scored two quick goals and then kept them guessing for the rest of the game," he said. "We took it right to them and didn't give them a chance to do anything. The best offense is a good defense and we just didn't let Belmont touch the ball. It's hard to do any damage if you don't have the ball."

Not only did Belmont not have the ball very often but they also hardly crossed mid-field when they did have it during the first half. "We didn't give them the time they needed to execute their passes," said Scanlon. "Our halfbacks kept intercepting their passes and making the traps."

"A number of our kids are very young and didn't understand the pace of the game," said Belmont coach Howick. "The Winchester players have a lot of experience and knew exactly what they were doing. They played very fast and kept cutting off the passing lanes. Their halfbacks could come back so fast they were catching up with our ball carriers."

"We like a control ballgame not a kick-and-run game," continued Howick. "We had to make more of an adjustment than we were capable of at this early stage in the season. As a result, we lost control of the mid-field."

"You can let lesser players roam but you can't do that with players like Winchester has," said Howick. "We learned our lesson — I hope."

If the lesson was learned, it will be obvious on Oct. 13 at Belmont when the two teams play the second match of the season. "We will cut at least two goals off their score," predicted Howick. "And while our future is always the next game, I suppose that in the back of our mind we are already getting excited about the rematch."

Scanlon agrees. "It will be a real tough game," he said. "They will have something to prove to themselves."

For the Sachettes, Paula Papastathis and Kim Donlon had two goals each and Michelle Powers helped out with three assists. Maria Montuori also had a goal for Winchester.

For Belmont, Jenny Howick scored on a four-pass play which exemplified the soccer style that coach Howick wants to use.

Several days after the game, The Boston Globe printed a girls' soccer season preview that had both coaches upset. "The Globe didn't mention Winchester once," said Howick, whose team tied and beat two of the Globe's best bet teams. "Those teams are good but they aren't like Winchester. And that's why I'm not down in the dumps about losing to them. They are excellent."

"The girls were disappointed, especially after we were Middlesex champs last year," said Scanlon. The Sachettes beat this year's Globe top pick, Concord, last year 3-0 in the regular season and lost to them 2-1 in the semi-finals of the state tournament.

"We will settle who is really the best on Oct. 24 when we play Concord and try to prove the article wrong," said Scanlon.

Boys' Soccer Team Rolls

By SUSAN SCHNECK

They're off to a roaring start. The Winchester Soccer team opened up their season with two smashing victories.

The Sachems walked all over Watertown Wednesday, in their first season game dumping them 4-1.

By halftime, the score was 0-0 but the Sachems were completely dominating the field.

"I don't think Watertown crossed the center more than two times," Coach Gene Bouley said. "they had stacked the defense so we had a difficult time scoring. The field was so small also. It was hard to work our way through the myriad of players in the way."

But it takes more than a myriad to keep those Sachems back.

Once Winchester got started in the second half, they scored three quick goals to go ahead of Watertown, 3-0. Brian Guarotta, left wing, made two goals and Paul Williamson, a forward, scored a goal and made an assist.

Watertown made an attempt to regain face, scoring a point on a penalty kick while the Sachem's second team was playing.

Bouley put the starting team back and less than two minutes later David Suvak, center halfback, scored a goal and an assist. Eric Lowenstein, forward, also had an assist.

The score was 4-1 and it stayed that way.

On Friday, the Sachems dished out more of the same staggering attack crushing Stoneham with that same winning score — 4-1.

By the end of the first half, Steven Driscoll, a halfback, and Paul Williamson, a forward, had each scored a goal.

Early into the second half Williamson scored another goal followed by Guarotta, bringing the score up to 4-0.

Bouley decided he could play his second team and cleared the bench. Stoneham scored one goal then — but only one.

Lowenstein had two assists and Suvak had one.

"We pretty much dominated the game all the way through," Bouley boasted. "Our defense had problems at times with their speed, but Stoneham was never able to capitalize on us. Our goalie only had to make six saves."

Bouley admitted that it has not been difficult for the Sachems yet and said that the team is just feeling the season out so far.

"They're a very talented group and know it," he said. "They go out there confident and play confident. It hasn't been difficult so far."

EARLY SIGNS — Winchester's girls soccer team may be a little premature in calling themselves number one after their first victory of the season, in their opener against Belmont. But if the 5-1 score is any indication, the Sachettes may not be overly optimistic. (Staff photo by Noreen Murphy)

Field Hockey Team Struggling

Sachemettes Lose Two Squeakers

The spirit of the Sachemettes Field Hockey team is up and ready even if they haven't been winning too many games lately.

The Sachemettes lost 2-1 to Stoneham Wednesday at Stoneham. Martha Doherty, center forward, scored the only goal on a penalty shot. Another valuable player that day was Simone Tolson, the halfback. "She held the defense together," said coach Pat Ryser. "But we got a little weak in the second half."

Friday's game, however, was much closer.

Although the Sachemettes lost to Watertown, 3-2 at Watertown, they made a terrific comeback in the second half.

The Sachemettes were losing 3-0 during the whole game when Sheila Connolly, the left wing forward scored a goal with about four minutes left in the half. Then, with only 10 seconds to go, Connolly scored another goal.

"I think if we just had a few more minutes, we could have won," Ryser said. "It was just one of those things when it was just too late."

Lisa Wiley, the goalie, also put on a fine show of sportsmanship. Watertown made 28 shots toward the Winchester goal and Wiley fended off 25 of them.

"She was great," Ryser said. "They only scored three goals which is pretty good. She held us in that the game for the first half and made a lot of saves."

Ryser hopes to catch and keep the enthusiasm and fine playing her team was possessed with in the latter part of the last game half.

"Whatever they found at the end of the game to get them those two goals they have to find at the beginning," Ryser said, adding that she plans to switch her playing strategy.

But whatever they may be feeling, the Sachems definitely have their eyes on glory.

"We're looking for a championship and hoping to get there," Bouley confessed. "We have our work cut out for us."

It seems that the only problem the Sachems may have in getting there is maybe overconfidence.

But they have every right to be. "I'm very pleased with the whole team," Bouley said.

grabbed Gaspar just as he'd picked up the ball on a hand-off, and threw the Somerville back for a seven-yard loss. Somerville tried a short pass, which was picked off by Micicche, who ran the ball back to the Somerville five.

Costello easily carried the ball through the middle on the next play, and Winchester was up 20-0.

Somerville followed up with two long passes to set up their only touchdown of the game — although it may have never have come except for the rain which dripped on Knowlton Stadium all afternoon.

Micicche slipped in the end zone, allowing Somerville's Mike Slattery to catch a dead-on pass in the end zone. Somerville missed the two-point conversion, and the score stood at 20-6.

After Allard broke two near-fumbles on the kick-off to bring the ball to the 36, Cahill hit Celi from the wishbone formation, for a long, long touchdown, putting the Sachems up 27-6.

Then came the failed fake punt, and the Cahill interception, and Winchester came out of the half leading 34-6.

Winchester and Somerville fought back and forth for the third quarter with no scoring. Both teams leaned heavily on the pass in the quarter, but cold fingers and a slippery ball added up to no points on the board.

In the fourth quarter, Marshall sent in the second team, who showed they were could score as well as their team-mates on the first squad.

The final touchdown drive of the game started when Costello, playing defense, knocked down a pass and forced Somerville to punt from their 33.

Costello, switching over to offense, gathered in the punt at the 45 and ran it back to Somerville's 33 yard line.

Chuck Allard took a pitch-out on first-and-10, juiced his way past all but the last defender, and brought the ball to the Winchester 10.

A penalty (again) on the first down play stopped the Sachem momentum, and the team found themselves with a fourth down, only 11 yards away from the goal line.

But Marshall, instead of going for the safe field goal, decided to let his second team take the ball in. And Allard, sweeping along the right side, didn't disappoint the coach. Final score, 40-6.

Craftsman Keeps Woodworking Tradition Alive

The era of the wood craftsman may be over, but Wade Holtzman of Pond st. is keeping the art alive.

Four years ago, at the age of 24, Holtzman was making platform beds out of his basement in Watertown. He was doing well, but did not find the work fulfilling.

"I felt I could do things which required much more creativity," Holtzman said. He soon got an opportunity to do just that.

Holtzman learned about an intensive one-year program in the restoration and conservation of antiques sponsored by the British Antique Dealers Assn. in West Sussex, England.

The program was open only to the most proficient woodworkers.

"It was such an efficient course, they didn't have time to teach woodworking," Holtzman said.

Along with 399 other hopefuls, Holtzman applied.

Armed with his 75-pound bag of handtools, Holtzman flew to England for the first part of the test.

Holtzman was given a rough board and told to create a double dovetail scarf joint. He had to do it perfectly and complete it in six hours.

"It took me the full six hours," Holtzman said. "The pressure was amazing. You have to make one cut and it has to be perfect."

Holtzman said he had never made a double dovetail scarf joint before and that he probably never would again.

The next day he went to London to be interviewed. All seven of the biggest antique dealers in England were sitting on one side of a long table. Holtzman had to sit facing them and answer some questions about his experience, hobbies and goals.

"I remember a French kid who was applying," Holtzman said. "He had come with his father who was a head conservator in charge of repairs of museum pieces. They were leaving the interview as I was walking in. The son was crying and I said to myself, 'They're gonna crucify me.'"

Holtzman was not crucified but he was not told if he had been accepted to the program either.

"When I left I said to myself, 'Well, that was a nice way to go to England for a week, but I know I won't be back,'" he said.

So he returned home to continue making platform beds and checking the mail.

"We looked at the mail everyday for a couple of months, but we gave up," Holtzman's wife, Margot, said. But months later the letter of acceptance did arrive.

Out of the 400 applicants, only 12 were accepted. Holtzman was one of two Americans who made it.

"We were ecstatic," Holtzman said. "We thought the world was at our feet and that when we came back from England we'd be millionaires."

That strange notion originated from a magazine article the Holtzmans had seen which spoke about a craftsman in New York who earned $35 an hour — doing what he loved.

Later, Holtzman learned that the N.Y. craftsman was the exception and not the rule.

Holtzman traveled to England to study under a French craftsman. He learned about the history of furniture, the science and properties of antiques, workshop technology and finishing skills. He was able to work on priceless pieces from the Victoria and Albert Museum and from private collectors.

"The techniques I learned in England you can't find in a book," the wiry, strong Holtzman said. "No one can restore that old stuff anymore. I was lucky to find a French Tudor who knew the techniques. I have no competition."

He returned to the United States in high spirits, ready to put his newly-acquired skills to good use.

When he first came back, Holtzman took a job with a Lynn woodworking company. He did the interior of the Harvard Kennedy Center and a lot of custom work but was not satisfied and felt that he was not able to put his skills to use. He was also disillusioned with the lack of prestige accorded to the woodworkers.

"The designers and architects get all the money and fame," he said. "And I would be designing the pieces anyway."

Holtzman stayed with the company for three months and then decided to open up his own business. Margot canvassed the area with his portfolio and got him some jobs.

Working out of a studio he built, Holtzman is successfully earning a living doing what he loves. And he is slowly building a reputation for restoring life to valuable antiques and for reproducing classic furniture designs.

"Now I really appreciate my work and every nickle I earn comes from my own labor," he beamed.

But it's not always easy being a self-employed craftsman and it's not always enjoyable. Holtzman said he finds it difficult to compete with ready-made products.

"It's hot, hard, dusty work," Holtzman said. "Many times I wonder if it's worth it. It's tough working alone all the time."

Star Profile — By Susan Schneck

Holtzman says he works six to seven days a week and much more than 40 hours.

Holtzman said he most enjoys doing reproductions of old top quality pieces. But he added that many people look down on pieces that are not original antiques.

"They just don't realize that I make the pieces as if I were living then," Holtzman sighed. "I use the styles and techniques they used to use. Even if you imitate a piece you have to really know the original. To do that you have to have seen them — and there aren't many of them around."

Holtzman is now working to reproduce ten pieces of furniture to submit for a $25,000 grant from the National Endowment of the Arts. Only three percent of the applicants win.

"It is risky, yes," Holtzman admits. "But I say, 'Go for it.' It's something I really want to do."

One of the pieces, a reproduction of an original 1690 English grandfather clock, is already completed. This masterpiece took Holtzman 350 hours to finish.

Worth about $14,000, the clock is on display at the Decorative Arts Center in Boston, on consignment.

"A piece like that would cost $20,000 today," Holtzman said.

The case is veneered with walnut, on which the chief decorative feature is marquetry. The moldings are worked in facings of cross-cut solid walnut. The top of the hood is flat with barley-sugar twist columns fitted in the corners.

Holtzman designed the floral marquetry himself and chose the elements of the clock. The original has a bim bam movement, but Holtzman's clock chimes like a musical instrument.

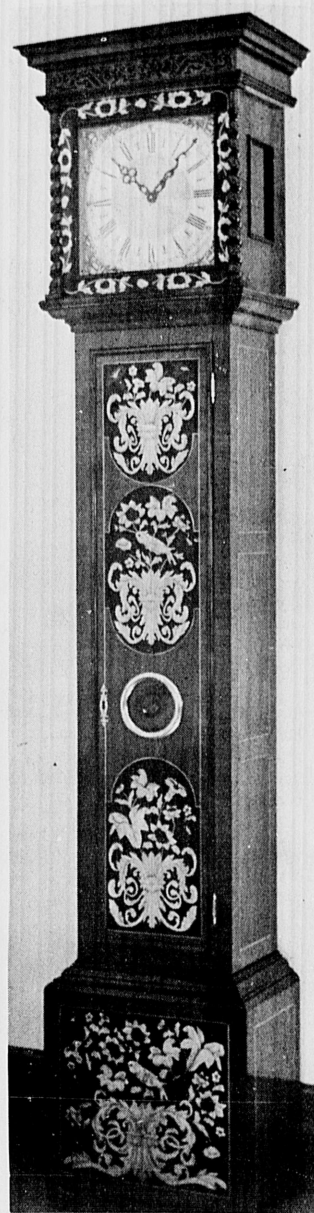

"It's really authentic," he said, proudly. "I had worked on restoring an original like this for six months and got to know the piece so intricately I decided to build one."

Surprisingly, Holtzman's home on Pond st. does not have much furniture. He has not had much time to build any and said he would never consider buying furniture. First, he must put his energy towards carrying on the art of the 17th and 18th century wood craftsmen.

"I just want to build a reputation of what I can do," he said. "I'd like people to know I'm a craftsman."

Greenland: An Adventure On Ice

By SUSAN SCHNECK

There is virtually no landscape. Just endless miles of pristine white and blue ice. On overcast days, the sky and earth blend into one vast, empty grayness with no visible horizon to indicate where the clouds stop and the ice begins.

During the midsummer, the sun never sets. It just hovers on the horizon line for a few hours before rising again. The only sound is the wind rushing by, an eerie tune which becomes a symphony in itself.

A lone bamboo pole stands brave against the forces of nature as testimony to an attempt at exploration.

Unconquered.
Untamed.
Unending.
Greenland.

Very few people have journeyed to this mysterious continent, most of which has been under ice for at least 120,000 years. But its mystique lures explorers and piques their curiosity as Greenland remains one of man's last frontiers. Four times the size of France, Greenland's entire center is covered with one giant ice cap 1600 miles long, 750 miles wide and in some places two miles deep.

A stepping stone between the old world and the new.

Those who venture to the barren Arctic must shed many preconceptions of the laws of nature.

"It's very disorienting there — almost like another planet," said Peter Torres after returning from an ice expedition in Greenland. "All there is is ice."

"When it's overcast, there is no horizon," the 28-year-old Everell rd. resident continued. "The snow and the sky look the same. You can't tell which way is up. You can't tell left from right. The sky is like a coat of gray."

"Once the snow falls, it'll blow for days and days until it gets warm enough to stick," he added, gazing thoughtfully in the distance. "After a storm you can put your foot outside the tent and never know when it'll touch the ground. Sometimes you see snow drifts and think it's the horizon." Pausing for a moment, he looked up and said, "It's really weird."

"It takes all your ideas about what the earth is supposed to be like and blows them away," he concluded.

A graduate of Colby College with a degree in geology-biology, Torres and six other glaciologists recently returned from a six-week ice sheet project in Greenland. Funded by the National Science Foundation and coordinated by Ohio State University Glaciology Director Ian Whillens and the University of Nebraska, the project was set up to study the ice dynamics (accumulation and velocity of the glacier) and determine how the glacier is moving. Their findings will help scientists understand the history of Greenland so they can tie it in with the continental drift theory and the creation of the earth.

Four men and three women flew to Greenland last July. For the next two months, they lived in tents on the ice in temperatures that ranged from 0 degrees at night to 30 degrees during the day.

Ice afficionados are not legion and Torres said he finds it readily understandable why swarms of people are not trying to go on ice expeditions.

"The prospect of living on the ice with nothing but what you bring with you, eating freeze-dried food for two months in 0 degree weather, and driving a snowmobile 250 kilometers a day is not inviting," he pointed out.

But Torres is not dissuaded by those conditions.

"I've often wondered why I'm interested in such things," Torres said while he slowly inhaled a cigarette. Releasing the smoke carefully, he continued, "There are a lot of things I like about it. Being out there with nothing but ice. No trees, houses, streets, traffic lights. The only thing you have with you is what you bring. Physically as well as mentally."

The desolate loneliness of the ice environment seems to afford Torres the opportunity to explore the depths of his soul as well as the depths of the ice. He can shed much of the baggage people accumulate in the civilized world and tune in to his basic needs and feelings.

"Around here (in civilization) you have no time to think," Torres explained. "But there (on the ice) nothing happens except what you make happen. There is less there so you put more into it."

Like others who venture to faraway places, Torres loves the challenge.

"I enjoy working in remote sites," Torres said, his tall frame leaning back into a chair. "It's so difficult to work there but you can do it. It's quite a challenge and it kind of gives you a pretty good feeling to go on a mission and carry it off successfully. It's very rewarding."

But he confessed that there are some drawbacks to living in a barren no-man's land.

"It can get depressing at times," he admitted. "You go to bed and everything's gray — the ground, the sky. It's 10 degrees and you go to sleep in a sleeping bag on the ice. It's not very comfortable."

"You wake up the next day and the sky is still gray," he continued. "The snow is blowing all over and all you have to look forward to is a freeze dried breakfast and a hard day's work."

Nonetheless, Torres tries to work on as many ice projects as he can, although they are not in abundance.

"These jobs are hard to come by," he said.

Torres was just accepted to another expedition in Antarctica.

Not a newcomer to ice exploration, Torres worked for a year in Alaska in 1978 at the Naval Arctic Research lab at Point Barrell.

Anxious to return to the ice, he quickly applied when he learned of the Greenland Ice project.

He drove to Columbus, Ohio for a 15 minute interview.

"They just basically wanted to see if I was stable," he shrugged. "In those conditions you have to be psychologically stable because if someone cracks up, there's not much we can do about it."

Torres said there was no such thing in Greenland as a typical day for the group. Each morning the work was divided up.

Two people might measure snow accumulation against bamboo pole markers placed in the ice last year. "We liked to have two to do that because if there's a white-out or a storm we can make straight lines using two snowmobiles," Torres said.

Ice temperatures were measured with a thermistor at different depths along the ice cap. Satellite receivers had to be maintained.

Soundings were taken by bouncing radar off the bedrock to determine the topography and gravity readings were taken to determine what type of rocks lay underneath the ice.

Some expedition members dug six-by-six-by-six-foot pits so they could take ice samples to send back to Ohio for examination.

"Out of boredom, we'd make them fancy," Torres said smiling at the recollection. "We'd build spiral stairs, garbage chutes, etc."

But his smile quickly faded with his next recollection. "Sometimes we would dig the pits and it would take quite a few hours and then a storm would come and fill it all up. You need a good sense of humor to work there," he added wryly.

This project managed to use the first atomic bomb explosion to their advantage.

"We knew that if we dug down to where the ice was contaminated from the atomic bomb, we'd have an 18-year-old ice sample," Torres said. "If it were not for the atomic bomb, we would have had to go to a volcanic ash layer which is too deep."

Each time a project member left camp for the day, he or she would bring enough gear to survive for three days. If a storm came up, the person could be stranded for that long. If something happened, the possibilities of being rescued were slim.

"You only have four hours to be overdue and then you're considered missing," Torres said. "If weather permitted, we would have had to go out and look for the person. But there would be no point in worrying about it because there is nothing you can do."

During storms it was difficult to find even the cook tent which was only 45 feet away from the sleep tents.

"There is nothing to stop the wind when the snow starts blowing and it would pile up against the tents about eight feet high," Torres said. "If you wanted to go to the cook tent, you'd have to bring a string to find your way back."

During the entire two-month project, only five days were clear. And these days presented perils of their own.

High altitude sunscreen and glasses had to be worn to protect the skin from sunburn, explained the deeply tanned Torres.

"The sun is so intense, you can get burned to a crisp," he stressed.

But when the sun was out and the wind quieted down, the group donned their shorts, tee shirts and boots to enjoy the change.

Torres said he did not worry much about the hazards of his environment but he did worry about not being able to complete his work.

"We had figured in four storm days for each of the three camps we worked at and it worked out that way," Torres said. "It was a very successful summer."

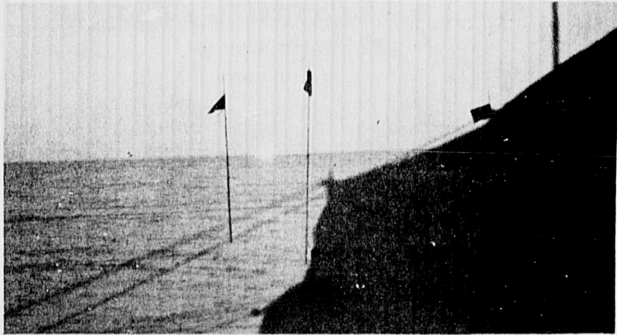

Adding to the trip's success, the N.Y. Air National Guard pilot, who flew the group to Greenland, may have broken a world record.

The engine to their C-130 Hercules Aircraft (one of about five U.S. planes on skis) broke down and the pilot had to taxi 70 miles to get it fixed.

"They're really proud of that and want to either submit it as the longest taxi in history or the largest snowmobile," Torres laughed.

Between ice jobs, Torres works as an arborist for Winchester Tree Service Inc.

"I'm anxious to get back to the ice," he said. But leaning back and smiling, he added, "Although after two months it's nice to have a break and be bombarded with things to do."

'It's very disorienting there--almost like another planet.'

METRIC SYSTEM COMING

The real estate industry — and the country — is one step closer to metric measurements with a Senate bill passed in mid-December.

The bill encourages voluntary conversion within the next two years on the part of industries and other groups. The Metric Board would serve as consultants to those industries undertaking conversion.

The National Association of Realtors has established a Metric Conversion Committee, whose objective is to identify both problems and opportunities as they affect the real estate industry.

What will it be like to sell real estate under the metric system? For one thing, inches, feet and yards will be replaced by meters, centimeters and decimeters. More relevant to Realtors, land measurements will be in square meters and hectares instead of square feet and acres. Space in buildings will be rented by square meters instead of square feet. Listing information on for-sale homes will probably have to carry dual sets of measurements for a period of time.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at:

Foundation Ends International Year

Once again a most successful year for the American Host Foundation has ended. Since 1962 more than 30,000 American families have opened their homes to 10,000 English speaking teachers from 17 countries in Western Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Covino of Sanborn st., participants in this program since 1973, had as their guest Peter Buse of Wiesbaden, West Germany and Bo Larsson of Ulricehamn, Sweden.

The American Host Program is a person-to-person program which brings teachers from Western Europe to the United States for month during the summer. Participating families may request their visitors for a stay of one week, ten days or two weeks.

Buse, after visiting the Covinos, traveled to families in western Mass, and Vt.; Larsson visited with families in N.H. and Conn. Almost any family can qualify as a Host family; language is no barrier as all teachers are required to speak English.

Although the American Host Program is not designed as a reciprocal one, the Covinos were most fortunate in 1980 to visit former guests from Germany and Switzerland. They also were able to visit Italian guests as part of another program.

The Covinos feel that it is a most rewarding and satisfying program and are already anticipating their next guest. They are most willing to share their experiences hopeless, I guess it was out of their control."

Mrs. Spencer ended up cancelling her Thanksgiving dinner that day and the next afternoon, she called Town Manager Thomas Groux.

"He wrote me a very nice letter and said the problem had been discussed at the selectmen's meeting," she said. "He wrote that the selectmen realized that I was 'one very unhappy taxpayer'."

"Mr. Groux assured me that they would see to it that what happened would never happen again," she said. "This year will be the proof of that."

On the strength of that assurance, Mrs. Spencer said she is planning on holding Thanksgiving dinner at her house this year.

"This is the first Thanksgiving that my son has been away from home," she explained, "and I want to give him a real homecoming."

"I just hope this Thanksgiving is not going to be like the one before."

★ Taxes

although $40,000 isn't much (last year the town collected $7 million on the fall tax bills), it is still early.

"We usually start to get the taxes at about this time, but not many," said Thomas. "The bills wouldn't even be due until November 1 if this was a normal year."

But this isn't a normal year, and a late revaluation will prevent the tax bills from going out on time. So the selectmen, facing a cash shortage, have asked citizens to pay early.

And like Deminco, the early payers contacted by The Star have lived in town for years, raised families here, and consider Winchester "their town".

"I like living in Winchester, and I figured I would help them by paying now," said James Cahill of Franklin St., who has lived in Winchester for 30 years. "I feel it has to be paid anyway, so I might as well do it now."

Because the town's revaluation has been delayed several months due to a slow start by Patten Associates (the firm now assessing the town) the tax rate may not be set for another two months, according to town officials.

That means the bills won't go out until December, a full month after they would usually be due. Without tax bills, the town doesn't collect taxes. And without taxes, the town can't pay its bills without borrowing money.

The selectmen want to avoid borrowing, as Comptroller Alphonse Faggiano has estimated the interest could run to $100,000.

Of course, if people don't pay, they could collect a few months interest themselves by putting their tax money in the bank until the tax bill comes.

But that argument didn't sway Charles Murphy, who was born in Winchester 70 years ago, and still lives here on Pond St.

"If it was in my checking account, I would have collected maybe 5.5 percent interest," he said. "That's nothing. But the town couldn't borrow the money for anything less than 10 or 15 percent."

Murphy said he decided to pay early as soon as he heard his town needed his taxes.

"I saw an article saying the town was going to try and coax townspeople into paying their taxes in the normal fashion," he explained. "I figured I could help the town out.

"I was born in town and I've always lived here," he added. "I feel this is my town, and it was a simple thing I could do. I had the money saved, and the bill would have to be paid anyway."

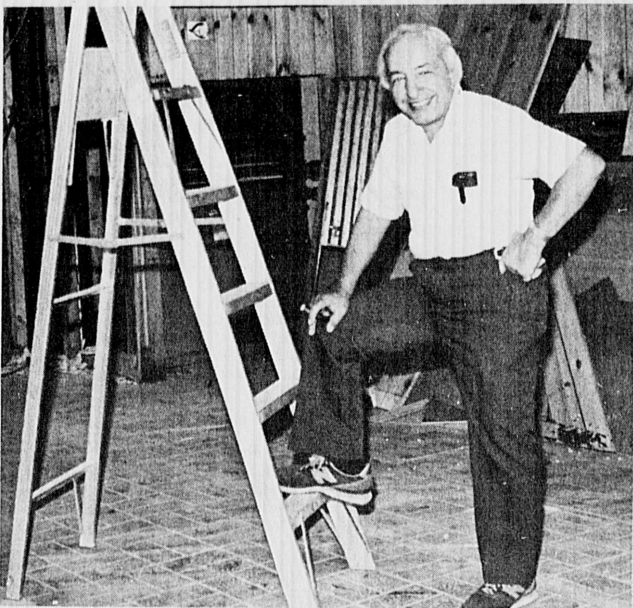

Some long time residents paid their taxes voluntarily to be good to their town, even though they felt the town wasn't much good to them any longer.

"I've lived here all my life, and I respect the town," said Robert Elliot of Dana Ave., one of the first to pay his taxes early. "But the town isn't what it used to be."

"Still," he continued, "I felt I could afford to make a contribution to the town, and the town needs it."

"Both my wife and I have lived here all our lives, we've been here 68 years, and we feel close to the town. That is why I paid."

UNDERGOING RENOVATIONS — One-or-Two Things owner Berg Keshian checks on the progress of the work on his new store, across Mt. Vernon St. in the old Richardson's Market. The new One-or-Two should be ready to open in November.

just having the work done that counts, it's doing it right."

Keshian said the new store will be "as modern as possible."

"Our store has always put cleanliness first, and convenience second," he said. "This is the way we've run the business, and it's the way the business will continue to be run."

According to Whirtenberg, the decor of the new store will be an improvement. "The old store had, in my opinion, a rather sterile, over-white look to it," said Whirtenberg. "The new store will be warmed up a lot — kind of brick and woodsy rather than flat-white glossy and chrome."

Keshian noted that improvements will not be limited to the inside of the store. Harris Richardson, who owns the building, "is planning renovations to the front of the store," Keshian said.

"He's going to take it back to the brick front (where there is now white vinyl siding)," Keshian said. "He's going to sandblast it too, to give it that nice, new brick look."

Even the familiar red, white and blue One-or-Two Things logo will be changed, according to Whirtenberg.

"The old sign was appropriate to the colorful, psychedelic early 70s, when the store started (in 1972)," said Whirtenberg. "But we're going to change to stay with the time — and the new sign by-law."

"There will be no red in the new sign, it will probably be blue-green and white — a little more subdued," he said.

Whirtenberg said One-or-Two's move came because Keshian needed more space, and because by moving, Keshian could help out the town's downtown revitalization effort.

"It all added up," he said. "Berg needed more space, and he had the opportunity to do something for the downtown. He's always been concerned about making his business a part of this vital sector — revitalization is good for everyone's business."
